Future Farmers of America tell of pride and progress

Thousands of Future Farmers of America chapters across the country joined in celebrating FFA Week Feb. 18-25, showing the general public its pride and progress.

Special publicity campaigns and programs included roadside billboards, the distribution of FFA brochures in schools and churches, radio announcements, television appearances, and much much more. This week, as a continuing salute to the Future Farmers of America, Lancaster Farming polled high schools in southeastern and central Pennsylvania to find out what various chapters did to proclaim FFA Week. The results are printed in forthcoming sections of this article.

Boasting a national membership of 509,000, the FFA is devoted to agriculture. While it was originally intended for only those with farming interests, the vocational agriculture program today offers seven basic areas of instruction. They include production agriculture, sales and service, agricultural mechanics, agricultural products, horticulture, agricultural resources, forestry, beekeeping, and veterinary assistantships.

FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in vocational agriculture/agribusiness by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge gained in classes. A major emphasis of the FFA is the development of leadership skills and abilities to prepare young people for leadership roles in their agricultural careers.

To be a member of the FFA students must be enrolled in the vocational agriculture/agribusiness program in a high school or area vocational school. Students may retain their membership in the FFA following their graduation until age 21.

Pennsylvania has 20,500 FFA members, according to figures released by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. The following paragraphs tell of the activities a few of the chapters undertook this week to "tell the world" of the background and purpose of

Surplus sours dairy outlook

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER – Overflowing milk supplies are beginning to take their toll on some independent dairies, a number of dairy farmers, and even cooperative marketing associations. The reason is that increased supplies of milk are creating extraordinary marketing pressures.

Howard McDonald

Although it is widely acknowledged that 1978 will be a profitable year for dairy farmers, it's one of nervous anticipation for those who are involved in marketing the product. Some smaller milk handlers have begun to send out notices to some of their shippers that they won't be taking their milk after a certain date. In some cases, the smaller dairies are expected to close their doors, thus leaving even more dairymen without a place to sell their milk.

The severity of the situation was brought to light earlier this week when nearly 80 officers of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative met at the Bird-in-Hand Restaurant to assess the situation.

Eastern, the largest dairy cooperative in the East, and one of the largest in the nation, has felt the pinch and has been charging its members a special deduction to help with the increased marketing costs. Several other cooperatives are following similar programs.

Howard McDonald, general manager of Eastern, told the nearly 80 officers of District 8, which includes the region from Lebanon County southward into the state of

Farmer skipped in food price rise

By DIETER KRIEG

GETTYSBURG – The price of food at the retail level is expected to rise by six per cent but the farmer isn't likely to get any of that increase, according to Pennsylvania's Agriculture Secretary Kent Shelhamer. He got his figures from the United States Department of Agriculture and revealed his interpretation of them at the recent Pennsylvania-Maryland Roadside Marketing Conference, held here at the Sheraton Inn.

Shelhamer, himself a farmer and roadside marketer, announced however, that those who are in a position to sell direct to consumers may have the opportunity to share in the price rise.

Praising the direct marketing concept for its high efficiency, the state's agriculture chief cited USDA figures to bolster his opinion of roadside marketing. "Most fruits and vegetables sold in this state are shipped hundreds of miles," he began, "likewise with milk, and the average chicken purchased in the United States has traveled more than 1000 miles before it reaches the consumer's table."

Kent Shelhamer

Shelhamer has been pushing roadside marketing for a number of years and continues to work for greater development of the idea in the Keystone state. His lack of support from the federal level has him vocally upset, particularly since he believes Pennsylvania has one of the finest direct marketing programs to be found in the nation. "Last year," said the Secretary,

Bill Fisher is named a Pork All-American

By DIETER KRIEG

EAST EARL – Lancaster County pork producer Bill Fisher has been named a Pork All-American by the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council. The announcement came a week ago during the annual meeting of that group, held jointly with the Lancaster County Pork Producers Association's annual banquet at the Harvest Drive Restaurant near Intercourse.

Fisher, a 30-year old farmer who predicts the swine industry in Lancaster County will boom in coming years, received the honor on the basis of his achievements with swine and his involvement in professional and civic organizations. Married and the father of two children, the young farmer will get national recognition for his work when the American Pork Congress convenes its meeting in Kansas City, Mo. next month.

A day before Fisher was recognized by his fellow pork producers, his companions in the Garden Spot Young Farmers Association recognized him as their outstanding member. That award also came on the basis of his work with swine, as well as Charolais cattle and management of over 300 acres of crop and pasture land. Separate stories on both the pork producers' meeting and the Garden Spot Young Farmer Association

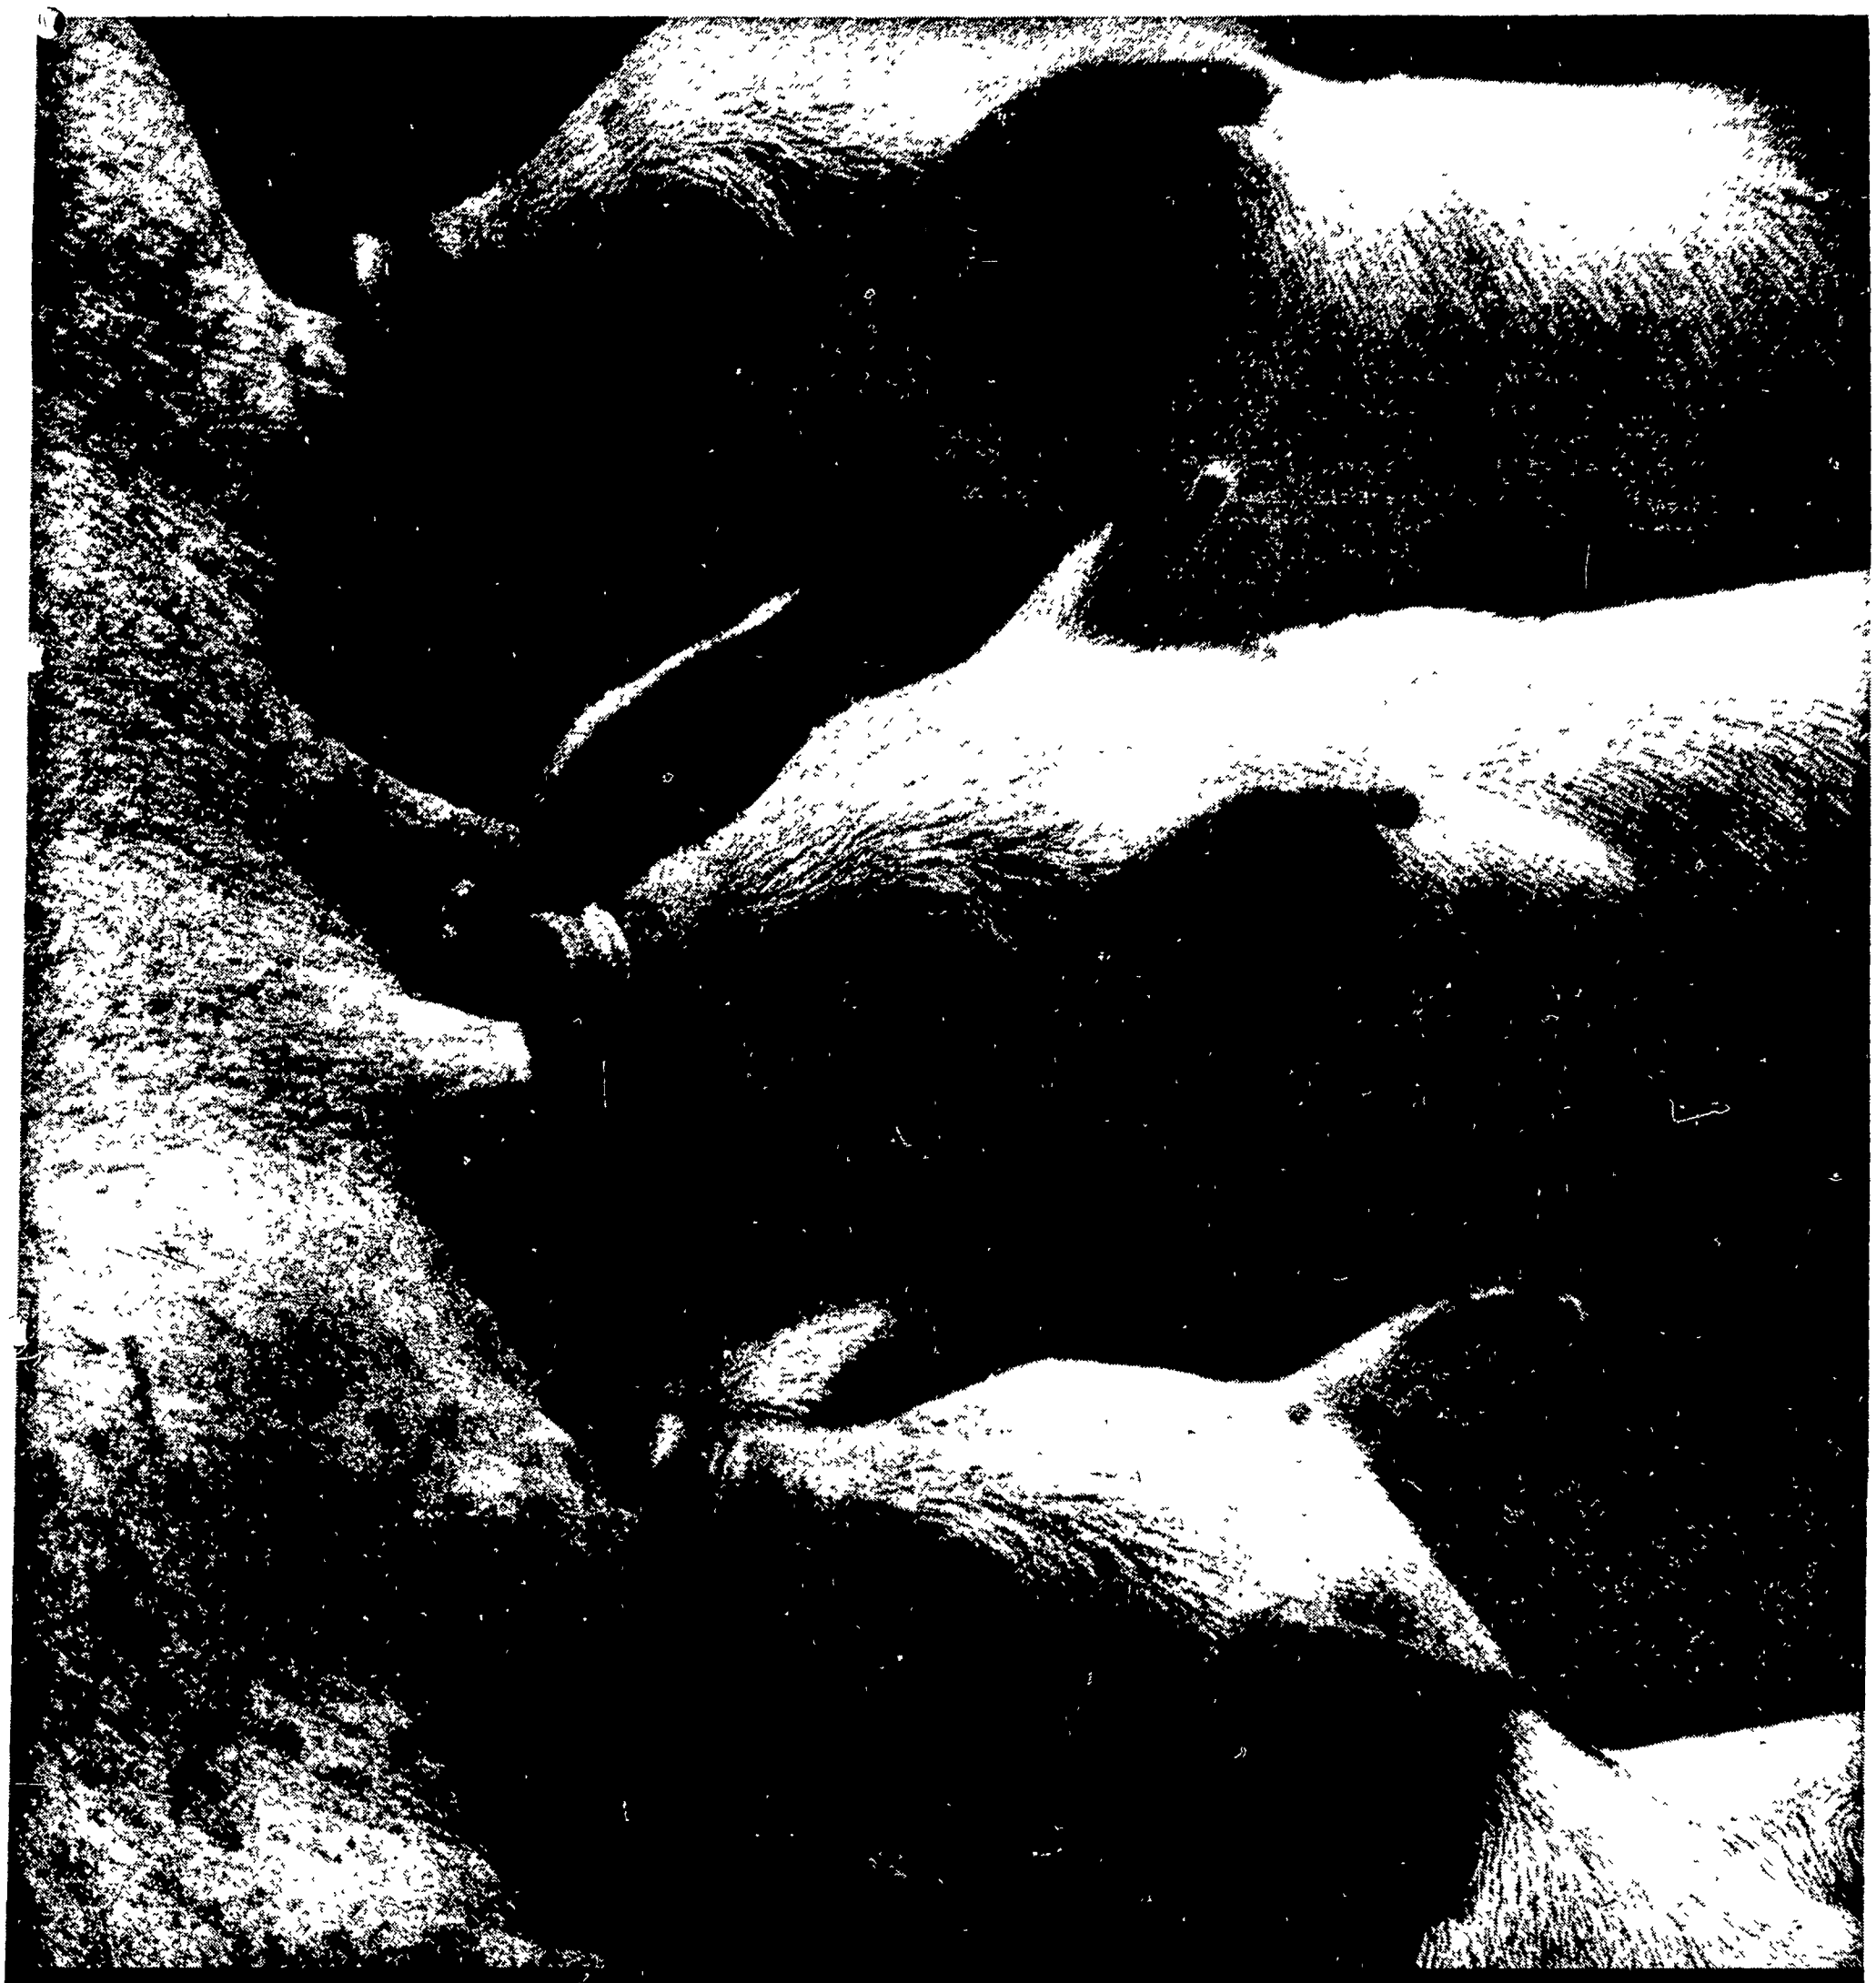
ABE DIFFENBACH 717-393-4464



From mother to market, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

Does pork production represent a sizeable part of your income? Are you ready to devote an hour or so of your time planning for a more profitable future?

If your answer to both questions is yes, you owe it to yourself to read what we have to say.

Unlike many other feed companies, we develop feeding and management programs for each individual operation.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your operation with you. Your goals. Your records. Whether you farrow and finish your own pigs or buy feeder pigs. Your management practices. The health and overall condition of your herd. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

With the aid of computers, we then design programs that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, improving performance, or both.

For example, many producers who switched from a competitive program to a Pennfield program have cut their feed costs and their hogs go to market sooner. In effect, the Pennfield program is putting more money in their pockets.

There is no cost—or obligation—for this unique service. But you must take the first step by writing or phoning us. Do it today.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

FEB. 27-MARCH 5, 1978

Fair, but maybe icy glare.

Clean your cellar now P.T Barnum purchased Jumbo the elephant March 4, 1882 . Last quarter of the moon March 2 Average length of days for the week, 11 hours, 19 minutes Wounded Knee Post seized by Indians Feb. 27, 1973 .. Skunks emerge now .. To find out a girl's faults, praise her to her girl friends (Benjamin Franklin)

Ask the Old Farmer: I read recently that raspberries nearly always take over the site of an abandoned sawmill They seem to grow profusely through the sawdust, chips, and bark Can you verify this? Y.K , Jamestown, N Y.

Yes, and they also flourish behind the old-fashioned outdoor privy, for similar reasons.

Home Hints: Mint scattered around haunts drives away mice

EDITORIAL COMMENTS By DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Don't take your market for granted

Just as the farmers' strike was beginning to pick up some steam in late December of last year, one Midwestern observer commented that the average farmer knows as much about marketing as an average sow knows about opera. The bottom line was that to some degree farmers were responsible for their own predicament. They didn't really understand the market. They overproduced, and a great oversupply of a commodity spells disaster in prices.

Admittedly, there is a lot more to the marketing picture, particularly with grain, where the government and large exporting firms have a big say in the economics of marketing. A few large grain exporting contracts could easily make the difference between profits and losses.

Not too many farmers in this part of the country can truly identify with the plight of Midwestern grain producers. But there's a lesson here for all farmers. How much does the farmer really know about marketing?

For months now, dairy farmers, for example, have heard and read stories of surplus production. Some comments have even come in the form of warnings. It is said that dairying has a dim - year or two coming its way in the near future if production isn't tailored to meet demands For some, in fact, that nightmare has already arrived Handfuls of shippers are being shut off around the country as many of the smaller dairies face the pressures of surplus supplies and tightening economics. Some of them will be closing their doors in the months to come, maybe even sooner than that.

These are sad situations. But they're happening Even the large dairy cooperatives, which guarantee their members a milk market, are buckling slightly under the pressures of surplus supplies and the resulting higher marketing costs

The last couple of months have seen dairy cooperatives impose special deductions on members' milk checks to help cover the extra costs of marketing. Special reserve funds are also being tapped. There's no doubt about it, profits are being sacrificed because of overproduction Fortunately for the dairyman, he has a guaranteed price support from the government and if he's a co-op member, he has further protection there. The grain farmer wasn't as lucky.

The question remains -- how much does the farmer really know about marketing? Everybody tries to get in on the action when the price is good, and it triggers an oversupply, which in turn triggers low prices It's an old, old story.

Farmers can afford themselves a little security in this regard, however. The answer is a willingness to spend a few dollars for the protection of a market. A strong and steady market. That is one of the things cooperatives do.

Sure it costs to join a cooperative. There's a deduction on every hundred pounds of milk, for example. That may be money the dairymen would like to have in his pocket. Too often some dairymen think of it as money down the drain He had better start thinking of it as an investment or insurance policy It can pay him big dividends

Consider, please, the hundreds of thousands -- even millions -- of dollars, you, the farmer, have invested in your operation Chances are the producer is willing to spend $20,000 for a tractor, $2000 for seed corn, $40,000 for a combine, $1500 for a cow, and so on All are generally regarded as necessary expenses. But when it comes to the costs of securing a market, the purse strings tighten. Yet, without a secure market, all of the previous investments are useless. Essentially, they could be the ones that went down the drain, instead of the membership dues for the cooperative

Cooperatives have a useful and commendable place in agriculture. Faithful members understand that Dairy farmer members are taking their extra deductions now because of the surplus situations. But let's not forget that several years ago the reverse was true. Premiums were paid to members to supplement the comparatively low milk prices at that time. This example points out what can and does happen when farmers invest a little of their income in cooperative efforts.

And, lest anyone get the wrong impression, cooperatives don't own the farmer who chooses to become a member. Instead, the farmer is part owner of the cooperative. The farmer is free to join, and free to leave at anniversary dates of his contract. There's nothing further involved No commitments to withhold farm products, shoot calves, or go on strike if something doesn't suit. There's no collective call for 100 per cent of parity either. The cooperative way of doing business has nothing in common with unionism, strikes, and the like.

The need for market security can further be exemplified by pointing out the importance creditors place on it. It's becoming more fashionable now for the banker to ask about your market when you go to the bank. There was a time when that aspect of farming didn't seem to matter much. It was taken for granted. But today it's vital. Not all marketing outlets of 1978 will be around in 1979. The banker knows it. So should the farmer. And he should think about investing a little towards market security. Furthermore, he should think twice before joining groups which offer market security under conditions which might not fit the marketing philosophy of the individual. That could lead to bitter emotional and moral conflicts, for example, if an organization calls for a "dump your milk" order and the farmer doesn't agree with that stand. There, again, the abstaining farmer is out of the marketing picture. Cooperatives don't get involved with such tactics.

While this editorial is not intended to endorse any particular cooperative, it is hoped that farmers will give some thought to their marketing options. It's a case of a little money spent in order to make all the other investments pay off a little better. Such consideration will not eliminate profits or losses, but it may very well save the food and fibre producer from one day being notified that he no longer has a place to sell his product.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Interpretations for Sunday School Lessons

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE SHEPHERD IS YOU!

Lesson for February 26, 1978

Background Scripture:
Psalms 23; 91

Devotional Reading:
Psalms 91; 1-10

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want..."

So begins the best-known of all the psalms, perhaps even the best-known single chapter in the Bible or any scriptures. We all know what comfort and assurance these words can release within us. We have read them, heard them, sung them and seen them depicted in great works of art, but they never seem to lose their power

It is customary to receive these familiar words as a personal message of assurance and hope After all, it was with that in mind that they were first written Today, however, just for this once, at least, I'd like for you to consider the 23rd Psalm from a different perspective.

He restores me

The image of God as the Good Shepherd is very significant for us Jesus himself picked this up and in the Gospel According to John we find him saying: "I am the good shepherd." As God meets our needs and protects his people, so Jesus also follows in that same role.

But although you and I are the "sheep" of whom both the psalmist and Jesus are speaking, our Lord makes it clear that there are times when we are to give up the role of being his "sheep" and become shepherds like him.

In John 21 Jesus says to Simon Peter, "Feed my lambs" and "Tend my sheep." In his farewell to the Ephesian elders, Paul proclaims: "Take heed to yourselves and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit has made you guardians, to feed the church of the Lord..." (Acts 20:28). And in 1 Peter 5:2 we hear this exhortation: "Tend the flock of God that is your charge ... And when the chief Shepherd is manifested you will obtain the unfading crown of glory."

The dark valley

Some will find it disturbing to think of Psalm 23 as a challenge as well as a comfort, but Jesus made it clear that discipleship is servanthood, even as he came, not to be ministered unto, but to minister. So, as the psalmist declares how God has restored his strength and hope, so he also calls us to a ministry of restoring others. As he speaks of the protection God gives him in the dark valleys, so the Chief Shepherd calls us to use our resources to protect others. As we are reminded of the overflowing blessings given new to us each day by a loving Shepherd, so we are challenged to share what we have received to abundantly bless the lives of others. And it is not enough for me to declare that "goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life," unless I am willing also to become a channel of goodness and mercy for those around me.

Yes, the Chief Shepherd is always there to help, comfort, and sustain us, but let us remember that he sometimes intends the shepherd to be you.

TO CREEP-FEED LAMBS

Sheep producers who plan to market some of their early lambs during the Easter season, should be feeding them extra grain, this can be done by providing a place where the lambs can enter but not the ewes In this area a grain mixture of corn and oats can be kept at all times This will result in heavier lambs for the high-priced Easter market Many breeders use the creep-feeders to bring their breeding replacements along faster, this is especially true if the lambs are to be showed or sold Extra good care of the young lambs, including worm control should pay dividends Market lambs prices have been very favorable early in the Spring

TO PREPARE FOR POSSIBLE FLOODING

As we all realize, there is a very heavy snow cover on the ground in most parts of Pennsylvania and the northeast Our weather has been very cold since the heavy snows and there has been very little melting If heavy rains, or very warm weather, should come in the next week or so, we could have some serious flooding conditions Folks in the flood zones should be on the alert for flooding forecasts and be prepared to protect their livestock and property A special leaflet on preparing for floods is available at our Penn State Extension Offices. I'd suggest that we get prepared for the worst, even though flood conditions may not occur.

TO PROTECT FISH IN FARM PONDS

Snow and ice covered ponds for any length of time can cause "Winter kill" of the fish. This happens when dissolved oxygen is depleted in the pond, when oxygen supplies fall below a certain level, the fish will suffocate Winter kill is not likely to happen in ponds that do not freeze completely, or that have a constant flow of water going through the pond Pond owners whose ponds have literally been sealed for the past two weeks, might clear some snow from the ice and chop holes in the ice and insert brush, logs, or wooden rails; this will permit sunlight and air to get to the water If fish come to the surface and gasp, they need more oxygen. Ponds with water depths of 10 feet or more will have less trouble that ponds that are only four to six feet deep.

You get better feed conversion and lower cost of gain with corn-soy and Vigortone.

If you're feeding hogs from birth-to-market, corn-soy and Vigortone will make you more money. Your figures will prove it.

Start out with more uniform litters at less cost with Vigortone's Sow Prep No. 4A. When feeding less than four lbs. of feed, use Sow Prep No. 54. You'll have big savings over self-feeding programs.

Then, save 50% on your pre-starter rations with Vigortone's Creep Wean No. 3. This highly potent pre-mix contains vitamins, minerals and amino acids that assure fast growth right through weaning. Your baby pigs will really go for this highly palatable pre-starter because you grind and mix it yourself — fresh.

Add your choice of antibiotic to your pre-starter, or use Creep Wean No. 3C with Mecadox.* It controls swine dysentery and bacterial swine enteritis.

At 45 pounds, put your pigs on Vigortone 16% starter ration. Your cost of gain will be lower, because you again prepare it yourself using homegrown feedstuffs and Vigortone.

Keep your pigs on corn-soy and Vigortone right on through growing and finishing. Your hogs are assured the essential balance and levels of amino acids, major minerals, trace minerals, and vitamins.

Make more money this year by lowering your feed costs from birth-to-market. Feed Vigortone fortified corn-soy rations.

Now is the time to compare

See your Vigortone dealer soon. He's ready to compare the performance of Vigortone's low-cost swine feeding programs with any other you name.

STAYING COMPETITIVE WILL BE THE ANSWER.

REPEAT — STAY COMPETITIVE. ALL INDICATIONS ARE THAT THINGS WILL BE TIGHT THE NEXT 24 MONTHS, WITH EGG PRICES HOVERING AROUND THE BREAK EVEN POINT FOR PRODUCERS.

1. Good sanitation, insect control, treatment of infection and disease, worming and rodent control all have to be carried on continuously for healthy birds and healthy profits.
2. Simply stated, good pullets peak high; poor ones do not.
3. The move from the pullet house to the layer house can be in some cases a severe stress and depress that potential.
4. A few chickens saved or lost certainly influences the potential return of the house.
5. Since feed intake is a poor guide for pre-peak layers we must seek a substitute and the best substitute is in house temperature.
6. Feed intake and performance fortification levels -
   The Purina Laying Chow Bio-Rating gives the relative fortification of amino acid, vitamins and minerals. Bio Layena 100 is the base product. For example, Bio Layena 114 contains 7% more fortification than Bio Layena 107 and 14% more than Bio Layena 100. Each of the above feed intake ranges represent approximately 7% less feed consumption than the previous range. Thus a drop of 7% in feed intake (approximately 1½ pounds/100 hens/day) is compensated for by an increase of 7% in ration fortification.
   In this way daily intake of amino acids, vitamins and minerals remain constant. The correct level of fortification is exactly matched to the hen's feed intakes. If during stress conditions a more highly fortified ration is desired, just choose the amount of extra fortification by checking the Bio-Rating of each Purina Laying Chow. Always use local judgement on whether to change the ration, since feed intakes will vary due to wastage, strain, etc.
7. Failure to reach the highest level of production and to maintain high levels many times is due to disease. Therefore it is essential that prior to this time the flocks should have received sufficient vaccination properly administered to provide full and complete resistance.

CONCLUSION: Nutritional programs and management practices during housing through 36 weeks of age can have considerable effect on peak and subsequent performance. It is our challenge to start with a quality pullet and do nothing that harms its "performance potential". But too we must be concerned about not feeding excesses of nutrients that are costly and hurt income potential.

Higher costs hit egg producers

DECATUR, Ga. – Many egg producers have received notification of carton price increases. This comes on top of increased costs for labor, transportation, energy, capital, and all other areas involved in operating egg production, reports United Voices, newsletter of the United Egg Producers, headquartered here.

"According to U.E.P. an egg price increase of one cent per dozen means 1.1 million dollars per week to the egg industry. In-plant processing costs alone have gone from 11.56 in 1974 to 13.7 in 1977 and are expected to rise to 14.5-15 cents by July 1978. These costs are determined by Dr. George Rogers, USDA Poultry Group, Economic Research Service, Washington, D.C., and substantiated by many in-plant records.

U.E.P. has asked Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to seek restoration of funds in the Department budget which would allow the National Poultry Improvement Plan to continue. An appropriation for NPIP was not included when the proposed budget was announced by President Carter. Last year's NPIP budget was $174,000.

In a letter to the Secretary, James Fleming, U.E.P. vice president for governmental relations, suggested that the small request may have caused it to be lost in the preparation of the $17.7 billion budget. The plan has been successful in its cooperation with industry to control pullorum and typhoid in chickens.

In letters to the chairmen of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees, U.E.P. this week asked that the 1977 Farm Bill be amended to include poultry under provisions of the Emergency Feed Program. The amendment may be pushed through this session of Congress and provide retroactive provisions to affected egg and poultry producers.

According to Fleming, poultry has been excluded from similar programs since first approved by Congress back in 1959. However, since that time, changes in the egg industry have seen more and more producers of poultry also producing sizable quantities of feed for their chickens. The House passed version of the Farm Bill included poultry last year, but the senate version did not. Conferees accepted the Senate Bill which was eventually approved and signed by the President.

Fleming said it may be difficult getting a special amendment but he believes the case for poultrymen is better today then ever in the past. He encouraged affected producers to contact their representatives on the matter.

Change noted in grain reserve program

By JOANNE SPAHR

HARISBURG – Beginning March 1, farmers will no longer have to wait for their 1977-crop barley, oats, or wheat loans to mature or for their purchase agreements to expire to participate in the federal grain reserve program.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has announced that beginning on that date, those crops may be placed directly into grain reserve. Previously, farmers who wished to enter grain in the program needed to wait until a government loan on the crop matured.

The final date to obtain a loan and become eligible to enter the reserve on 1977-crop barley, oats, and wheat is March 31, 1978. Farmers with 1976-crop barley, oats, and wheat not yet under a loan may request price support by February 28, 1978, obtain a loan and immediately enter the reserve.

For 1976 corn and sorghum, the grain may be placed in the reserve program through April 30, 1978. 1977-corn and sorghum producers may request price support through May 31, 1978 and be eligible to enter the grain reserve program.

Secretary Bergland has also announced a change in the farm storage facility loan set up for reserve program participants which will increase the amount of storage for which they may qualify.

Under the change, a farmer will be able to obtain a loan for a storage structure to store two years' crop production. However, in determining eligibility, existing capacity used to store grain in the reserve program will be excluded. Previously, in determining eligibility, all existing facilities were included.

On February 8 the storage payments for grains held in the farmer-owned reserve program increased from 20 to 25 cents per bushel per year for major grains, and from 15 to 19 cents for oats.

According to information from Secretary Bergland, farmers now storing grain in the reserve will be offered new contracts to reflect the 25 cent rate.

At the present time, price support loan activity in Pennsylvania indicates that farmers have placed 5,498,063 bushels of corn; 166,674 bushels of wheat; 32,879 bushels of barley; 157,694 bushels of oats; 61,974 bushels of soybeans, and 9928 hundredweight of sorghum in the annual loan program. Four thousand six-hundred-forty -two bushels of wheat and 39,629 bushels of corn have been placed in the grain reserve program through February 17.

Nationally, producers have placed 513 million bushels of wheat, 927 million bushels of corn, 191 million bushels of sorghum, and 210 million bushels of other grains produced in 1977 under price support loan through February 8, 1978.

Price supports are a marketing tool for farmers to use in helping to obtain fair market prices, promote orderly marketing, and provide price floors for commodities. Full details of the price support programs are available at County offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

LIFE on the farm

By Dieter Krieg

Ordinarily, my father wouldn't have allowed the frail little calf to stay on the farm

Born to a black and white heifer of questionable parentage, and sired by a Guernsey bull, that alone was enough reason for Dad to send the calf to the auction.

I named the calf "Lucky" because she was fortunate to be alive. But that wasn't all. I was lucky to have her too. Although she represented everything in dairy cattle breeding that was to be avoided, Dad consented to allowing me to raise her. It was really something, especially since Dad knew he'd never get a return on that investment His prediction turned out to be very accurate. "Lucky" never milked much when she freshened two years later.

But "Lucky" was special nonetheless. She was the first calf I could call my own, and like other first loves, she wasn't to be forgotten.

"Lucky" was a sad sight on that day when she was born Talk of not keeping her had been heard numerous times in previous weeks. Sympathy grew swiftly, however, as I watched her in her bed of straw She looked almost as though she knew she wasn't born into a home on the farm.

It didn't take long before "Lucky" and I were the best of companions. All it took was Dad's assurance that I could keep her. From that moment on, she received the best of care. Aside from the regular feedings of warm milk, she was petted and brushed and even talked to. Watching her stand and walk on thin, unsteady legs was a delight. Later, when her legs strengthened and she knew her friends, she became very playful when we entered her pen. She was a happy little heifer, and just like a human being, she wanted to share her enthusiasm for life Especially life on the farm

MEDICINE AND MANAGEMENT

By CARL TROOP, VMD

You can help the vet and cut costs too

Farmers are searching frantically for any place where they can cut costs or receive the optimum returns for any particular investment.

One of these areas is veterinary services and medicine. Your veterinary bills may also seem extremely high, just as do parts, hay, and bedding. But unlike some other areas there are some things which can be done to lower the cost of veterinary service or at least being sure of getting the most for your veterinary dollar.

First, lets look at the veterinarian. He has spent an average of eight years education after high school at a cost of approximately $5000.00 per year plus living costs. Add to this what he could have been making if he had been working those eight years and you have considerable investment to make up. This he has to do over the years of practice by using his knowlege plus continuing experience in providing farmers his veterinary services. He uses his time to make his living; his livelihood. This is the big item, "his time." It is his "time" spent applying acquired knowledge and experience for which he is paid. And anything you can do to decrease the time he has to spend doing unnecessary work is bound to decrease costs and increase the economical efficiency of his visit. To the veterinarian, time is money.

Some specific examples. In our practice there are many jobs charged by the piece dehorning, reproductive exams, vaccinating, etc. However, there is a standard amount of time we feel it should take to do each item. If the time runs over that because we have insufficient help or have to chase animals over large areas to catch them, or the farmers do not have adequate facilities, we have no choice but to charge for the added time needed to chase, catch, wrestle, or whatever.

Many farmers just don't realize the busy schedules most veterinarians have. Many veterinarians have more work than they can handle anyway, so why shouldn't they give a break to the farmer who has help available, pens bedded, heifers tied or closely confined, animals to dehorn in one area instead of scattered over the farm, records readily available, etc. Remember, your veterinarian is charging for his time. Make that time efficiently used.

Another help is for the farmer or someone who knows what is going on to be present. There are often problems or questions which need answering, or just help needed. If it is not possible to be present, leave a note with complete information. If any kind of examination is needed leave complete information on date fresh, bred, and general performance. If in tie stalls be sure the neck chain or rope is in good condition. There have been many times I have been working around the head where the rope was only holding by a single strand or two. It doesn't take much to break these and guess who pays for chasing the cow around the barn and back into her stall.

Another area which has caused increases in the cost of veterinary services is the loss of many drug sales. Veterinarians used to be able to provide part of their income from dispensing most of the medications used on the farms (mastitis tubes, pills, etc.). The drug trucks on the road have changed that so most veterinarians have subsequently increased fees for services to compensate for the loss in drug sales. Most farmers need a veterinarian. If they have decided to support a veterinarian plus a drug peddler, that is their business but they could cut their costs by supporting only one. In our practice we give price breaks to clients who purchase most of their drugs from us. Others choose to support both. That is their option. However, they are paying twice.

So far we have been discussing only what the farmer can do to increase efficeincy of the veterinary services, to provide the most for his veterinary dollar. I would like to hear from farmers as to what the veterinarian can do or change to be more efficient or effective. Any ideas, suggestions, or complaints please send to Medicine and Management c/o Lancaster Farming, Box 366, Lititz. I will be glad to comment on all reasonable replies, whether agree or disagree.

The most important thing to remember is, we need each other. The better we understand each other, the greater our help for each other can be.

Grant urges rejection of Canal treaties

WASHINGTON, D.C., – U.S. Senators were urged recently to reject the Panama Canal treaties by the leader of the nation's largest general farm organization.

Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said the Panama Canal is vital to the security and commerce of the U.S. and an important factor in world trade. Both, he said, would be jeopardized by an endorsement of the new treaties.

"Fixed payments to Panama authorized by the treaties will mean higher canal tolls on grain, thereby decreasing the competitive advantage of U.S. grain in the world market," Grant said in letters to all members of the Senate.

Grant pointed out that the canal is a barrier to northward movement of diseased cattle.

"The continuing existence of foot-and-mouth disease on the South American continent poses a real threat to the livestock industry of the U.S.," Grant said. "The canal also is a barrier to other livestock diseases now found in South America and which have not yet been introduced into North America."

Grant called for a study to be made on the possibility of an alternate route to the existing canal.

"For now," he added, "the proper protection, maintenance and operation of the canal require complete control by the United States. Therefore, we oppose ratification of the Panama Canal treaties."

Roadside marketers reveal their sales pitch

By DIETER KRIEG

GETTYSBURG -- In roadside marketing, even the seemingly insignificant costs of a single paper bag are part of the profit formula. A bag saved is a penny saved, and in a day's or week's time, it all adds up.

Roadside marketers from Pennsylvania and Maryland were gathered here last week to share their ideas on the subject. The occasion was the eleventh annual Roadside Marketing Conference. Three days of presentations and a large display area offered the more than 300 roadside marketers a variety of new knowledge and ideas. Several men shared their sales strategies.

A Bucks County fruit grower, for example moves his surplus supplies of sweet corn by offering a dozen free for every dozen sold. He finds that it makes the customer buy more.

Fred Funk

A Lancaster County grower, on the other hand, says he prefers to begin sales of sweet corn at comparatively low prices, and then raising them gradually as the season advances.

George Huber of Bradshaw, Md. uses the opposite approach. He stresses a high volume business based on his costs and yields. His formula is to calculate investments and estimate yields just before harvest time and then cutting prices to the bone if that's what it takes to move his perishable goods. Often times he attempts to have a lead item to draw customers to his store.

The most important item in Howard Kerr's profit formula is flexibility. A fruit grower from Randallstown, Md., Kerr allows himself several alternatives to get the fruit from the tree to the consumer. He has found different packaging and displays to be helpful, for example. "You have to be flexible with your operation in order to max out," he emphasized before his audience in the Gettysburg Sheraton Inn.

One of Kerr's tactics is to skim his best fruit from the orchards before routine picking begins. This results in extra large, premium quality fruit which command top prices in his store. With peaches, for example, he was able to sell the custom picked specimens for $7.50 per half bushel, compared to $4.50 per half bushel for the mass picked peaches.

pound bags at tail-gate markets in Baltimore. On a half-bushel basis, Kerr says his cull peach price comes out to $8. Still higher returns are realized through the pick-your-own program, where the equivalent half-bushel price can be as high as $22.50. While the customer pays only a fraction of that price, Kerr counts the savings he has in labor to come up with his standardized return. He does acknowledge, however, that the pick-your-own program results in some damaged trees which would not have been hurt if hired pickers were on the job.

In all phases of his fruit retailing business, Kerr stresses quality. It's essential if the grower wants the Future Farmers of America. Lancaster Farming salutes the young men and women who are preparing themselves for a life of service to mankind.

SOUTHWESTERN FFA

Accustomed to picking up trash during FFA Week, the Southwestern FFA had to come up with a different idea this year since the group is covered with snow. As a result of some brainstorming, the York County chapter came up with a "tractorcade."

Six family farm tractors were driven parade-style into the school grounds on Tuesday morning and lined up in front of the sprawling building to call attention to the contributions made to the academic program by the Future Farmer activities. Drivers had painted signs to adorn the tractors, carrying messages like: "Help support agriculture's new generation - FFA," "Southwestern for agriculture's new generation - FFA," and "National FFA week."

OCTORARA FFA

Octorara High School FFA in Chester County worked on several projects to disseminate information about FFA around their student body. Along with a radio broadcast for a local station, they distributed FFA pocket calendars throughout the school, put up posters, and constructed window exhibits. The exhibit covered all phases of agriculture and included the projects the FFA members complete and the competitions they can enter. It also incorporated a slide presentation on "What is FFA?"

SOLANCO FFA

The 50th anniversary flag of the FFA waved in the breezes above the high school this week. It was one of several ways the school's FFA Chapter told southern Lancaster Countians about the proud program of the FFA.

"America's greatest return in investment will come in the form of its youth. The FFA ... in business of managing that investment ... insures a new generation for agriculture." That statement is one of a series of announcements Solanco's FFA members broadcasted on the school's public address system each morning.

Solanco brought additional pride to the FFA earlier this year when Chapter Vice-President Lester Hershey finished second in a national medallion design contest. The winning medallion was issued last November at the National Convention in honor of the organization's 50th year. Hershey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hershey, Kirkwood R1, speaks modestly of the honor, explaining that he probably wouldn't have entered the contest if it hadn't been for his being ill one week and not having anything to do. He sketched a design which depicted an outline of the United States and its major agricultural products, surrounded by lettering which paid tribute to the FFA. The second place in a national contest took Hershey by complete surprise. He received a check for $100 for his efforts.

Preparing a radio spot in honor of FFA week are (left to right): Kevin Smoker, Merle Nolt, and Lin Frey from the Cloister FFA of Ephrata High School.

CLOISTER FFA

Ephrata High School's Cloister FFA was also busy this week taping spots for a local radio station. As part of a promotion, they were featured on the front page of a local shopping newspaper.

WARWICK FFA

Warwick's FFA chapter is undergoing renovation at the present time, and this year celebrated FFA week with a display in the high school. To honor the organization's 50th anniversary, the Lancaster County also took part in recreational activities.

STATE COLLEGE FFA

A display at the Nittany Mall and square dancing exhibitions is what the Little Lions FFA Chapter had to offer for FFA Week. The square dancers, who go by the name of the "Centre Swingers," perform for social studies classes, elementary schools, and during FFA Week, at the senior citizens home in Centre County.

The chapter also held a simulated parliamentary procedures meeting this week for the benefit of other clubs in the school. Participants were Matt Barrena, Stacy Sunday, Debbie Deibler, Janet Hogan, Dan Catherman, Ed Weaver, and Kim Rossi.

Farmer skipped

"USDA spent $200 million for agricultural research, and only $1 million of that went towards marketing research." What's more, of the funds provided by USDA for direct market development in individual states, Pennsylvania got none.

"With food surpluses, wouldn't it be better to take a closer look into markets and marketing methods?" Shelhamer asked the assembled group of farmers. The Secretary believes American farmers would do well to have more research take place in marketing. It's an area which thus far has been largely overlooked.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture annually publishes a list of roadside markets in the state and Shelhamer urges any farmer who's handling his products in that manner to be included on that document. It'll be made available to consumers. To get on the list, farmers should contact the Department at 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg.

The way Shelhamer sees it, direct sales are an excellent way to market a product for those in a position to do so. What it takes is quality products at reasonable prices, and a good store location. For those who are fortunate enough to have this combination, food price increases will tie in directly to their earnings. That is not necessarily true for farmers who wholesale their commodities.

"If you're going to succeed, you're going to have to do it yourself," Shelhamer stated flatly. He does not see much hope in government programs and adds that USDA's priorities are continuing to shift more and more to the consumer and welfare side. Human nutrition, food safety, and integrated pest control have become the favored research projects, Shelhamer reported. In the budget, public assistance (welfare) is taking the bulk of the money at the expense of true agricultural projects.

"Farming should be and must be considered as an arm of the economy," the Secretary continued. "Farmers are not getting a fair share of the food dollar." Again citing USDA figures, Shelhamer noted that only 38 cents of the average retail food dollar is returned to the farmer. In some cases that figure drops to as low as 27 cents and even less. "Something is dreadfully wrong," the Columbia County fruit grower exclaimed.

Despite the lack of support from the federal level, roadside marketing is well on the way in Pennsylvania, Shelhamer said. "Be proud of what you are and what you're doing," he told the farmers.

Questioned before his departure on how the federal government could help Pennsylvania's direct marketing programs, Shelhamer answered: "With a warehouse program and temporary employees to help the farmers get started." Shelhamer has been instrumental in initiating a few of the so-called "tail-gate markets." One such marketing outlet was started in center-city Philadelphia last year and ended up being more successful than anyone expected. "Consumers are learning that marketing gimmicks employed by the big chain stores are costing them dollars," Shelhamer explained.

The Agriculture Department head told the group that the average return on investment to agriculture last year was a meager 3.5 per cent. Direct marketing, he said, can help the profit picture. "As a roadside marketer, you're tired of giving your product and profits to middlemen," Shelhamer continued, noting that the six per cent increase in food prices he alluded to earlier was all due to labor and transportation costs and sales gimmicks.

"As roadside marketers, you can set your price to be largely in line with what that product sells for elsewhere. You can be competitive and cash in on a little bit of that increase that's otherwise going to go to the middleman," he said.

The Secretary was careful to point out, however, that the country's production, distribution, and retailing systems could not function without middlemen. "We need them," he assured the audience. What he'd like to see is a fairer share of the food dollar and a streamlined distribution system. Shelhamer finds it particularly ironic to trasnport agricultural goods for thousands of miles when fuel shortages and environmental concerns are much in the news.

Pennsylvania roadside marketers account for as much as $120 million dollars worth of business per year. Milk juggers alone account for an estimsted $40 million annually.

More than 300 roadside marketers from Pennsylvania and Maryland visited here last week to learn and share ideas. Jim Toothman of Penn State, Harold Hoecker of the University of Maryland, and Robert McMillen of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association were chief organizers of the 3-day conference.

Bill Fisher

appear inside this edition of Lancaster Farming.

Upon graduation from Garden Spot High School in 1965, Fisher took on full-time employment at Stauffer Homestead Farms, near here, where his father, Earl, is overall manager. The younger Fisher is in charge of 125 sows, 25 gilts, several boars, and all of the young pigs which comprise the swineherd. In addition, he has full responsibility of field work at the 380-acre estate, and works closely with his father in the decision making process. He also does all of the veterinary work with the beef breeding herd.

Fisher's interest in hogs has enabled him to increase the Stauffer Homestead swine herd from 40 sows in 1965 to 125 today. Two nurseries have been added to the operation to help improve litter averages and performance. As many as 1800 feeder pigs are marketed annually. Most of them are sold privately to area farmers. Some 200 stay on the farm, and the remainder are sent to local auctions.

"We raise all of our own replacement gilts," the award winning pork producer continued, "and we buy two boars a year" to bring in new blood. It's a program that has worked well, he concedes, although breeding problems plague him each year, particularly during the Winter months.

"Some of our sows aren't getting bred when I want them to, and that leads to further complications all the way down the line. It upsets farrowing schedules and it costs extra money to keep and feed them," the young man explained. Fisher believes part of the problem is the weather and general conditions outside. Although he is thinking seriously of building indoor breeding facilities, his sows are still bred outdoors. He runs one boar per pen of four sows.

Pigs have been Fisher's number one interest in agriculture and he looks to a bright future of the business in Lancaster County and neighboring areas. "The hog industry here has just begun," he says confidently. His reasons are that Lancaster County is close to the markets, hogs will work well into any operation as "an extra," and they offer a better balance of cash flow. "I look for swine production to go the same route as poultry production did," he predicts. Some of the changes he foresees for the Pennsylvania pork industry are more confinement setups and sharpened management abilities.

The hog industry, Fisher admits, can't complain about prices right now. In fact, he believes that if anything, producers should possibly be concerned about prices being a bit on the high side. "Anything over 40 cents is a good price for hogs," he continued, "and at 50 cents and cheap corn, we're talking of potential disaster in a couple of years," he added.

The keys to success in the hog business are a willingness to work extra hours when the herd demands it, paying attention to details, and having the sows in the right flesh condition at farrowing time, said Fisher. As Pennsylvania's only Pork All-American for 1978 and being one of just 31 in the entire country this year, his opinions carry some weight. The young man is constantly on the lookout for better ways of management, breeding, feeding, and-marketing. Most of his new information, he says, comes from reading magazines, and attending events such as the upcoming Lancaster County Swine Producers Day. He's willing to try ideas which he thinks might fit into his operation.

Among his chief aims for the near future are improvements in litter averages, faster gains, higher quality hogs, and more efficient feeding and breeding techniques. The present litter average is seven piglets per sow. His farrowing schedule allows for two litters per sow per year. To improve his feeding program, he feeds his sows in individual stalls during the first and last months of their gestation period. "These are the most critical months," the Pork All-American explained.

Ideally, Fisher likes to keep his sows on a 4-week farrowing schedule throughout the year, except in December, which he skips because of the cold weather. Breeding difficulties throw that schedule off somewhat, he admitted.

Despite his breeding problems, Fisher still finds it more economical to keep a sow in the herd, rather than begin anew with a fresh gilt. "As long as a sow is giving me good litters and she's not too far off schedule, I'll keep her for as many as 16 to 18 litters," he commented.

For his replacement gilts, the Lancaster County swine breeder works primarily with purebred Hampshire sows bred to crossbred or purebred boars. He prefers the white breeds and claims there's a premium for them at the market.

Sows which have given birth to litters stay in their crates for up to three weeks. Fisher allows them access to the outdoors daily for feeding. They're limit fed, receiving no more than 10 pounds of a grain ration per day for the duration of their lactation. The feed mixture, which is composed largely of home-raised crops and ground and mixed right at the farm, consists of 250 pounds of a 40 per cent protein concentrate, 200 pounds of alfalfa hay, and 1550 pounds of ground corn per ton. The protein supplement is balanced for minerals and vitamins. The ration has worked satisfactorily for Fisher for 12 years and remains largely unchanged. "I won't change it unless I feel it isn't working," he told Lancaster Farming.

Upon release from the farrowing crates, the sows and respective litters are moved to one of the two nursery facilities. Each pen is spacious enough to accomodate two sows and their litters. They remain here for another five to seven weeks, after which time the sows are moved out to pasture and bred several days later.

Seed corn supplies in good shape for Spring

By KENDACE BORRY

LANCASTER – Seed corn should be available to farmers in the Lancaster Farming area, according to reports from area seed salesmen given this week. While dealers admitted that a few kernel sizes may be sold out at the present time, they hastened to add that the availability is very good generally.

Most companies noted a slight price rise in the cost of seed corn this year, with the increase ranging from about three to six per cent. Reasons for this raised price included the factors of general inflation, transportation, taxes, and labor costs.

Earl Rohrer, of P.L. Rohrer and Bros., Inc., quoted their seed corn availability as good overall, with a few varieties short in kernel sizes. Citing general inflation as the probelm with rising prices, he noted an approximate six per cent rise. While he had no major breakthroughs to report in new development in seed corn production, he mentioned that the research department is working to improve the seed.

Representing Hoffman Seeds, George B. Steele, quoted their seed corn supply as "fair to good", depending on the individual hybrid. A price increase of around three per cent was noted. Steele also mentioned that supplies were slowed down by the snowy weather but reassured farmers that the seed would be ready when wanted.

Some select varieties are booked up, Rawlings Nelson, representing Todd Seeds related although he added that the company is not turning down any orders. Also quoting an average three per cent higher price this year, he said that production costs were up. Todd Seeds is getting into their distribution of seed corn now.

Pfizer Genetics, has a good availability of seed, according to spokesman Don Hoover, and his company is having no problem meeting the demand. Quoting prices as "roughly the same," Hoover added that their research department is continuing the company's high standards.

Dekalb, represented by Ed Wilson, said availability is very good generally. Prices are up about six per cent, with a variety of factors causing the increase. He said about 60 per cent of the seed has been delivered to the dealers, and about 30 per cent of that is already in the customer's hands. As with last year, he continues to expect early deliveries by his company.

Homer Martin, of Stanford Seed Co., also quoted his company's corn seed availability as "good". Martin related that he thought the company's prices were slightly lower per unit this year. He added that around 90 per cent of the expected seed sales have already been made this year.

Dealers spoke of the varieties of seed corn sold and told that there seems to be more of a tendancy for farmers to buy upright leaf and prolific hybrids this year. Always looking for ways to increase production, the trend seems to be favoring these types of corn for future use.

The qualities most wanted in a hybrid by farmers include such features as disease-resistance, stress-resistance, good overall quality, and excellent standability.

It won't be too long before the seed corn is planted and those long reaching stalks of corn are pushing their way to the sky.

N.J. meat packer under injunction

NEW YORK, N.Y. -- Borden Packing Co., Inc., Trenton, N.J., has been placed under a preliminary injunction which prevents it from purchasing livestock except on a cash basis.

U.S. District Judge George H. Barlow ordered the firm to remain under the injunction until a final order has been issued through an administrative complaint filed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) under the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act.

The firm, which purchases livestock – mostly hogs – in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, had been under a temporary restraining order since January 13.

Borden Packing Co., and its president, Lawrence Marval, have a right to a hearing on the charges in the administrative complaint. If the charges are proven, they would be placed under a cease and desist order. They could also be ordered to pay a fine.

The P&S Act is a fair trade practices law. It promotes and maintains fair and open competition in the marketing of livestock, poultry, and meat.

Pride and progress

Chapter capitalized on its heritage this week by holding their county FFA banquet and awarding "Apple Degrees." The unique degree is symbolic of outstanding achievement and leadership. All FFA chapters in Adams County participated in the event.

Another activity which drew attention to the FFA this week was a dress up day. All members showed up at school on Friday with their official FFA trousers, ties, and jackets.

OWEN J. ROBERTS FFA

A chapter meeting to induct all new chapter farmer members was held on Thursday as part of the activities to celebrate the golden anniversary of FFA in this Chester Co. group. Twenty-five youth were formally made a part of the Pottstown based FFA chapter.

The group also worked on making several radio tapes a week ago which were played on the local radio station. The purpose of these tapes was to instruct and remind the public of the various ways that FFA is involved in the agricultural businesses today.

The showcase located in the high school lobby was also taken over by the chapter members and decorated so that all who passed could see the involvement of the group. Projects and activities were shown and described, with many pictures included of events of the past year.

KUTZTOWN FFA

Several displays throughout the Kutztown Area High School and downtown area were exhibited as part of that chapter's celebration of FFA's golden 50 years. Members of the Berks County organization established the exhibits in order to show the community and school personnel the many and varied activities that FFA is involved in.

The chapter also distributed FFA pins and notebooks to school faculty and community personnel to further acquaint the Kutztown area with the work that the FFA is doing.

GRASSLAND FFA

According to Elvin Huyard, president of the Grassland FFA chapter of Garden Spot High School, FFA Week was celebrated for the past eight days by a wide array of activities. On Wednesday all members wore their distinctive blue jackets. Throughout the rest of the week the chapter ran TV spot announcements as well as newspaper articles in local Lancaster County papers, distributed brochures to local agribusinesses for mailings, and used FFA napkins in the cafeteria of the high school They also set up a display in the showcase of the main lobby

PENN MANOR FFA

Penn Manor High School responded to FFA week by taping a four to five minute radio show for WDAC, a Lancaster County radio station Along with their radio presentation, the active members also set up ' low displays As part of annual FFA week ' bration, judging for the winner of the chain gilt and chain lamb also took place with the chapter's star greenhand judged on Monday evening.

On February 18, the opening day of the national celebration, the chapter was responsible for the Lancaster County meats judging contest held at Kunzler Co , Inc., Lancaster.

TWIN VALLEY FFA

A flag raising ceremony involving FFA chapter officers and a representative from the administration was part of the celebration of National FFA Week at the Twin Valley High School, Elverson. The Berks County group participated in the exercise on Washington's Birthday, recognizing the first president's involvement in agriculture.

As an additional part of the celebration, apples were given to all faculty members in the high school. Again, the apples represented not only a contribution in the field of agriculture, but reflected on the heritage that FFA can claim.

RED LION FFA

The Red Lion FFA Chapter began FFA Week with a flag raising ceremony on Feb. 17. York County's congressman Bill Goodling was on hand for the occasion, as were school officials. Prior to running the flag up the pole, Goodling spoke briefly about the merits of the FFA program and the opportunities it offers for young Americans. The entire ceremony was carried into all of the classrooms at Red Lion High School via closed circuit television.

Morning devotions during FFA Week included informative and inspiring messages about the FFA. A trophy exhibit in the school told of the pride and progress the chapter has had.

A third aspect of the observance involved a county-wide FFA display at the York Mall for which Red Lion was largely responsible.

OXROD FFA

The Oxford FFA Chapter celebrated FFA Week by distributing pamphlets and pens to children in the school district. Their aim was to acquaint younger students with the FFA and to perhaps inspire genuine interest in the program. Materials were supplied by the National FFA headquarters in Arlington, Va.

Another idea the chapter had, but was unable to carry out as of Wednesday of this week, was the distribution of bumper stickers which proclaim the worthiness of the Future Farmers of America

Another part of their celebration involved radio messages over station WCOJ in Coatesville In all, eight tapes were made by members of the Oxford FFA Chapter The short programs highlighted FFA programs, activities, and personal experiences of the individuals who did the taping. Future plans of the participating FFA members were also included

TULPEHOCKEN FFA

Fifty years of FFA work were shown in displays in the school and throughout the community at Tulpehocken Area High School The purpose of the displays was to bring to the public's attention what the FFA has done not only nationally, but also in the Berks County area. The displays were constructed by members of the FFA chapter.

KENNARD-DALE FFA

York County's Kennard-Dale FFA Chapter, Fawn Grove, proclaimed National FFA Week through big billboards, posters, brochures, and bulletin board displays. Several huge posters decorated billboards in the school district. Special brochures about the FFA were circulated last Sunday in the area's churches and posters were put up in businesses and shops. The bulletin boards in school told more of the FFA story to interested students.

Due to the unusual amount of snow that descended on Pennsylvania this year, and the resulting shift in scheduling, the Kennard-Dale Chapter was unable to hold a special all-school assembly this week. That event, explains instructor Charles Wright, will feature a cow milking contest open to all students as well as other agricultural activities. Plans are to hold the assembly in the near future.

TEVOCA FFA

Brownstown Vo-Tech School's FFA treated the week similar to Warwick with a display in the school. That window exhibit features booklets on the organization as well as awards and other FFA paraphenalia Since the FFA students at Brownstown are involved in floriculture, their exhibit also featured some green plants to dress it up.

DOVER FFA

York County, in general, had a fairly active campaign going in honor of FFA's golden anniversary. Starting yesterday, they set up a county FFA exhibit at the York Mall which will run all day, today At that mall, there will be displays, representatives of various chapters, and a slide presentation depicting the whole of the FFA program.

At Dover High School, alone, the FFA Chapter planned a bus trip to tour the National FFA Center in Alexandria, Va. Along with the tour of the Center, the group was scheduled to tour Mount Vernon and the National Rifle Association in Washington, D.C.

As a tribute to FFA in the school, the chapter members also constructed a window exhibit.

NORTHERN YORK CO. FFA

Northern York County High School FFA publicized the benefits of the FFA for outsiders, and purchased some new equipment for themselves in honor of FFA Week.

To publicize the opportunities available through the organization, the chapter members submitted articles to local newspapers. In these stories, they explained what the organization is all about and some of the activities which can be done through it.

In their high school, the members constructed bulletin board displays, and put posters up in the office.

To do themselves a favor, they purchased the 50th anniversary flag for the chapter to enjoy in the present and the future.

Essay contest underway

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania high school students can win a $500, $200, or $100 Savings Bond in the Seventh Annual Essay Contest sponsored by Pennsylvanians for Right to Work.

In addition to the first , second, and third prize Savings Bonds, there will be a $100 cash award for the Student Council of the high school submitting the most entries.

The topic for this year's contest will be "Should Compulsory Union Dues Be Used For Political Purposes?" To enter, the contestant must be a student in grades 9 through 12. The essay must be 500 words or less.

The Savings Bond prizes will be awarded to the first, second, and third best entries selected by a panel of judges. The entries will be judged on originality, neatness, clarity of thought, and soundness of presentation.

"In this election year, it is especially important that our young people develop a clear understanding of how union officials use compulsory unionism to build a political power base in the State Legislature and Congress," says a Right to Work spokesman.

Those interested should contact the 'Pennsylvanians' office at 1801 North Front Street, Harrisburg.

Pennsylvanians for Right to Work is a coalition of employers and employees from all walks of life, including union members, who believe that every wage earner should have the right to get and hold a job regardless of union membership or non-membership.

Wilmer Martin, president of District 8 for Eastern Milk Producers, points out that milk marketing problems won't be completely solved until dairymen begin tailoring their production to consumer demands. Nearly 80 officers of Eastern met this week at the Bird-in-Hand Restaurant to discuss milk marketing..

Delaware, that the marketing dilemma has burdened their cooperative since last Spring. Admitting that Eastern was not well prepared to face the unexpected and extraordinary marketing pressures, Eastern's chief nonetheless expressed optimism for the future. A proposal has been brought up before the board of directors to begin assessing members an additional five cents per hundredweight for the next five years so that a reserve fund can be established. It is estimated that some five to seven million dollars can be raised that way within that period of time.

Despite the sour notes in McDonald's report, the Eastern executive was praised for his efforts, abilities, and outlook. Considerable support was shown during the Monday night meeting, which lasted for more than three hours.

Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, in its drive to acquire more members, has been taking on some of the dairymen who have lost their milk market in recent weeks. They have also taken over some of the smaller dairy plants, thus keeping them open.

Just this month, a Chester County milk plant cut off more than 15 producers. Many of them have since signed up with Eastern. A couple have reportedly joined the National Farmers Organization, a vocal farmers' group which seeks 100 per cent parity for all farm commodities. NFO members are highly sympathetic to the farm strike and have in previous years taken drastic measures – such as the shooting of calves – to call attention to their wishes.

With dairy price supports coming up for adjustment on April 1, the dairy industry is faced with a near certain increase in prices. But that news is as much unwelcome as it is welcome. With milk already being in oversupply, dairy industry leaders are concerned that the likely increase in prices will stimulate production to an even greater degree.

Considerable concern is also being voiced over the possibility of legislative reaction to increased milk prices if consumer dissatisfaction with government stocks continues to grow. Even without the dairy support increase, milk production is expected to rise by one to two per cent over the preceding year. A year ago the nation's dairymen posted significant increases in production, so the problem in 1978 is not new.

Some of Eastern's officers, who are also active dairy farmers in the area, spoke very appreciatively of their membership in Eastern. "We still have a market and I'm thankful for that," said a Lebanon Countian emphatically. Quick words and nods of approval rippled through the room as he spoke. "Sure, we're faced with extra deductions now, but we look at it as market insurance. We should be glad for this program, and let's not forget that when milk was in short supply a few years ago, we were paid premiums," the dairyman continued.

Over the past two years, Eastern has lost over $800,000, a dilemma which leaves it in critical financial straits. Since December of last year, the dairy cooperative is operating at a "service at cost program." The net effect has been somewhat lower prices to Eastern members in comparison to other marketing channels in either Federal Order 2 or 4.

Eastern's current assessment on members is based on five cents per hundredweight for all milk produced, and $1.58 per hundredweight on surplus milk. The formula penalizes dairymen who have exceeded their base production. It was noted during the meeting, however, that the formula should take utilization into account as well. Milk consumption has not kept pace with milk production. Some dairy officials therefore argue that farmers should do more to tailor production to demand and thus avoid surplus milk supplies.

Eastern's monthly payroll runs anywhere from $16 to $17 million, McDonald revealed. They recently had

A week after the sows have been moved out of the nursery, Fisher will sort the offspring according to size. They remain in the nursery in groups of 20 per pen until they reach a weight of about 50 pounds each. Then they're ready for market.

Throughout his career with hogs, Fisher has looked for improvements in his gilts. A man who readily acknowledges he enjoys his work, he wants his gilts to be long, upstanding, and possess good mothering ability, strong feet and legs.

He does not strive for size in either the sow or individual baby pigs. "I want strong pigs, rather than big pigs," he explained with a smile. "The baby pigs are fine if they don't weigh over two pounds each at birth." Sows which are too large or have poor-sized litters are culled.

Fisher sees a number of rewards in his line of work, beginning with the satisfaction of working in a healthy outdoor environment in an independent fashion. The pigs are his main interest, but they, along with his other duties, demand much of his time. On Monday morning, for example, the hogs alone accounted for the following responsibilities: feeding, a trip to the auction, tooth cutting, sorting in the nursery, rotation of boars, and breeding of sows. A normal day begins at 7 a.m. and usually ends by 5:30 p.m. Fisher takes it all in stride, commenting: "Raising the pigs gives me a special satisfaction."

But there's more to it than that, as any hog producer would suspect. Although Fisher is also involved in beef breeding and crop production, a sizable portion of the farm's income is derived from the swine operation. Fisher considers swine to be a steady source of income, compared to cattle. "The extremes in price fluctuation don't last as long," he explained, "because it doesn't take near as much time to breed, raise and market a pig as it does a cow or steer."

Fisher also sees the pig business as a fitting compliment to the beef operation at Stauffer Homestead Farm. Due to the 150 acres of pasture and about the same acreage of cropland, the two different species of livestock allow for optimum use of the land. Pasture, forages, corn, grains and crop residues all figure into the total picture of pork and beef production.

their line of credit extended to some $7 million.

McDonald explained that Eastern's money problems stem from the fact that the cooperative has historically kept membership dues to a bare minimum. The audience agreed. "Unfortunately, we're asking you right now to contribute too much; in previous years we weren't asking you to contribute enough," McDonald said. With membership dues recently having been increased to fall in line with dues charged by other cooperatives in the area, Eastern expects to build a strong financial base. "The only way to do it is to keep on paying the bills as you go," McDonald said. The deductions are taking care of that. It was not disclosed how long those extra deductions might continue. That will depend largely on how long the surplus milk situation continues.

Eastern looks to the remainder of 1978 with considerable optimism for two major reasons: It is well managed, and secondly, it is in a better situation this year to handle surpluses. The latter reason stems from the fact that it has acquired a lease, with the option to buy, a milk powdering plant near Horse Heads, N.Y. The plant manufactures a fluffy type powder which commands premium prices. The dairy cooperative also owns one of the most modern butter churning facilities at Grover, Pa. Another plan in the works involves a year-around contract with a manufacturing plant at New Wilmington, Pa. McDonald conceded that deliveries to the western Pennsylvania dairy have been "a loser' in the past but it could be turned around if a steady contract is obtained.

During better times, Eastern's equity peaked at an estimated $1 million. Its present economic woes are due to a shift in the marketing posture that has happened in a relatively short time. "Eastern was not in the best shape to handle it," McDoald admitted.

About four years ago, another large dairy cooperative – Dairylea – found it necessary to assess its members $14 million in order to bail itself out of marketing and management problems. The cooperative had originally asked for $18 million. Eastern officials believe that the Dairylea situation of four years ago helped trigger the problems Eastern now faces. "We inherited the surplus milk problem from Dairylea," McDonald explained, adding that it was a shift in the marketing posture for which Eastern was not well prepared.

Before the meeting was adjourned, one officer observed "All the other cooperatives are in mud too." Another quipped "snow now."

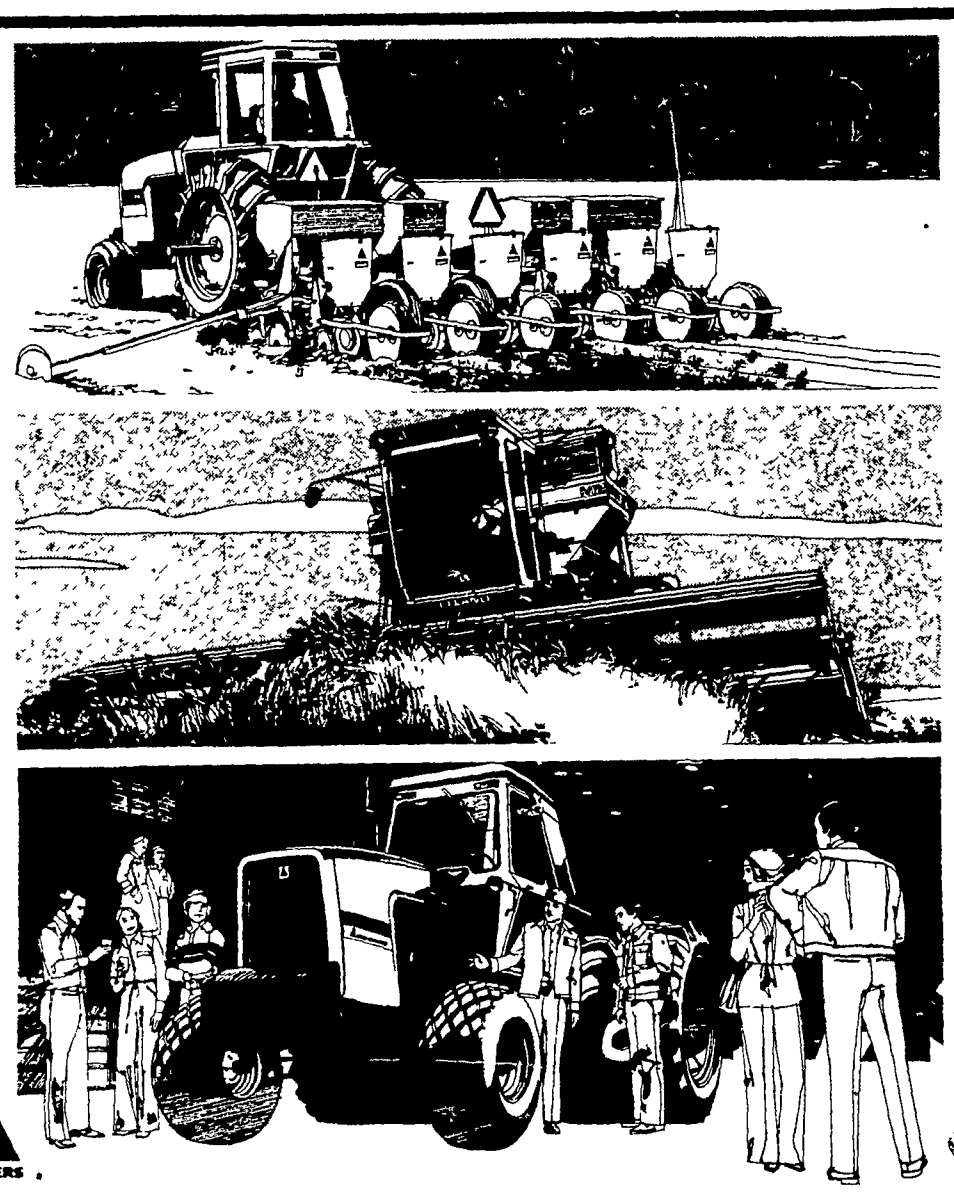
The Rising Power in Farming

ALLIS-CHALMERS



• Double cropping practices explained to farmers

By KENDACE BORRY

LANCASTER – Double cropping, the practice of growing two crops in the same field within one year, was the subject covered by John Yocum, superintendent, Southeast Field Research Laboratory, Penn State, at Landisville, at the Lancaster Co. Crops and Soils Day. Usually double-cropping involves a small grain and soybean crop, but Yocum noted that it could also involve other crops such as winter rye and corn.

Mainly dealing with a soybean, small grain combination, Yocum urged farmers to consider double cropping and fit a system of their own into their farming. He related that the acres of small grain in Lancaster Co. have decreased over the past years but added that they may grow in the future due to the need for straw, the seed grain grown in the area, the increased use as a feed source, and the presence of the flour mills as an outlet to wheat.

According to Yocum, there were approximately 14,000 acres of barley and 30,000 acres of wheat grown in Lancaster Co. in 1976. Land used from barley could lie idle from June 15 until the following Spring, and the wheat fields would be unused from about July 4, until the same time, bringing no income for the farmer. By planting soybeans as a double crop, the farmer could increase his profit, utilizing his land.

Yocum showed examples of double cropping, using Beeson soybeans which were planted in the first week of July. The lowest yield gave him a 32 per cent profit increase from his fields while in the best year illustrated there was a 119 per cent profit.

Caution, Yocum advised, though, is needed when soybeans are planted as part of a double crop.

The number one problem, he went on to explain, is dry soil conditions. Soybeans require 50 per cent moisture in the seed to germinate.

That problem is compounded by looking at weather patterns for the area. Records show that rainfall is reduced from the beginning of June to the last weekend in July, when it begins to increase again. But the problem of getting enough moisture in the soybeans to get them to germinate is critical.

Another concern, Yocum voiced, was the row width farmers used. He recommends a 20 inch or less spand between rows. He also added that the seeding rate should be increased from ½ to one bean per foot over the regular full season recommendations.

When considering double cropping, the farmer's individual needs must be weighed. When picking the small grain, he must choose which one will benefit him greater. Using barley would give the soybeans greater potential of a longer growing period before first frost and higher yield possibilities. Wheat, as a grain, brings greater income. For the Lancaster Co. area, October 10 is considered the normal first frost date.

Therefore, crops planted around June 15 have about 117 days to mature while a field planted July 10 would be reduced to a growing season of 92 days. The maturity rate of the variety of soybean used must also be taken into consideration.

The fertility of the fields used for double cropping also plays an important part in the process of gaining as high yields as possible. Yocum recommended that they should be fertilized when planting the small grains for best results.

While Yocum showed figures to back up his double cropping ideas, he again urged farmers to consider all the needs they have on their farms and appraise how double-cropping could best be used to add profit for the farmer.

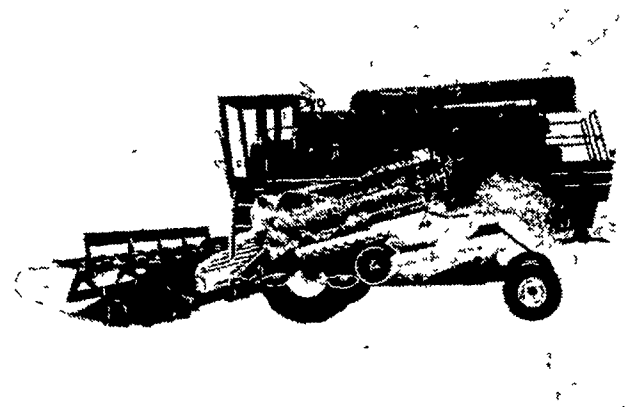
The sales and service team of M&R Equipment, Inc., New Park, contributed to the success of the firm's recent Open House and looks forward to being of service to the agricultural community in southcentral Pennsylvania and neighboring Maryland.



The new International Harvester Axial-Flow combine attracted attention at M&R's recent Open House. The machine features a unique single rotor design. As the only moving part in the threshing-separating system, this spinning rotor creates a gentle rubbing action that is repeated several times while the crop is moved in a spiral path over a concave and grate area.

M&R Open House visited by nearly 500

NEW PARK -- Approximately 500 persons attended the grand opening of M & R Equipment, Inc., on Feb. 13, 14, and 15th. M & R is the newly established International Harvester dealership serving York County, Pa., and Harford and Baltimore Counties, Md.

Visitors coming from as far away as Cecilton, Md., and Lancaster, Pa., were greeted by a large display of the newest agricultural equipment ranging from the '86 Series' tractors to the all new 'Axial Flow' combines.

No one went away hungry as there were plenty of hot dogs, bar-b-q, and donuts to go around. The refreshments were prepared and served by Doris Bartenslager, Sara Robinson, Susan Manifold, Terri Robinson, and Ruth Ann Scotten.

Substantial discounts were offerred on parts and equipment to celebrate the occasion.

On Feb. 15, at 7 00 p.m , a special meeting was held during which approximately 100 persons were introduced to the 'Axial Flow' combine by International's Bill Ottery, a tractor 'service tips' seminar by John Lee, I'H's pro-Ag management system by Jack Miller and Del Reynolds, and also a presentation by New Idea's Merle Dodes and Bill Mark on the new 'Uni-System' products available from that company.

After the meeting, Lee Manifold, Dave Robinson, and Don Robinson, owners of M & R, were presented with International Harvester's 'Certified Service Award' by Area Service Manager John Lee, and also a congratulatory cake presented by the employees of M & R. Sandwiches and cake were then served as the 'grand opening' drew to a close around 10:00 p.m. The owners indicated that, even though the opening was a huge success, next year's 'open house' should prove to be even 'bigger and better'.

Stable climate seen

WASHINGTON, D.C. – What'll the world's climate be like in the year 2000? Pretty much like it's been for the past 20 or 30 years. That's the principal finding of the first phase of a recently - completed climatology study announced last week.

The study is part of a research project sponsored jointly by USDA, the Department of Defense and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. It's being conducted by the Research Directorate of the National Defense University (in Washington, D.C.), with technical assistant furnished by the Institute of the Future, Menlo Park, Calif.

Don't be caught sleeping this coming week when Penn State hosts the Swine Management Conference for three consecutive days. It'll be held at University Park and will have presentation on various management, breeding and feeding practices.

Swine conference Mar. 1-3

UNIVERSITY PARK – Penn State University will sponsor a three-day swine management conference this coming week designed to cover the basics of swine management and aimed primarily at those who are relatively new to, or inexperienced in, swine production.

Interested persons are asked to register in advance. Final registration will be held Wednesday, March 1, 1978, between 10:00 and 10:30 a.m. in the lobby of the J. O. Keller Conference Center. The registration fee of $20 ($30 for a husband and wife) covers the cost of registration, handbooks and instructional materials, and coffee breaks. Each person is responsible for securing his own housing accommodations. The Nittany Lion Inn on Penn State's University Park Campus is adjacent to the J.O. Keller Conference Center. Accomodations include rooms with double or twin beds and a limited number of single rooms. A list of other nearby hotels and motels, provided by the State College Area Chamber of Commerce, is available upon request.

Parking space is at a premium on campus. Please park in the Conference Center parking area (guests of the Nittany Lion Inn may park in the inn parking lot). Parking in any other area may result in a $25 magistrate's citation.

Program details may be secured at county Extension offices.

Good stuff is what these little fellows are getting, but they'll need more than nourishment and motherly comfort to get a good healthy start in life. Some information for better swine management will be presented at the Lancaster County Swine Day this coming Tuesday.

Swine Day slated

LANCASTER – A variety of programs which should be of value and interest to both swine breeders and swine feeders will be presented at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center on Tuesday, Feb. 28. It'll get underway at 8:30 with the inspection of exhibits and coffee and donuts.

According to Max Smith, Lancaster County Extension director, the swine business has been very good for the past several years. But the future includes some problems, he says, which need better management and more attention. The Lancaster Swine Producers' Day will give hog farmers the opportunity to prepare for some uncertain factors while upgrading their management skills.

Also on the program, aside from the exhibitors, will be Louis Moore, Robert Kimble, and lSwight Younkin. Their respective topics will be "Hog and Feed Outlook," "Using Performance Testing Data," and "Reproduction Efficiency." Moore is an Extension economist at Penn State, Kimble is director of the Pennsylvania Performance Testing Laboratory and Younkin is a livestock specialist at Penn State.

In addition, a panel of swine specialists will discuss "What Type of Hog Should We Produce". Panelists include Dwight Younkin, Ron Harrison, Henry Gruber and Franklin Feeser.

→ LONGEVITY — AND THE SUCCESSFUL FARMER

The success of Jet-Age Swine Breeders is due to a conscientious effort to follow strict management, feeding and sanitation programs.

Many pork producers still have not reached the full productive potential of their hog operation, and thus, limit their hog production capacity and profit capabilities. Go with the established leaders, who have the knowledge, experience, programs and expertise. We would like the opportunity in assisting you in accomplishing your hog production goals.

to "max out," he says. His advice is to keep costs down, be flexible, and if at all possible, choose a good location for the retail stand.

Tom Styer, who owns and operates Styer Orchards in Bucks County, was chosen as a Master Farmer this year for his progress in the fruit business.

One of his experiences has been that items do not necessarily sell quicker or in larger quantities if prices are reduced. That's why he chooses to keep prices stable, while offering additional quantities of the item free of charge. It's a program which helps him move surpluses.

Advertising plays a big role in the Styer fruit retailing business, he emphasized. He prices many of his commodities by size or sale unit. Examples are "five pounds for a dollar," or $7 per basket."

Customers don't generally "see" required deposits for containers, Styer told the assembled farmers. If the price for a case of strawberries is $6.95 plus 25 cents for the carrier, the customer only looks at the $6.95, he explained.

Another of Styer's discoveries in retailing is that well advertised specials bring in crowds of customers. One of his favorite promotional programs involves selling thousands of rhubarb pies. Once the customers are in his store, they nearly always buy more than just the pies, Styer concluded.

Tom Styer

Fred Funk of Funk's Fruit Farm in Lancaster County is a specialist in multiple unit pricing. His retail fruit and vegetable outlet gives the customer a choice of quantities to be bought. Savings in buying two or more are usually just a penny or two. But the strategy is effective and Funk reminds his fellow retailers that in multiple unit sales, the merchant also saves on paper bags and time spent servicing the customer.

The three prime advantages Funk has found in multiple unit pricing are: 1. the customer is offered slight savings, 2. volume of sales is increased, and 3. the supply of commodities can be extended.

Much of this is in the psychologic effect the posted prices have on the customer. Knowing how prices are interpreted by the customer can make a profound difference in sale volume and profits or losses.

When offering specials, Funk stays with prices based on one unit only. An effective tactic to attract customers is to know what is in demand at grocery stores in the area and then offering the same product at slightly reduced prices. Advertising the fact will draw attention and lead to the assumption that other products will be offered at similar savings. While that may be true, it doesn't have to be. "Advertising is a real tool," the fruit and vegetable grower concluded.

Possibly the chief factor which will have a strong bearing on a retail business' success or failure is location. According to Kerr, a grower is entitled to charge a little more for his products if he has a good location. Reasons are higher priced ground, an investment in parking facilities, and greater demands for his products.

Two ways to reduce fuel costs.

The HS Tarm Type OT is a modern, efficient multi-fuel boiler for central hot water heating systems It's a unit which allows you to use low-cost wood in addition to electricity and oil or gas as your source of heat When fueled with wood, it warms your home and provides plenty of hot tap water as well Should the wood fire go untended, automatic controls will switch to another fuel, and the boiler will continue to supply all your heating and hot water needs

The Tasso A-3 is a cast iron wood-burning boiler made to work in combination with existing oil- or gas-fired hot water heating systems to give you multi-fuel economy Used with your present boiler, it allows you to heat your whole house with wood all the time, or merely supplement your present fuel by burning wood Like the HS boiler, the Tasso A-3 offers convenient operation if the wood fire dies out, your oil or gas burner will take over automatically

The HS·Tarm Type OT

Either the HS Tarm Type OT or the Tasso A-3 will give you reliable service while helping to protect you from fuel shortages and the high cost of commercial fuels Choose the boiler that's right for you!

Lebanon County DHIA Monthly Report

JANUARY

Donald G. Hoffer's 5-year old Holstein, Number 38, was far out in front of her competitors in the milk category of the latest DHIA lactation report. Several cows in the county DHIA testing program compiled records in excess of 23,000 pounds of milk, but Number 38 was the only one to top 24,000 pounds. And she did it by a good measure. Her winning record stands at 24,581 pounds, with a 3.1 per cent test and 758 pounds of butterfat. The high cow for butterfat No. 106 is owned by the Lancaster Mennonite Hospital. Her completed lactation reads: 22,938 pounds of milk, 4.2 per cent, and 968 pounds of butterfat.

Part-time farmers seminar set March 18

LANCASTER – A seminar for part-time farmers will be held March 18 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. The program will begin at 9:30 a.m., with time for two workshops, and conclude at noon.

First on the program will be a general session, with records and taxes, and pesticides being covered. Then the group will break into four workshops covering the subjects of agronomy and horticulture; dairy and goats; livestock; and poultry and rabbits. Each workshop will be offered twice and participants will have the opportunity to attend two sessions. Those planning to attend are asked to register with the enclosed form. Registration deadline is March 13.

Agronomy and horticulture will cover such aspects of farming as small acreage production of grains and forages and horticultural crops for better country living. Basic management of the family cow or small goat herd will be viewed in the Dairy and Goats seminar. Also featured will be the feeding, housing, health, and general mangement of the herd.

In Livestock, the basic management of beef cattle, swine, and sheep will be included in the discussion. Feeding, housing, health, and general economics will also be discussed. Poultry and Rabbits will cover management of the small poultry flock. Laws, lighting, ventilation, diseases, feeding, and egg handling will be the topics as well as the mangement considerations of rabbit production.

In the past census, figures reveal that approximately half of the Lancaster Co. farms are operated by part-time farmers. Therefore the seminar was scheduled for a Saturday morning. The program may also be of value to rural, non-farm residents owning just a few head of livestock, poultry, or a few acres of land. The program is sponsored by the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service.

Snowed under

WASHINGTON, D C – About 72 per cent of the land mass of North America – an estimated 6.8 million square miles was snow covered during parts of January, surpassing the snow cover of a year ago, satellite pictures from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration have shown

Free tax programs available

PHILADELPHIA – The Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants has several new 15 minute slide presentations available for use by service clubs and organizations interested in learning more about their tax returns.

The three current slide presentations are "Your 1977 Tax Return," "The 1977 Tax Picture for Small Businesses," and "How Far Have you Come, Baby?" which touches on the need for women to control their personal finances, career opportunities in accounting, and the 1977 tax picture for women.

The PICPA Speakers Bureau has recognized authorities in business and financial topics available free of charge throughout the year for civic clubs and organizations.

CPAs can speak on a variety of topics including taxation, how to evaluate investments, careers in accounting, how to analyze financial reports and financial estate planning.

Organizations may request the slide presentations and/or a PICPA speaker. For more information contact the Pennsylvania Institute of CPAs, 1100 Lewis Tower Building, Philadelphia, Pa. 19102, (215) 735-2635.

IH engineer tells Young Farmers of tillage alternatives

LANCASTER – Eldon A. Harden, product engineer for moldboard and subsoil chisel plows at International Harvester's Engineering Center in Hinsdale, Ill. told members attending the Pennsylvania Young Farmer's Eighteenth Annual Convention, here recently, there are three basic reasons for the emergence of a great variety of tillage practices over the past few years. "The basics used for determining which tillage method you might use will come from one of or all of these three reasons. They are money, time and conservation," Harden said during an educational workshop he conducted at the convention held Wednesday and Thursday, February 8 and 9, at the Host Town Inn.

The farmer must often time choose for himself which factor is more important to him in a given situation. "Considering money, time and conservation, all three cannot be satisfied with one set type of tillage year after year. A farmer today must use a combination of methods and equipment most practical to fulfill his needs," Harden said.

You must decide what type tillage will result in the greatest profit, if that is your major goal, he said. When you are in a hurry and time is most important, in most cases you can expect a little less yield and conservation is not given much consideration. When soil conservation is given the consideration it deserves, time and money become secondary, Harden said.

Harden then discussed some of the equipment being used today to perform common tillage practices such as "no-till' whereby most often a colter on the front of the planter opens the ground for seeding and a heavy press wheel behind the planter firms the seed. Another good conservation method is shallow or full width tillage whereby the area to be planted is worked to a depth of four to six inches with sides, field cultivators or wide sweeps, leaving at least half the trash from the previous crop on top of the ground, he said.

The relatively new subsoil chiseling method is used to break up hard pan and loosen the soil to a greater than normal depth for better root development and plant growth. It is made more practical in Pennsylvania by a new subsoil chisel that has a safety trip similar to the automatic moldboard plow trip, allowing for deep tillage work in rocky soil, he said.

Harden concluded by pointing out that the moldboard plow is the oldest and still the most popular means of tillage. "It is being used to produce the highest and nost consistent yields under the widest variety of conditions," he said. On the other hand, he said, where "no-till" or "shallow till" systems are successful, plowing may not yield the best results.

"The moldboard plow can be used as a conservation tool by using wider furrows to leave the field in a rougher state and by leaving off all trash covering devices so some trash will be left on the ground," he said.

"International Harvester and the entire tillage industry is interested in soil conservation. We are working to make the plow a better conservation tool," he said.

USDA simplifies rules for shipments of animal products

WASHINGTON -- International shipments of restricted animal products will move more easily through U.S. territory due to simplified federal import regulations.

The revised regulations require that:

•the products are otherwise eligible for importation under prescribed restrictions;

•the importer notifies APHIS in advance;

•the products are transported under seals within sealed, leak-proof containers, and

•the products remain sealed within their containers at all times if they are unloaded for reshipment in other vessels.

Hog parley set

HINKLETOWN – The Hinkletown Adult Farmer program will sponsor an educational meeting on "Swine Health Management" on Tuesday evening March 7 at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson, Extension veterinarian for Penn State University, will be the featured speaker.

The meeting will be held at the Hinkletown Alternative School located approximately ½ mile north of Route 322 on Wanner Road just east of Hinkletown. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Lebanon Co. Horse 4-H Clubs hold banquet

SCHAEFFERSTOWN — Members and their families, leaders and guests gathered from six horse clubs on February 21 at the Schaefferstown Fire Hall for the Lebanon County 4-H Horse Clubs Banquet.

Trophies and awards for achievements by members were the highlight of the evening's activities. Members of 4-H were recognized for their accomplishments at the county, district, and state level of competition.

On the state level, Jennifer Wunderlich, Lebanon, of the Happy Trail Riders, was awarded a trophy for winning the Junior Saddle Seat Equitation Class. The young lady was also awarded a District show participant certificate and a county award for the Saddle Seat Equitation class winnings in those levels of competition.

Several other girls were also recognized for their achievements on the state level. In the production classes, Shelly Brown, Lebanon, of the North Cornwall Trail Blazers, had won the Arabian colts and fillies of this year class and the Arabian broodmare class; and Sheri and Jeanne Pierce, Newmanstown R1, sisters in the Spur and Bit club, were recognized for their placings in the Pony of America Colts, and fillies of this year class, and broodmare (gradestock type) class.

In performance classes, at state level Susan Englebright, Jonestown R1, of the Palm Trail Blazers, won an award for placing fifth in the saddle seat pleasure over 14.2 hands class. Katrina Killian, Annville R3, and Beth Rohrer, Palmyra R1; of the same club, were recognized for their participation in the state horse show. Grace Morrissey, Lebanon; of the Happy Trail Riders, in the open Trail Class, 13.2 hands and under; Jeanne Pierce, in the Clover Leaf Barrel Race, 13.2 hands and under, won awards for their state participation.

Thirty-four district show participant certificates were handed out to the 4-H members who qualified and showed in that event.

On the county level, two grooming and showmanship awards were given. Jody Rexrode, Annville R1, of the Palm Trail Blazers had won the junior division and Connie Mallanson, Lebanon, of the same club, had won the senior division.

Equitation winners were also recognized on the county level. Besides Jenny Wunderlich, Megan Williams, Lebanon; Renee Bergland, Lebanon R4; Donna Lansberry, Lebanon; Murray Lynn Frazier, Lebanon, and Kathryn Lansberry, also of Lebanon; were all given awards for their performances in winning a division of an equitation class.

Program for the evening was provided by members of the six clubs - the Equestrians, Happy Trial Riders; Hoof and Horns; North Cornwall Trail Blazers, Palm Trail Blazers, and Spur and Bit. Awards were presented by Denis Hoke, Lebanon County Extension Agent-Agriculture.

Meat consumption declines

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Per capita meat consumption was down last year. Estimated at 154.8 pounds (retail weight) for the year, it's off only 4/10 of a pound from a year earlier, but it's the first decline since 1973.

The reason is lower beef consumption. Pork consumption averaged 56.9 pounds per person, up from 54.6 pounds in 1976 and the highest since 1974. Consumption of veal, at 3.2 pounds per person, was down from 3.3 pounds in 1976; lamb and mutton consumption again hit a record low of 1.5 pounds, off from 1.7 pounds in 1976. But, consumption of beef averaged 93.2 lbs., down 2.4 lbs. from last year's record high. It's still the second highest on record.

Anthracnose?
Plant Saranac AR and forget it!

If you're struggling with alfalfa because of anthracnose problems, just plant Saranac AR and forget the problem. Where ordinary alfalfas fold up and fade away, Saranac AR flourishes and goes right on producing the kind of yields farmers expect from an alfalfa named Saranac.

And when it comes to bacterial wilt and hard winters, Saranac AR meets them head on. Highly wilt resistant. Able to stand up to the toughest winters. It's the strongest growing alfalfa you can plant.

Certified Saranac AR. The only one to plant where anthracnose threatens ordinary alfalfas. Bred for your kind of land. Bred to meet your seven and eight ton objectives.

For more information on anthracnose-resistant Saranac AR, see your dealer.

Farmers Union Green Thumb giving elderly a second chance

By JOANNE SPAHR

HARRISBURG – When someone says "National Farmers Union," what are the first words that come to mind? One hundred per cent of parity? Young Farmers Homestead Act? How about Farmers Union Green Thumb, Inc.?

If you've never heard of the last organization, you're like most people. Green Thumb is a rural community improvement and service organization that hires and finds jobs for senior citizens.

Started in 1965, it is sponsored by National Farmers Union and funded by the United States Department of Labor, Commerce, and Health, Education and Welfare; the Environmental Protection Agency, various state governments, and by over 3000 local, public, and private non-profit sponsors.

Pennsylvania has its own Green Thumb agency, which is located in Harrisburg, and is run by Orvill Carver, state director.

Carver, who has been working for Green Thumb for six years, explains that the federally funded job placement service has 800 employees on its payroll. All these employees have several things in common – they all have rural backgrounds, are at least 55 years of age, have passed a medical examination, and have an annual income below the federal low income level of $2970 per person. And they feel useful.

"If it weren't for our program, some of our employees would be dead by now," stesses Suzette Kirkland, field supervisor for Green Thumb. Although her statement seems strongly phrased, she means what she says. She adamantly defends her stand that without usefulness, the elderly can lose their will to live.

"I know it," she says. "I've seen it."

Besides placing the elderly in jobs, Suzette views Green Thumb from another angle.

"We want to keep these people out of nursing homes," she states. "We want to get to them and provide them with an income to support themselves."

At the state office in Harrisburg, Orville Carver, (left) Green Thumb state director, and Suzette Kirkland, area field supervisor, confer with Grace Shreiner, office worker, on employee forms. Ms. Shreiner is a Green Thumb employee.

At the Watts-Buffalo Community Center in Perry County Green Thumb employees John Treaster, Merrill Gearhart, and W.E. Lukens work on general maintenance as their job through the Green Thumb program.

The way Green Thumb works is very simple. Non-profit organizations come to the placement agency with a job which needs to be filled and Green Thumb provides them with an employee. The jobs from the non-profit organizations are normally volunteer, but when an elderly person is sent in to do the work through the program, he or she is put on the Green Thumb payroll and is paid out of the agency's $3 million budget

It's simple, and according to Miss Kirkland, Green Thumb is "one of the few federally funded organizations which is not full of red tape."

As long as the potential enrollees are at least 55 years of age, have passed a medical examination, and have an annual income lower than the federal level, they are put to work.

On the average, they work three days a week for minimum hourly wage, and have benefits such as 11 paid holidays, two weeks vacation, and five sick days.

A big plus is that the program has no maximum age limit

"We've got people who are 90 and still working three days a week. Right now we're even considering a 104-year-old woman," exclaims Carver.

Adding to this remark, he continues, "I have seen some individuals practically on their death beds, but still working and trying to make a buck."

"They want dignity, not charity"

About 34 per cent of the enrollees are between the ages of 60 and 64, 27 per cent are 65 to 69; 12 per cent are 70 to 74; and eight per cent are more than 75, he said. Sixty-four per cent are women and minorities make up 24 per cent.

The types of jobs they are placed in include positions with education and health-related fields; hospitals, housing and rehabilitation programs; employment assistance; recreation; social services; public works, nutrition, outreach, and referral programs.

Grant finds hope in White House

WASHINGTON, D.C. – "President Carter is for free enterprise and so are we in Farm Bureau," the president of the nation's largest general farm organization said here on Feb. 15.

Allan Grant said that was the general feeling that came out of a meeting with President Carter, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and other farm organization leaders.

"The President stated categorically that he wanted the 1977 Farm Act to work, to function and it can," Grant told reporters at the White House. He added:

"The President did say that the Secretary has various prerogatives under the Act and that the Secretary will be looking at that in light of today's conversation.

"We don't want the government involved in agriculture anymore than it is at the present time," Grant said. "We are for additional set-aside to cut back on production during this time of surpluses.

"The Administration has done a great deal and so have we in Farm Bureau," Grant said. "We've done everything possible to increase trade to get this material out of the hands of the farmers and into the marketplace. We are encouraging the President, and he today said that he was in the process of increasing the food for peace program."

Grant told reporters that the majority of commodity groups represented feel as Farm Bureau does that "the market system will correct the imbalance if given the time and opportunity."

"The President did say that he hoped we could get together a year from now and celebrate the fact that agriculture is in a better economic condition at that time than it is now," Grant concluded.

Carter hears Grange leader's views on agricultural economy

WASHINGTON, D.C. – President Jimmy Carter and Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland met recently with farm organization and commodity group leaders at the White House to discuss the economic situation of U.S. farmers.

Earlier in the day, John W. Scott, Master of the National Grange, testified in detail before the House Agriculture Committee outlining the Grange's recommendations for administrative and legislative changes needed both now and in the future to insure the economic stability of the family farmer.

The leader of the country's oldest farm organization related four particular recommendations from his testimony to the President. He said the cornerstone of the 1977 Farm Act and the Administration's farm policy is the three to five year reserve program which the Grange supports. However, the Grange feels the present economic incentives are not sufficient enough to make the program work and recommends increased storage payments and a waiver or reduction of the interest paid by farmers on the loan made for his grain.

Scott also said that because of rising land values and taxes, farmers cannot afford to participate in set-aside programs without some type of payment. He suggested offering farmers the opportunity to set-aside additional land in return for increased set-aside payments.

The national farm leader encouraged the President to expand foreign markets for agricultural exports. He asked the President to waive the $520 per capita, per year limit currently set in the P.L. 480 program which would enable more P.L. 480 grain shipments to be made.

Scott commended the President's goal of a balanced budget and pledged the Grange's support. He said Grange policy as set by its 500,000 members calls for the government to operate within a balanced budget.

Green Thumb

"We have 18 Green Thumb homemakers who service 3000 persons a month. If it weren't for this attention, at least 1000 of them would be in nursing homes," Carver pointed out.

At present, the program is in 52 counties in the state including York, Adams, Lebanon, and Dauphin. And, while there are as many as 210,000 individuals eligible in Pennsylvania, only 800 are on the payroll.

Carver and his staff are busy trying to get more people involved.

"Once word gets around about how well a Green Thumber works out, everyone wants such a worker," states Jean Odom, executive director of the South Central Community Action Programs, Inc.

However, that organization has had to start an outreach program in Adams County since they have the jobs to fill in that county, but not the people to fill them.

"A lot of people don't apply because they can't believe that someone would hire them at their age," she states.

The program does have a limiting factor, however, - per capita wealth and population density.

"A lot of people may only get $50 to $100 more a month than the eligibility guidelines allow," explains Mrs. Odom. "That isn't enough to live on, but it's enough to disqualify them from applying to Green Thumb.

Serving the elderly is only 93 per cent of the program, however. Green Thumb also deals with the physically and mentally handicapped as well as young people and individuals who are 45 years and older requiring on-the-job training.

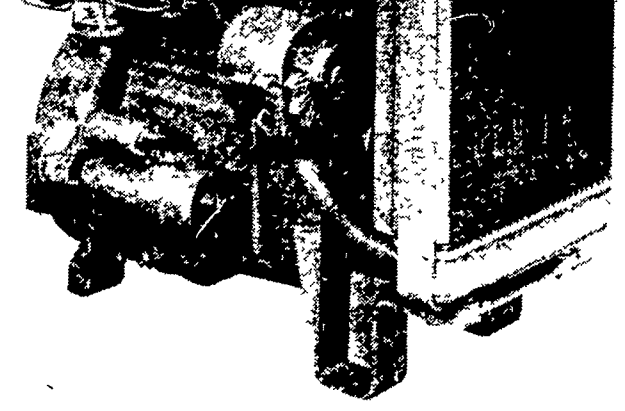
The O—J—T or On-The-Job Training program is for employers of rural workers are 45 and older. Under this program, a portion of the employers' training costs are reimbursed by Green Thumb. These employers need not be with non-profit organizations.

At the other end of the spectrum are young people.

Says Carver, "we probably place five young people to every older one – although we're here to hire the older ones – because we have a tremendous walk-in program."

Although the program has not been established in Lancaster, Chester, or Berks Counties as yet, Carver expressed optimism that interested individuals in those counties can be helped.

For more information on Farmers Union Green Thumb, Inc., write or call Orville Carver, 240 E. 3rd Street, Room 801, Harrisburg Pa. 17101. Or phone 717-233-7056.



The only woman working at the Watts-Buffalo Community Center as a Green Thumb employee is Sara Owczark, who loves her job as a kitchen helper.

Dairy import proposal withdrawn

NEW YORK, N.Y. – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has withdrawn a proposal to permit the importation of ultra-high temperature heat-treated milk and milk products from countries now restricted due to highly contagious livestock diseases.

Dr. Pierre A. Chaloux, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) said the proposal was withdrawn because it was based on research on foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) only, whereas any change would also have to assure protection against rinderpest, another highly contagious disease of cattle.

Dr. Chaloux said the proposal would have permitted milk and milk products to be imported from FMD and rinderpest affected countries if heated to 148°C (298°F) for at least 2.5 seconds – a process known to destroy the FMD virus. Caseins and caseinates would have been permitted unrestricted distribution after storage in a bonded warehouse for 84 days, the time required for elimination of FMD virus.

The Tractor Specialist sells more "up-time"

case

When the land is ready, a farmer's tractor had better be ready to go That's why a Case dealer franchise just makes good common sense

As a Case dealer, you're a tractor specialist Everything you do — selling, servicing, parts — has one target the best in farm power You and your tractors are backed by an industry "first" a sound marketing program Assured Availability It tells your customers that if, for any reason during warranty, the tractor they bought from you isn't ready to go, they'll have a free replacement And Case backs you up!

Case backs you up with other strong marketing help including the Demo/Rental and Commitment to Quality programs

If the franchise is open in your territory, you may also be eligible to sell and service light construction power For information on the full potential of a Case franchise in your area, write or call

YES, WE FEED THEM ALL AT BROWN'S

And behind every bag of BROWN'S FEED is sound NUTRITION... NUTRITIONAL KNOW HOW. We continually strive at BROWN'S for improved feed efficiency, growth rate, finish, production and performance in every class of livestock we feed. FEED QUALITY COMES FIRST AT BROWN'S.

WHY ARE MORE PROGRESSIVE FARMERS FEEDING BROWN'S?

Because they want to make more milk, more eggs, more beef, more pork... and at a greater profit over feed cost. At BROWN'S, the FAMILY FARM is foremost on our minds. We want him to run a profitable operation. We are a local company. We do not contract eggs, broilers or livestock. We sell our feed and services at competitive prices. We feel we have more interest in the local, independent farmer than most others.

WE HAVE THE FEEDS, PROGRAMS AND TECHNICAL SERVICE TO HELP YOU.

Goat dairy set up to ship or sell product

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

MYERSTOWN, Pa. – Martha Shaak is working hard at making a dream come true. She and her husband Dennis operate the Den-Mar Goat Dairy at Myerstown R2 and in three years have increased the size of their goat herd from two to 30. It has been a learning experience for the Shaaks, and a fun one because they are both enjoying their goat herd.

The Shaaks have one of the few commercial dairy goat herds in this area, and have been set up for shipping to a dairy since July 1977. They received their raw milk license to sell milk at the farm in November of last year.

Dennis and Martha live on a 12-acre farm and are working now on increasing their milking goat herd from the present 10 does to 25 by next September. So far, Martha says, the enterprise "is paying it's own way."

The Shaaks became interested in goats in the way many people do - their daughter Rachel, who is now 3½, had a cow's milk allergy as an infant. Martha says, "One of the first animals I wanted on the farm was a goat." However, by the time the goats were actually acquired, Rachel had outgrown her allergy.

Martha explains that in college she became interested in homesteading.

"I had a desire to live on a small farm and I liked the idea of being self-sufficient. The idea appealed to me to be able to supply your own food." So, on their first year on the farm, the Shaaks attempted to be self-sufficient, and to sell the excess. They had rabbits, chickens - both broilers and layers - veal calves, a steer and a huge vegetable garden. However, Martha remembers, "We got so bogged down with work and found that it didn't pay that well to raise it all ourselves. The only thing we made money on was veal calves, and that's because we didn't lose any."

So a decision was forced, Dennis says, "What do you do with a 12-acre farm? Do you rent it all out and mow the lawn or do you make it profitable? We enjoyed working with goats more than any other animals." So the decision was made and the goat herd increased.

Their first goats were "two good grades" purchased at a sale sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association in Pittsburgh. They purchased an Alpine and an Alpine-Nubian cross.

Their herd is now mostly Toggenburgs and Alpines, but they are slowly shifting to mostly Alpines. Martha said, "We find Alpines have a higher butterfat content and consistently high production. They are on all-around better breed for diarymen."

Of the 30 head of goats, 10 are milking, with several scheduled for freshening soon, and there are three purebred mature bucks.

"We have a good number of purebred goats," Martha stated.

She went on to explain that the herd is a young one. Instead of purchasing a complete herd when they chose to get serous about the goat business, the Shaaks decided to buy in kids and unbred yearlings, and "raise and learn each animal." Consequently, they are just building up their milking stock.

Since kids require a lot of individual care, the Shaaks sell their kids after about four days. Friends purchase the kids and grow them out and when they approach breeding age, the Shaaks have first choice to buy them back. Martha explained that kids must be fed with a bottle beginning at four times daily. They should be weaned at four to five months, and by then are being given the bottle just twice daily. This can be very time consuming, especially as herd size increases.

Martha gew up in town in Ephrata, and Dennis hails from a cow dairy farm in Myerstown, so how did they learn about raising goats?

"We do a lot of reading," Martha says, "and subscribe to the Dairy Goat Journal." Dennis added, "Actually talking to people who had goats was helpful. We talked with several other breeders in the area and traveled from dairy to dairy to learn."

Martha went to a training course for judges so she could learn to know the characteristics of the different goat breeds.

"There's still a lot to learn," she says. They have found that being members of the Lebanon Valley Dairy Goat Association has been helpful.

"It is good to get together with other breeders. We have been fortunate to have good people to turn to for help. Our veterinarian keeps goats himself, so is very knowledgeable about them," Martha said.

It takes Martha and Dennis about 1½ hours each morning and evening to complete the chores which go with milking. They have a newly constructed milking parlor for five doe and a modern milkhouse. Dennis helps with the milking before traveling to Reading to his job as engineer for Metropolitan Edison Company and usually helps when he returns in the evening. It is not uncommon for Martha to do the milking herself in the evening if they have plans to go away.

The average goat milks about three quarts per day, Dennis said, on a 305 day lactation. The 10 goats are milked by hand, and even with the idea of increasing the herd size, Dennis says they are not now contemplating using milkers on the goats. "Milking by hand is easier on the goats and you don't have as many mastitis problems."

Dennis said they were concerned at first whether they could meet the stringent standards for selling raw milk, but have consistently been under the specified plate count for bacteria, which is much lower for raw milk license than for milk which will be processed. To maintain their license, the milk is shipped to Pure Goat Products, Inc. in Boyertown three times a week. It is stored and cooled in cans, and Dennis takes the milk on one of his daily trips to Reading. The plant processes not just goat's milk, but also goat milk yoghurt, cottage cheese, ice cream and other products.

The goats are tested annually for brucellosis and tuberculosis, and Martha pointed out that it is very rare to find brucellosis among goats. Their herd is certified brucellosis free after three years of testing negative. The water at the Shaak farm is tested twice annually and their milk house must meet the same standards as a cow dairy. Each Wednesday the milk is weighted individually by goat to have a performance record.

While much of the goats' milk is marketed through the Boyertown plant, the Shaaks like to sell from their home. They make it easy for customers - it is self-service. Customers bring their own containers and draw fresh goat milk from a spigot can. They write down the amount they purchased and leave the money in a box. The Shaaks feel this works well, although some people are apprehensive about helping themselves. The many self-service egg sales rooms gave them the idea.

So far the Shaaks have not done any advertising. Many customers are "babies who can't tolerate cow's milk," Martha said. She likes these "baby" customers because they usually remain customers for about a year. Adults with stomach disorders are the other segment of the customers for goat milk, but Martha said they usually use the product until their problem clears up - maybe six weeks - and don't come back. But there are a few people who just prefer the taste of goat milk!

Martha explained that goat's milk is good for individuals with ulcers and stomach upsets because the "fat globules are smaller and pass through the system faster. The curd which develops is softer and smaller than cow's milk." Goat milk is also effective for use with allergic rections because it doesn't have some of the components of cow's milk, according to Martha. Furthermore, she says, "It has all the good qualities of cow's milk."

Martha says she feels there will be an increase in popularity in goat milk "as we see more allergies." She said she has heard it said that goats become popular when the economy is pinched because goats are very thrifty animals, and efficient in converting feed to milk.

The Shaaks' goats are fed a 15 per cent dairy ration and all the hay they want. Dennis grew about 700-800 bales of hay on the farm this year and all the corn they needed.

"This year," he says, "We will put everything in hay."

While the Shaaks are very enthusiastic supporters of the goat industry, their interests are varied. A music major in

Benlate action may affect you

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff correspondent

YORK – If you raise fruit crops, soybeans or just a home garden, you may inadvertently be involved in action being taken by the Environmental Protection Agency against "Benlate," a benomyl fungicide.

Pennsylvania farm wives are becoming involved in the pesticide controversy through Penn's Agri-Women, who are alerting their members to contact the EPA with economic facts on the use of the fungicide as it applies to their individual farming operations

A rebuttable Presumption Against Registration, or RPAR, was issued early last December against products containing the benomyl compound. As a result, EPA has begun a review of the benefits and risks of the fungicide, a process which may take a year or more to complete. At the end of that review period, one of three recommendations will be made: that benomyl will be kept on the market through re registration of the compound; that additional safeguards should be placed on their use; or that some, or all, uses must be stopped through registration cancellation.

Benefit support of the compound is requested through documentation from individual growers, grower associations, agribusinesses and scientists. Letters and data showing the importance of "Benlate" in disease control, crop yields and crop quality should provide detailed information on the following points:

–The names of specific crops and diseases

--Effect on crop yields or quality if no fungicides were used, given in tons or bushels per acre

--Availability, comparative effectiveness and cost of alternative fungicides –Effects that loss of 'Benlate" would have on ability to grow crops. Would it become economically difficult to grow the crop? How much would the local economy suffer?

–Would growers or farm laborers be put out of work? How many?

–How much might consumer prices for the crop be affected?

Although a deadline has not yet been established, information should be sent as soon as possible. Send three copies, with the reference notation of OPP-30000/23 to this address: Federal Register Section, Technical Services Division (WH-569), Room 401 East Tower, 401 M Street S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460.

Animal hospital opened

READING – There was a very large turnout at the new Willow Creek Animal Hospital, Reading R2, on February 18th when the Tulpehocken Veterinary Group held an Open House to celebrate the completion of their new facilities.

The newly constructed building encompasses approximately 11,000 square feet and has the capabilities of handling inpatient large animals, as well as small animals. The public was given the opportunity of touring the hospital equipped with several small animal wards, examining rooms, operating and x-ray rooms, laboratories and large animal holding facilities.

The hospital is currently staffed by seven veterinarians and of their employees.

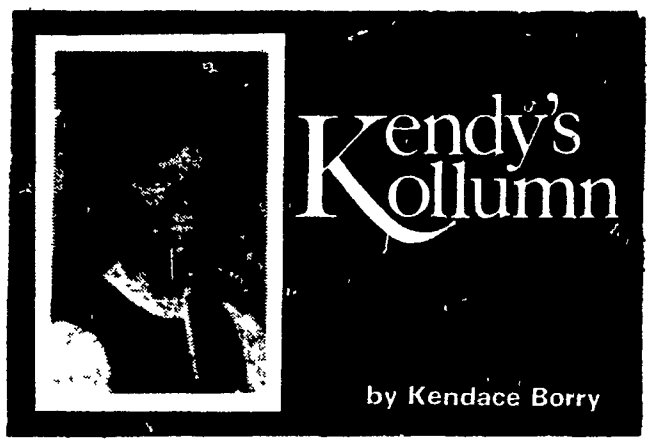
MOUSSAKA (ISRAEL)

1 pound ground lamb, mutton or beef, or mixture
Salt and pepper to taste
1 eggplant
⅔ cup tomato paste
½ cup dry bread crumbs or browned grits

Season meat to taste with salt and pepper; press into the bottom of a greased casserole or baking dish. Slice unpared eggplant into thin rounds and arrange over meat. Top with tomato paste; cover with bread crumbs or grits. Cover tightly and bake at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Remove cover and let bread crumbs brown for about 10 minutes. Yields four servings.



If you want to feel conspicuous, try being the only girl who shows up at a meeting designed just for farmers. All too often, as part of my job as roving reporter, I open a door and suddenly discover that I am the only female present.

The result is I suddenly get an attack of "instant shyness", an acute awareness disorder that makes me suddenly feel two inches tall and want to fall through the floor. My feet quickly turn to stone, my face goes beet red, and I stupidly stand there while everyone stares at me.

I'm always sure that all those big rough and tough farmers are wondering what in tarnation I am doing there, and resent the intrusion. Farmers always seem so capable to me, and I guess, I just get scared that, as a girl, I look a fool. It takes all my courage and willpower to shuffle in the doorway, and flop into the nearest seat, trying to fade into the wallpaper.

Usually, wherever I sit, the conversation of the men near me dies down to a low hush and I feel eyes staring at me. Then somebody will reach over, tap me on the shoulder, and ask, "Aren't you from Lancaster Farming?"

And suddenly my world feels all right again.

Berks Co. horse expo set for March 4

READING – The general public is invited to attend Berks County's 1978 Horse Expo which will be held in the Berks County Agricultural Center (just north of the Reading Airport off Route 183, opposite the Berks Heim) on March 4th from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Included in the day-long event will be displays, exhibits, movies, and speakers. The Expo is sponosred through the efforts of the Berks County Cooperative Extension Service and 4-H horse clubs, horse breed associations, local horse clubs, and commercial horse business.

Approximately 35 horse breed associations, horse clubs, and businesses will have displays and exhibits. Ten movies will be shown continuously throughout the day, and Speakers will address the participants on various equine subjects.

Speakers for the day include Dr. Homer S. Forney, Pa. Bureau of Animal Industries, on "Equine Infectious Anemia;" Dr. James P. Gallagher, Cooperative Extension equine specialist, "Equine Feeding and Nutrition;" Mrs. Valerie Kanavy, trail trotters, "Competitive Trail Riding;" Dr. Todd Eddes, Chester County Fox Hunters Association, "Fox Hunting;" Dr. James G. Eagleman, Willow Creek Animal Hospital, "Foaling and Post Care Management;" and Dr. Herbert C. Weaver, farrier, "Corrective Shoeing;" and Dr. John E. Baylor, Cooperative Extension agronomy specialist, "Pasture Management."

The Farmers First Collection...
when you see them, you'll want to own them.

And for a limited time they can be yours. Each time you deposit $50 or more to a new or existing savings account at Farmers First Bank you can select a watercolor of your choice from eight original hand-painted scenes of Lancaster County's heritage for just $5.95.

Each print is hand-painted through a process similar to that perfected by Currier and Ives during the 19th century. Each print measures 11" x 14", is matted and ready for framing. Handsome frames and customized mats are also available at a moderate cost with no additional deposit required. Each printed is a limited edition. When the supply is gone, there'll be no more — ever. Individually, each is beautiful, collectively, they're magnificent. Come to any Farmers First office now and see all eight paintings displayed.

Think about it. A savings account of $50.00 at Farmers First Bank is great in itself, but add to that a limited edition of Lancaster County's proud past for just $5.95 and you have something extra special.

This is a limited time offer, so stop in soon!

Junior Cooking Edition

Cakes, cakes, and more cakes are featured in the Junior Cooking Edition this week as a variety of that favorite dessert are offered to tempt your cooking talents. Anything from funnel cake to an old-fashioned sugar cake can be found in the recipes below.

Also offered are Chocolate Cream Cheese Cupcakes, Malinda Cake, Black Chocolate Cake, and Half and Half Cake.

We had a request for Junior Cookers to send in more complete directions with their recipes. This includes mentioning the pan size used, temperature baked, time in oven, complete directions, and a list of all the ingredients. Keep sending those recipes to: Lancaster Farming, Box 366, Lititz, Pa., 17543. Include your name, address, phone, and age.

FUNNEL CAKE

1 egg beaten
⅔ to ¾ cup milk
1¼ cups flour
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Beat mixture of above ingredients until smooth. Holding your finger over bottom of funnel, fill funnel with batter. Holding funnel as near surface of fat as possible, remove finger and drop batter into 375° fat. Use circular movement from center outward when pouring batter. Fry until puffy and golden brown. Dust with 10X sugar. Makes 2 to 2½ dozen.

xxx

CHOCOLATE CREAM CHEESE CUPCAKES

Batter:

1½ cups flour
1 cup granulated sugar
¼ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 cup water
⅓ cup shortening
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Topping:

1 egg
⅓ cup granulated sugar
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese

Mix batter and topping ingredients separately. Fill either small or large cupcake cups ½ full of cake batter. Then drop a teaspoon of topping on top. Bake at 350°F. for 15 to 18 minutes. Makes about 36 small cupcakes.

xxx

MALINDA CAKE

1½ cups sugar (brown or white)
½ cup cold water
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt. Mix sugar and water. Add flour mixture, egg yolks and vanilla. Beat egg whites stiff and fold into mixture last. Pour in greased cake pan and bake at 350°F. for 35 minutes or until done.

BLACK CHOCOLATE CAKE

2 cups granulated sugar
3 cups flour
6 heaping tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon salt
1 heaping teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons vinegar
2 teaspoons vanilla
10 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 cups cold water

Mix ingredients together until thoroughly blended. Pour in greased cake pan and bake for 30 minutes at 375°F.

xxx

HALF AND HALF CAKE

1½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup soft butter
2 eggs
3 cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking soda
2 tablespoons cocoa
½ cup buttermilk
½ cup salad dressing
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup water

Put ingredients in a bowl and mix for ten minutes. Pour into a greased pan. Bake at 350°F. until cake is done.

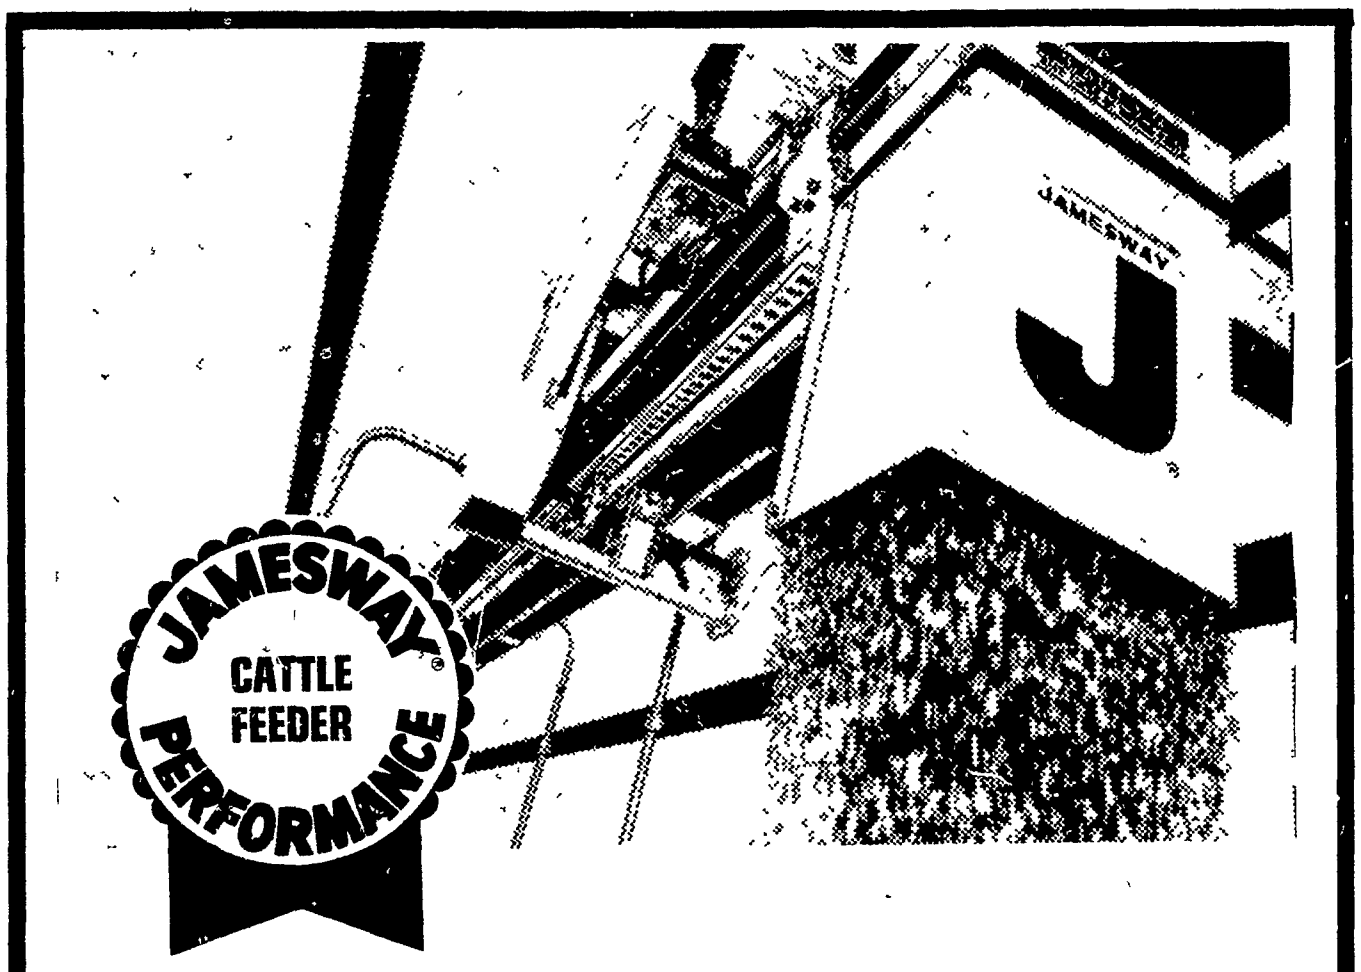
SUGAR CAKE

2 or 3 potatoes
1 package dry yeast
⅔ cup warm water
½ cup granulated sugar
1½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter
2 eggs, slightly beaten
7 cups sifted flour
1 cup scalded milk

Topping:

2 cups light brown sugar
cinnamon
½ lb. butter

Peel and cook enough potatoes to make 1 cup mashed potatoes. Dissolve yeast in warm water. To scalded milk, add sugar, salt, and butter, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cool until lukewarm. Add the mashed potatoes, yeast, and eggs and beat until smooth. Add flour and knead 10 minutes, using more flour as dough becomes sticky. Place in a greased bowl and brush with melted shortening. Let rise in a warm place about 1¼ hour or until doubled in bulk. Roll into two or three cakes and put each in a cookie sheet, with sides, or 9 x 13" pans. Spread dough to edges. Brush top with melted shortening, cover, let rise to ¾ inch thickness. Punch dough with thumb to make holes one inch apart. Place ¼ inch cube of butter in each hole. With pastry brush, spread melted butter over top. Sprinkle with light brown sugar and cinnamon. Bake at 350°F. for 20 to 25 minutes.



BELTS OUT THE FEED

Rodeo couple say vows on horseback

By JOANNE SPAHR

MENGES MILLS – How many newlyweds can look back on their wedding day and remember that the groom didn't kiss the bride because his horse reared up? And, how many can say their ceremony was disrupted when the best man's horse fell down? But, then, how many can say that they got married in a sales stable on horseback? The answer is "very few."

David and Coleen Martin, 196 Water Street, Spring Grove, can stake that claim, however, and they have witnesses to prove it. For, on January 22 of this year, 253 adults and 13 children sat in the bleachers and buyers' seats at Beil's Sales Arena, York Srpings, and watched this unique wedding take place in the auction ring.

Every member of the wedding party was astride a horse, except for the father of the bride, who walked his daughter's horse in, and the females in the party, who rode in to the ring side saddle. Even the minister did the honors from atop an equine.

Why would a couple choose to get married on horseback?

"Just to do something different," says Dave, 24, who "never wanted a regular wedding."

Both he and his 18-year-old wife, the former Coleen Schuster, of Rockville, Md., are horse lovers from way back and both more-or-less "grew up" inside sales stables, so they felt this type of wedding would be appropriate for them.

Dave is owner of Keystone Championship Rodeo, Co., as well livestock buyer for the company and professional rodeo contestant on the side.

His wife is the daughter of Frank E. Schuster, Clarksburg, Md., a horse dealer. She, herself, sells horses, as well.

"I'd been going to Beil's since I was a little girl, so having the wedding there was all right with me," states the newlywed.

Fortunately for the young couple, the arena was rebuilt a few years ago, so it was clean enough for them to wear the traditional wedding garb instead of blue jeans, which might be expected.

"The guys wore black tuxes with silk trim," notes Dave, although he admits he succumbed to the urge to wear a leather belt instead of suspenders. He also wore western boots and a western hat.

Coleen wore a white hooded gown with a fur-trimmed cape.

The decorating for the ceremony came easily for them since they knew Beil's set up fairly well, and since Dave's brother and sister-in-law run a decorating and photography business in Spring Grove known as Jim and Rosene's.

Some special touches created just for the wedding included an alter made of hay and straw bales and wall decorations of baler twine braids which the bride and groom braided about a week in advance.

Another unique touch for this unusual wedding was that two of the horses used by the wedding party had been purchased by Martin for use in his rodeo as bucking broncos.

"Acutally," grins Dave, "the horses hadn't been ridden since October or November. Mine was an Appaloosa I'd bought because it was known for rearing up and falling over backwards. But, I used him in the wedding because I liked his color."

At the wedding rehearsal, all went well, without one horse acting up. This wedding, however, was a different story.

"There were a few problems," Dave notes with a twinkle in his eye. For instance, during the ceremony, the horses kept shifting apart, so that when it came time to kiss the bride, the newlyweds were too far apart to reach each other. Later, when Dave did get his horse in line again, the animal reared up just when Dave kissed the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. David Martin pose for pictures following their unique wedding ceremony which took place on horseback.

That wasn't the worst, however.

"I guess the biggest thing was when the best man's horse got excited and fell down toward the end of the ceremony," comments Coleen.

Immediately jumping into the conversation Dave adds, "But, for us the wedding wasn't the kind of affair where everything had to be perfect. We expected some problems and didn't get upset when they happened."

"Our main concern from the very beginning was that the wedding should be taken seriously and not considered a mockery. The Bible does not allow the Lord's House to be turned into a marketplace, but says nothing about turning a marketplace into the Lord's House."

Both Dave and Coleen are happy with the way the ceremony turned out.

"I'd advise anybody to have their ceremony the way they want it, but I'd tell them not to expect to please everybody, and not to expect it to run smoothly," Dave says.

As a sidenote, the couple, who now runs Keystone Rodeo Company, hopes to start their own auction business in the future.

They're off to a good start.

On being a farm wife

—And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

Our family is a group of ice cream lovers. We think it's just about the perfect dessert or snack, eaten plain or topped off with fresh fruit or an assortment of yummy toppings

Early in my ventures into the joys of farm culture, I was introduced to the intimate details of ice cream production via the aching-muscle method--better known as the crank-it-yourself home ice cream freezer.

But my farmer has an affinity to motors. (I fully expect to wake up some cold morning and find myself geared into a half-horse to power me to the barn more quickly.) And so it was only natural that this marriage should become blessed with the motorized model for ice cream production

After several years and heavy use, the first old faithful finally conked out. But, alas, an electric freezer of the heavy-duty type we needed just was not being marketed. So, we broke down and settled for a throw-back with a crank.

Undaunted, the farmer unpacked the box, gazed upon the hand labor equipment and set to inventing. Shortly thereafter, the new ice cream maker took a giant step forward into the machine age, by way of a small motor, a belt and an old bicycle wheel. I had been saved again from the perils of becoming muscle bound

But then, another age passed, and we faced a private energy crisis when our power systems deteriorated The entire Winter passed last year and, though I hate to admit it, we never did make ice cream

With mountains of snow engulfing the farm [illegible] the kids fell under the lure of the long neglected freezer last Sunday afternoon. Charging into the living room, they announced that they were making ice cream all by themselves and I couldn't even help mix the ingredients. Stretched out on the sofa reading the Sunday papers, I certainly wasn't about to argue–I did agree to make waffles to serve with the cold treat. And they never even complained once about having to turn that hand crank.

But, is that liniment I smell?

Lebanon County 4-H expo promises fun-filled week

LEBANON – "4-H - It A'n't All Cows and Cookin" is the theme of Lebanon County's 4-H Week to be held March 1-4, at the Lebanon Valley Mall.

"There will be nearly 50 4-H displays at the mall, as well as special activities every evening and Saturday afternoon," says Patricia A. Krall, Extension 4-H agent in Lebanon County.

Displays will focus on projects that boys and girls can do as 4-H members. 4-H Week will have an opening ceremony on March 1 at 7 p.m. At that time, local legislators, county and city officials will be escorted through the display areas by 4-H teen leaders. At 7:30 p.m. a folk dancing exhibition will be presented.

On March 2, 4-H'ers will be on hand to show people "how to do" several of the 4-H projects. 4-H'ers will be demonstrating how to make cornhusk dolls, do macrame, weaving, leather work, grooming animals and more.

A 4-H fashion revue will be presented March 3 at 7 p.m. and again at 8 p.m. 4-H'ers will be modeling the garments they made as their 4-H project.

Saturday, March 4 will feature a pet dressing contest at 1:30 p.m. Anyone between the ages of 8 and 18 years is eligible to participate. Prizes will be awarded to the pet who's costume is the funniest, the ugliest, the most original, the prettiest and the most elaborate. Participants will work in teams of two. Every team will have 12 minutes to dress their pet. Teams must register in advance at the 4-H information booth. Registration deadline is March 3 at 10 p.m. Serving as the judges will be Fred Williams of WAHT radio and his wife, Peggy.

In addition to the pet dressing contest, a dog obedience exhibition will also be part of Saturday's activities. Chet and Nancy Monaghan, Dauphin County 4-H dog obedience course instructors, will conduct the exhibition. On display during the week will be entries in the 4-H poster contest. 4-H'ers submit poster designs in one of the nationally selected theme areas.

Conf. hopeful on beef future

FORT WORTH – The beef cattle industry promises to be the bright spot in U.S. agriculture in coming years. This optimistic outlook summarized the Beef Truth Conference sponsored as part of the 55th National Polled Hereford Convention, Show, and Sale held in Fort Worth recently.

The panel of leading livestock experts told the nearly 1,000 cattlemen in attendance that in all likelihood cattle prices will be substantially higher in the coming years.

Former U.S. Sec. of Agriculture Butz and former Texas governor Connally warned the crowd representing a diversity of cattle breeds and interestes of the dangers of too much government control. They emphasized the importance of America's free enterprise system and pointed out how cattlemen have traditionally typified this American premise.

Dr. Robert Lewis, commodity futures broker, said he believes that USDA figures have overestimated the total cattle numbers in this country. He stated that commercial feedlots have put 1.6 million more cattle on feed in the last six months and that we have overliquidated the national cow herd, with Jan. 1, 1978, figures reporting a drastic drop to 116,265,000 head. Consequently, according to Lewis, cattle prices are going to be substantially higher.

In summarizing the conference, APHA President Orville K. Sweet concluded, "The psychology affecting the cattle industry should now be changed. This beef truth conference sparked by these recognized authorities has nothing but optimistic ramifications for the entire beef industry."

Let us never forget that the cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man.

My Thoughts . . . . .

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Assistant Editor

"Mom, I can't find my watch," bellowed my older brother in desperation, as he ripped apart drawers, jewelry boxes, and medicine cabinets looking for his precious timepiece.

As I watched him dart around, ferreting through all the junk in the hidden corners of the house, I thought to myself that his girlfriend, whoever she was, sure was lucky.

What other 17-year-old boy came in from the barn early just to take a bath before going out on a date? And, what boy in school had such a nice, well-combed crew cut? Yes, I decided, as I sat at the kitchen table eating my sandwich, whoever she was, his girlfriend sure was lucky.

Then he turned on me.

"Jo, where'd you put it?" he demanded, rosy cheeks flushed into vivid anger

"You always do this," he proclaimed, slapping his hands down hard on his sides "You always put my watch in the freezer or my keys in the oven or something dumb like that whenever you clean up Now, where'd you put watch this time? Cough up, I'm late for a date."

What a slob, I thought to myself What a royal slob. Nobody but a slob would falsely accuse me of sticking his dumb old watch in the oven.

But, this wasn't the first time This business of false accusations had a history that went way back. Being the youngest child (four years younger than big brother), I was always the one who got blamed for everything.

It wasn't unusual for conversations in the barn to go like this:

Jo: What cat?

Dad: Who let the rabbit pens open?

Jo: The cat did it.

But, this watch accusation was it. I'd had it. Just as I opened my mouth to scream my defense Mom yelled, "I found the watch. It was in with the bread."

All eyes turned to me My newly made sandwich turned to concrete in my mouth as I bit into it

Do you think the cat might have done it?

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We certainly are dependent on electricity these days. And when the current is off, we must improvise.

One recent morning, we ate our breakfast with the aid of a kerosene lamp that I had gotten off the top shelf of our corner cupboard. There was no hot water for coffee but we had lots of cold milk instead. The milking was postponed and also feeding the cows their silage.

The next morning the electricity went off again in the middle of my son's shower and shampoo. He reluctantly accepted my offer of a pitcher of cold drinking water to rinse his hair. These are minor inconveniences, but they show our dependency on the power company.

However, there are times when we have too much electricity. An occurrence last month proved this beyond a doubt. It seems that one of our older heifers licked a light switch until the plate came off and then continued to lick the wires and was electrocuted. It was quite bizarre.

When I sewed with a group of ladies from our church at the Lancaster General Hospital this week, I listened to stories of many different families. Some were tales of misfortune which had befallen their neighbors. I heard of young couples who struggled with raising children and putting father through college. Peoples health or lack of health has a very important bearing on their daily life as we all know.

The statement which I remembered and liked the best was when a lady described the family of her son's girlfriend. she said, "They are a family where the members enjoy each other." Now what nicer comment could be made! It is the definition that we all hope others will apply to us.

'No cook' hot cereal reviewed

This Winter there is a new look in the hot cereal section of supermarkets–the "no cook" hot cereals. "No cook" means adding boiling water to cereal in a bowl and giving it a quick stir. These products come in boxes of eight or 10 servings. Each serving is measured, and is in its own envelope. They are easy to prepare and give a quick hot meal to start the day.

Cost of the "no cook" style cereals is two to three times that of cooked varieties. So, this is a major factor in choosing to serve these products. For example, a mix and eat cream of wheat costs seven cents per serving and the cooked variety costs 2.8 cents per serving. Instant oatmeal costs approximately seven cents per serving and cooked oatmeal costs about three cents per serving

There is some nutritional difference in the cereals because the instant cereals have added nutrients which the cooked cereals do not have. There is not a large difference, and reading labels will help one decide if the added nutrition could be important in the diet. It could be important for persons not getting enough nutrients in the other food they eat.

Of special interest, nutritionally, is cream of wheat. Both its "no cook" and cooked styles have iron added to provide 45% of adult's daily need. This cereal could be especially useful to people lacking iron. Teenage girls and women frequently have this problem.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Co. Society 3

Past president Mrs. Betty Edwards, Ephrata R1, entertained the members of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 3 at their recent meeting.

A report was given of the Lancaster Co. Farm Women Society executive board meeting. Members told of a visit to Conestoga View where the guests were entertained with a bingo game.

Mrs. Brian McCarty, of the Ephrata Ambulance Association spoke and demonstrated safety and first aid procedures to the group.

The next meeting will be held at the Historical Society of the Cocalico Valley, in Ephrata. Mrs. Erla Gehman will be hostess.

On February 18, Lancaster County Farm Women Society 18 entertained Society 7 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

President Evelyn Brubaker led the business meeting. Mrs. Mabel Shaubach demonstrated how to make party sandwiches. Helen N. Hess sang several solos for the group.

Members were reminded of the Spring Rally to be held in Hershey on May 17.

The next meeting of the group will be March 18 at the Village of Old Hickory. Evelyn Hess will be hostess.

Lancaster Co. Society 19

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 19 met at the Landisville Church of God on February 11.

Because of the recent heavy snowstorms, the January and February programs were combined. After a morning of sewing cancer pads, a covered dish meal was served to the group. Following the meal, Ruth Dourte, Lancaster, spoke to the group about dealing with emotions.

It was decided to contribute $20 to the Cerebral Palsy and the Emergency Fuel funds.

Lancaster Co. Society 29

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 29 was hosted February 20 at the home of Judy Erb. The meeting was brought to order by Marty Bixler, president.

Martin Brown, of Lancaster, a graduate of Lafayette College and employed by RCA Color Department, gave an informative and entertaining talk on stuttering.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostess Pat Breneman.

Next month's meeting will be March 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Glossbrenner Church with Rev. Mehle demonstrating chalk drawing. Members are to invite their mothers and daughters to this meeting. On March 11, at 8 p.m. at the Clearview Lanes, a bowling party is to be held with husbands.

Lancaster Co. Society 31

Members of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 31 met at the home of Mrs. Curtis Akers, Quarryville, R1. Co-hostess was Mrs. Robert Groff.

Mrs. Robert Clark, president, was in charge of the business meeting. A report on the state convention was given by Mrs. Curtis Akers and Mrs. James Kreider. It was decided to contribute $100 to the emergency fuel committee through the council of churches.

Mrs. Glenn Wenger gave a demonstration of decoupage, also telling the history of the art.

The next meeting of the group will be March 20, at the home of Mrs. Mark Risser, Holtwood R1. Mrs. James Landis will serve as co-hostess.

Lebanon Co. Society 5

Lebanon County Farm Women Society 15 recently entertained their husbands with a sweetheart dinner at the Ono Fire Hall. Fifty members and guests attended the event.

Entertainment for the event was provided by the "Seventh Heaven" barbershop quartet from the Lebanon Hanging Cedars Chapter.

The March meeting of the group will be held at the home of Sandra Lentz. Members are reminded that they are to bring a baby picture to the meeting. During show and tell, hobby night will be featured.

York Co. Society 26

The February meeting of York County Farm Women Society 26 was held at the home of Mrs. Benjamin Conley, Etters R2. A Valentine's Day luncheon was served to members present.

Society 26 will entertain Society 34 sometime during the month of April. They will in turn be entertained by Society 23, it was announced at the meeting.

The York Co. Farm Picnic will be held at the 4-H Center, July 26, beginning at 11:30 a.m. The York Co. Farm Women Convention will be held November 2, at the St. Matthew Lutheran Church, York.

The March meeting of the Society will be held at the home of Mrs. June Barge, York Haven, on March 14, starting at 12:30 p.m. Plans will be made for the safety meeting to be held in April.

York Co. Society 35

The February meeting of York County Farm Women Society 35 was held at the home of Virginia Swartzbaugh. Marcy Seckman, York Co. home economist, presented a program on craft ideas made from prequilted fabric.

A report from the recently held executive board meeting was held. Members were reminded of the following dates: Spring Rally, May 17; York Hospital Fete, May 19 and 20; county picnic, July 26; and county convention, November 2.

The group will have a bake sale at the North Mall on March 3. All members were asked to work on craft items for a Spring garage sale.

The next meeting will be held March 9 at the home of Diane Workman. The program will be "Crosses from around the world."

Grange meets

VIRGINVILLE – Joan Deitrich, Dorothy Kershner, and Minnie Adam placed first, second, and third respectively in the cherry pie contest held at the recent Virginville Grange meeting.

Upcoming events of the group include a youth meeting set for March 2, at 7:30 p.m. and bingo at the state school on February 27. Sewing contestant entries must be in by April 18.

The Grange will sponsor a C.B.R. course the first three Monday evenings in March, from 7 to 10 p.m.

HOW TO USE COLOR EFFECTIVELY IN THE HOME

Rules for using color in decorating have been established and used for a long time. They usually work successfully, and for most people, it's best to work with these rules in mind.

It's only when you know what the rules are that you can be aware when, how and why they should be broken.

The decorating trend today is to break established rules for the use of color. This is fine and can be fun, but it can be expensive if the experiment fails. For most people, home decorating is an investment in both time and money and costly mistakes can be avoided by thoughtful planning and following the rules.

Professional designers who create bold, dramatic interiors have had years of training and experience with color theory. While the effects they create look free and spontaneous, they really have just substituted "new" rules for the old.

When selecting colors for your home, limit your choices to three or four. If that doesn't sound like many choices to you, consider the hundreds of shades available in just one color, the variety of intensities in those colors, and the textural interest created by the materials using those colors – the range of colors you have to work with is almost limitless.

Once you have worked out what colors you want, you can introduce them in a number of ways – paint, fabric, wallpaper and light.

Paint is the least expensive way to use color – on walls, accents on moldings and woodwork, around doors and windows, on the ceiling, on the furniture and even on the floor.

Fabric is an important way to integrate color by using it on upholstered furniture, in rugs, curtains and drapes.

Wallpaper, which should be considered at the same time as fabric, introduces color and pattern. This can complicate your color scheme slightly if you don't make your selection carefully.

LAMB — A MEAT LIKE NO OTHER

Looking for a dish that'll turn an ordinary meal into an extraordinary delight? Then think lamb; it's a meat like no other. Enthusiasts rave about its natural tenderness and delicate flavor, and cooks love it for its versatility.

Almost all lamb cuts are naturally tender because they come from young sheep under one year old. Meat from one to two year old sheep is called yearling mutton, and meat from sheep older than two years is called mutton. Lamb is not mutton; mutton is much less tender.

Much of today's lamb is of high quality, but some is better than others. How can you tell which is better? Just look for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's quality grade shields stamped on the outside fat covering. They're your reliable guides to lamb eating quality – its tenderness, juiciness, and flavor.

Five grades – USDA Prime, Choice, Good, Utility, and Cull – span the range of lamb quality. However, the lower two are seldom, if ever, sold as retail cuts. USDA Prime is the highest quality grade, but USDA Choice is the one most widely available at retail markets.

In addition to the quality grade you should also select by the cut because, although most lamb cuts are naturally tender, some are more tender than others. Cuts from the less-used muscles along the lamb's back – the rib and loin sections – will always be the most tender cuts. While not quite as tender as rib and loin cuts, cuts from the leg are very acceptable. Cuts from the shoulder are still fairly tender.

Consistently tender retail cuts include the sirloin chop, the loin chop or roast, the rib chop or roast, and the leg center slice or roast. You will find that most cuts of USDA Prime or Choice lamb – including the less expensive shoulder cuts – are tender and can be oven roasted, broiled, or pan-broiled. Because of lamb's natural tenderness, even the breast, riblets, neck, and shanks will make excellent dishes when braised slowly.

Besides tasting good, lamb is good for you. Among meats, lamb is a good source of vitamins B-1 and B-2, iron and niacin.

To get more information on lamb grades and cuts, write for a single free copy of "How to Buy Lamb" (G-195) to: Office of Communication, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Please include your zip code.

Fruit meeting planned

LANCASTER -- The Lancaster-Dauphin-Lebanon fruit meeting will be held on March 1 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Beginning at 9:30, the program will start with a county agent report, given by Arnold Lueck, Extension Agent-Horticulture and Agronomy. This will be followed by an evaluation of orchard practices which have paid off in recent years. Speaker on the topic will be Dr. Marshall Ritter, Extension Pomologist from Penn State.

Covering the promotion of apples, Debbie Lott, the 1977 State and National Apple Queen will be next on the program, followed by Kurt Schweitzer, marketing representative for apple marketing program of the Pa. Dept. of Agriculture.

There will also be a fruit growers meeting in the morning.

Afternoon subjects will include disease control for '78, featuring Dr. Don H. Petersen, Extension Plant Pathologist from Penn State, and orchard insects, covered by Dr. Robert C. Tetrault, Extension Entomologist.

Meat imports down

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. meat imports were down last year. At 783,979 metric tons, they were off six per cent from a year earlier, reports USDA. But they were still slightly higher than 1974 and 1975 meat import levels.

Imports of beef and veal, at 633,636 tons, and pork, at 135,346 tons, were both off six per cent from a year earlier. Lamb imports, at 9,543 tons, were off 39 per cent.

But, a breakdown of U.S. Customs Service monitorings of meat imports subject to the Meat Import Law (mainly fresh, chilled and frozen beef and veal), shows Jan. - Dec. imports at 1.250 billion lbs., up about 1½ per cent from the 1.232 billion lbs. imported in 1976.

These girls are going places because of FFA

By DIETER KRIEG

OXFORD — Two 17-year old girls at Oxford High School are really going places, and they credit the Future Farmers of America program for much of it.

Angela King has already earned her Keystone Farmer degree and will be running for state office this year. She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. King, Nottingham.

Geroldine Miller, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Miller, Lincoln University, narrowly missed the Keystone Degree honor this Winter, but will be eligible for another crack at it next season. Nevertheless, she has compiled a record of leadership and recognition which makes her instructors, Kenneth Thompson and Scott Gold proud.

Both Geroldine and Angela are members of the parliamentary procedures team where they have picked up valuable points on how to get along better with people. Both of them are also county FFA officers, with Angela filling the president's chair and Geroldine serving as chaplain.

The FFA has Geroldine and Angela going places in more ways than one. There have been trips to Penn State University and even Kansas City, Mo., where the National FFA Convention is held each year.

"Working outside is conversing with Nature," says Angela, who is presently employed part-time at the Rite-Aid store outside of Oxford. Having grown up on a farm, and still making her home in the country, she is making firm plans for a future on the farm. Specifically, she wants to go into dairy farming. She already owns six Holstein heifers and is also working with a small herd of swine.

"I like working outside and with the animals," the young lady told Lancaster Farming recently.

Citing her rural upbringing as the reason she became interested in FFA, Angela says it has helped her develop a more mature personality. "I can conduct myself better in front of people, including here at the cash register," she explained, as she began to list the advantages of FFA membership. In addition, Angela has found FFA helpful in building leadership traits and public speaking abilities. She has also developed her interviewing skills, which last Summer earned her first place in a state-wide contest. That performance secured her a trip to Kansas City to attend the national convention.

Meeting people and making friends are two more advantages Angela and Geroldine have found in the FFA program. That in itself has helped them to find new ideas and knowledge. A lot of their experiences have shaped their lives.

While Geroldine became interested in agriculture and the FFA because of her background, Geroldine joined the program because of the encouragement she received from Angela. The two have been close friends for years and enjoy a variety of activities together. Both are members of the girl's track team at Oxford High School, and both are also Riflettes with the band. Angela serves as president of that group. In addition, Angela is a member of the Future Business Leaders of America and the girl's basketball team. Geroldine is active on the hockey team. Both have been chosen as FFA sweethearts for their chapter.

Geroldine credits the FFA for having turned her into a more open person, adding that she was once a shy individual. She also loves meeting people through the FFA program and enjoys working with animals.

She sums up her testimonial for the FFA by saying that the best part of the organization is that everybody can work together. "It's like one big family and the advisors are like our parents."

Geroldine Miller, left, and Angela King are both active members of the Oxford FFA Chapter, and this week -- FFA Week -- one of their responsibilities was to prepare interesting radio messages about the FFA. Here they're getting ready to turn the dial to WCOJ, the station that carried the FFA programs.

Young Farmer banquet held at Garden Spot

By DIETER KRIEG

BLUE BALL – Garden Spot Young Farmers picked 30-year old Bill Fisher as their outstanding member last week during an awards banquet held at the Blue Ball Fire Hall, here. Fisher, a Lancaster County crop and livestock farmer who has special interests in swine production, accepted the honor along with his wife, the former Dee Ressler.

Manager of a 125-sow swine herd at Stauffer Homestead Farm, east of Blue Ball, Fisher has been involved in farming for all of his life. Born and raised on the Stauffer farm, he helps in the overall management of the farming operation. His chief responsibilities, aside from the swine herd, include the management of over 300 acres of crop and pasture land. A Charolais beef breeding herd also helps to keep the young farmer busy.

Bill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fisher. His father is manager of the Stauffer farm.

The younger Fisher has been an active member of the Lancaster County Swine Producers Association and is a past president of the Garden Spot Young Farmers group. Among his more recent accomplishments, aside from the award he received at the Young Farmers banquet on Friday night, is his selection as a Pork All-American for 1978. That distinction was officially announced last Saturday night during a swine producers banquet in Intercourse. Separate articles on that banquet and Bill's Pork All-America status may be found elsewhere in this issue.

As permanent recognition to his outstanding Young Farmer selection, Fisher received a plaque to keep in his home, and will have his name engraved on the Carl M. Sauders Memorial Award which is displayed in the Life on the farm offers a number of rewards for Garden Spot Young Farmer Bill Fisher. One special satisfaction is being able to work together with his 11-year old son, David. Fisher and his wife, Dee, also have a 7-year old daughter, Heidi.

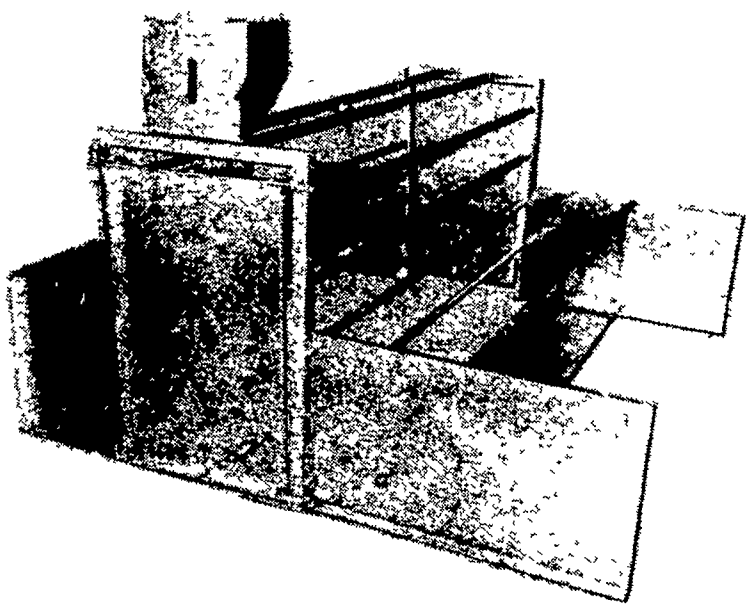
Northco Farrowing Crates....



THE TOUGH FARROWING CRATES

EASY TO CLEAN - There's a minimum of places for manure to hang-up and the round side-rails make clean-up easy. This means better sanitation and longer crate life. Northco Farrowing Crates in use since 1968 are still in good condition.

LABOR-SAVING - Northco Farrowing Crates can raise more pigs with less labor. Automatic feeding, watering and controlled manuring reduce the "busy" work of farrowing and increase the time available for management.

PIG-SAVING - Farrowing crates can help you wean an extra pig or more per litter according to customer experience and university research. Those extra pigs add up to extra profit for you.

Heavy-gauge, galvanized steel construction makes Northco Farrowing Crates tough . . . to stand up to hog-house abuse. But Northco Farrowing Crates are more than strong.

Optional manual metering hopper is available for use with an overhead fill system.

"For the serious dairyman who's shooting for more tons of silage, I think Furadan is a good solution. Because it controls those insects that cut yields in this area."

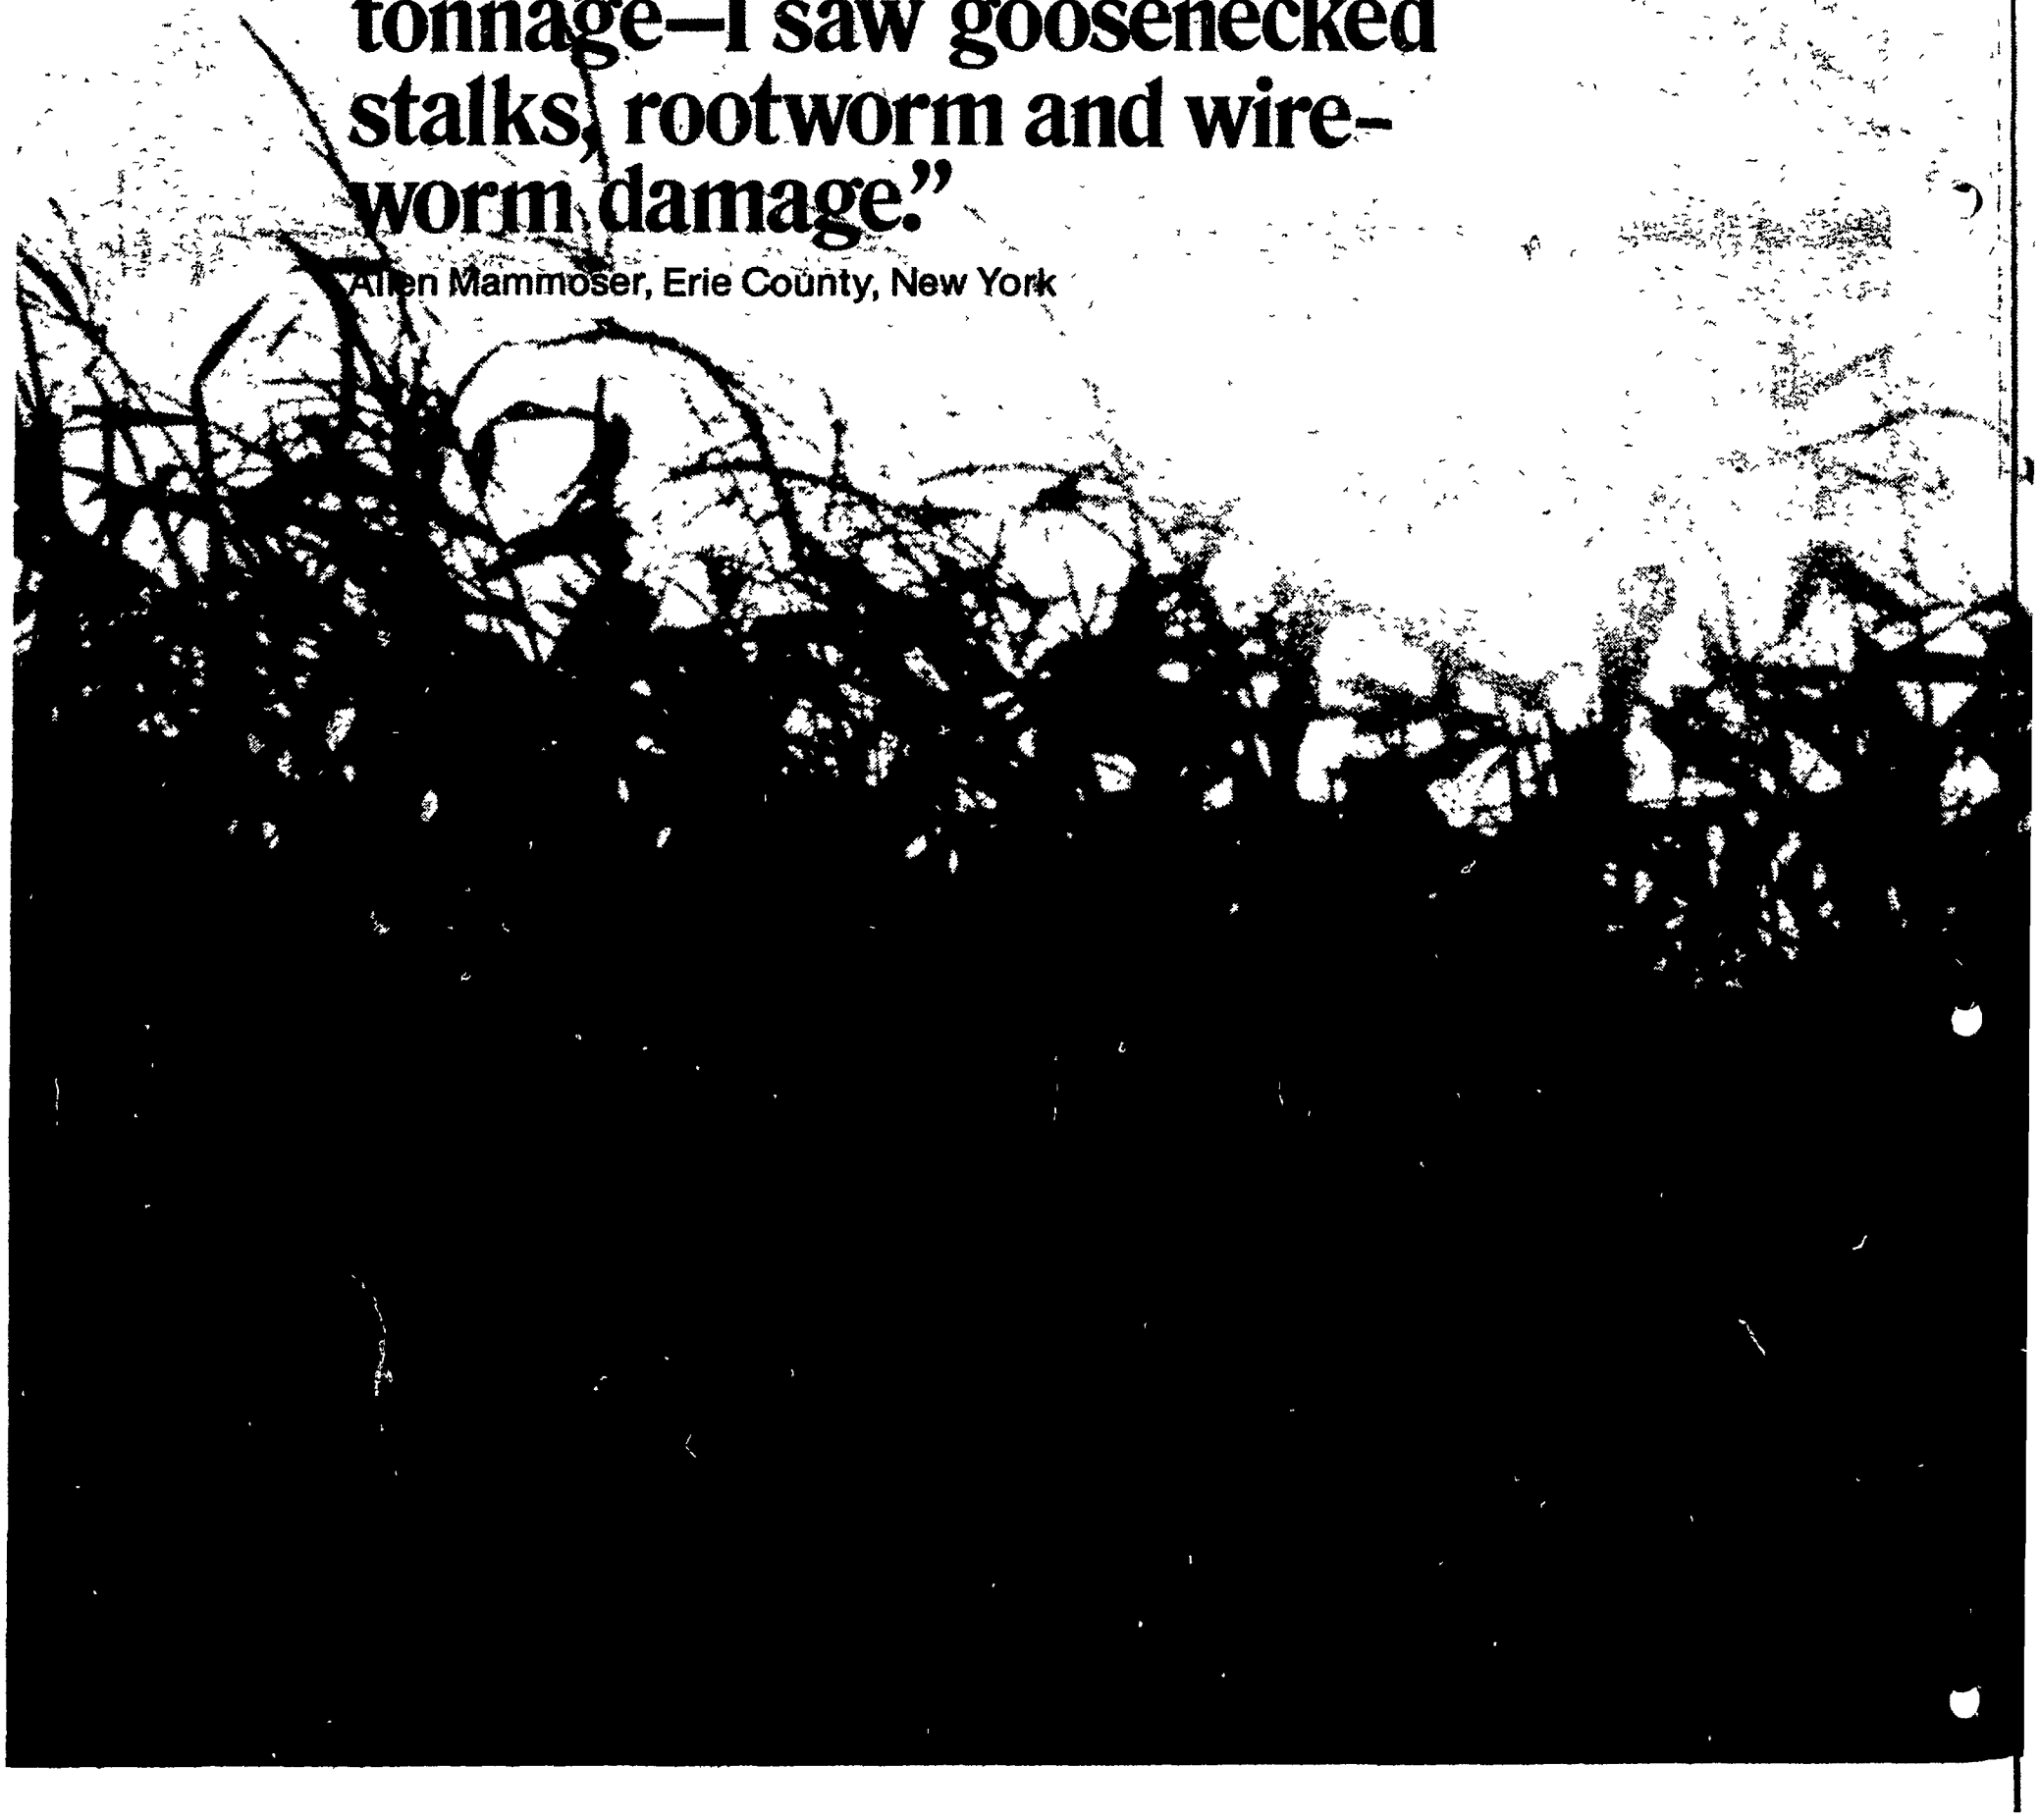
Chuck Dodd, Warren County, Pennsylvania

"Insect problems can cut silage yields in half in this area. Some guys think I've got a different type of fertilizer or something, but the only difference is Furadan."

Donald Zittel, Erie County, New York

"I figure that where I didn't use Furadan, I lost 10 to 20% of my tonnage—I saw goosenecked stalks, rootworm and wireworm damage."

Allen Mammoser, Erie County, New York



"We ran a test that convinced us how well Furadan works. We applied Furadan to three-fourths of a field. And the difference was 1,400 pounds of ground ear corn per acre." Larry Rater, Chautauqua County, New York

Why do top-notch dairymen use Furadan® insecticide-nematicide for their corn?

Because they've seen tons of silage lost from insects and nematodes.

And they know Furadan controls more pests than any other corn soil insecticide.

Instead of convincing you with our tests, we asked Furadan users to talk about their battle against damaging corn insects. And they said it better than we could.

If you're not sure how Furadan fits into your operation, talk to a dairyman who's tried it.

Or call your farm chemical supplier. He'll explain how Furadan stops more pests. And saves more corn. FMC Corporation, Agricultural Chemical Group, 2000 Market Street, Philadelphia, PA 19103.

Stop. All pesticides can be harmful to health and the environment if misused. Read the label carefully and use only as directed.

NFU wants 'influence' probe

WASHINGTON, D.C. – National Farmers Union has demanded a congressional investigation of the influence of the multinational grain trading companies over the policies of the U.S. government relating to trade and pricing of grains. Tony T. Dechant, national president of the Farmers Union, called for the probe in letters to the chairmen of six committees which share jurisdiction of farm pricing and trade matters.

Dechant noted that the National Farmers Union was excluded from the U.S. delegation to the International Wheat Agreement negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland, although "the Farmers Union represents more dues-paying, dirt-plowing, wheat-planting farmers" than any of the groups that are included.

In contrast, Dechant said, "alien-owned, alien-controlled and alien-based" grain companies have had their own man inside the government's trade and grain price formulating apparatus from the start.

Dechant said the U.S. government's price policy in the wheat agreement negotiations indicates that the "intimate relationship" between company executives and government officials of the previous administration is continuing. The aim seems to be "to get the governments of the world to work together to keep farm prices down when supplies are large, and to use 'reserves' to force them back down when supplies are short," he said.

"We believe agricultural trade policy continues to be subservient to the grain traders and sharply biased against the interest of American farmers," Dechant said.

Dairy board plans year

CHAMBERSBURG – The Franklin County 4-H Dairy Council Board met recently to plan events for the 1978 year.

The annual county-wide meeting and covered-dish supper will be on April 1, 7 p.m., at Faust Junior High School, Chambersburg. The final championship round of the Dairy Bowl contest will provide entertainment for the evening. Also receiving awards that night will be two 4-H'ers from each dairy club, with the highest record book scores in their respective clubs. A trophy will be awarded to each member of the county Dairy Bowl team that won in last year's State Days.

The 4-H Dairy Council will have three representatives on the 4-H Advisory Council Board. These will be Paul Johnson, Mercersburg, Stanley Helman, Chambersburg, and the new vice president to be elected in April.

March 10 there will be a District 4-H Dairy Show meeting in Harrisburg.

The annual Franklin County 4-H Calf Sale will be held April 7. Calves are now being selected.

Cattle imports up

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Cattle imports were off in December, but the full 1977 total was the highest since 1972. Cattle imports for December of 1977 were down by 13 per cent from the year before, reports USDA's Livestock Market News.

But imports of live cattle for all of 1977 totaled 1,133,279 head nonetheless, up 15 per cent from the previous year and accounting for the new record of the decade.

A breakdown shows that Canada accounted for 538,685 of the cattle imports, Mexico 594,020. The remaining 578 head were from other countries. While there's no breakdown on the weights of the imports, most in the past years have been 200 to 700 pound feeder cattle.

Some people thought they could make trees bear fruit by threatening to cut them down.

Pork producers gather for annual banquet

By KENDACE BORRY

INTERCOURSE – Good foods, awards, an election of directors, and speakers were the reasons approximately 500 people gathered to attend the Pa. Pork Producers Council and the Lancaster Co. Swine Producers Association 21st Annual banquet and meeting. Held at the Harvest Drive Restaurant, Intercourse, Pa., the event was held on February 18.

The James Z. Martin Swine Achievement Award was presented to Stuart Heisey, an eight year member of the Elizabethtown Pig and Rabbit Club in Lancaster County. The youth has served his club as newsreporter, secretary, vice president, and president and has shown reserve champion hogs in 1973 and 1976 county roundup as well as exhibiting the grand champion trio in 1977.

Three state youth awards were presented by the Pa. Pork Producers Council. The 4-H club award went to Denise McConahey, from Indiana County, who raises and shows Chester Whites and Doroc hogs. Denise had shown 8 champions and reserve champions throughout her 4-H showing career at the Indiana County Fair. She has also served 4-H as secretary of County Council and president of the dairy club.

The FFA award went to J Ronald Zimmerman, Ephrata R1, who presently finishes out 500 market hogs per year besides having a breeding herd of 20 sows. Ronald has shown champion carcass hogs at the Lancaster FFA Show, the champion at the Ephrata Fair, and the champion lightweight animal at the Pa Farm Show.

Ronald Haas, Orefield, was named outstanding showman at the 1978 Pa. Farm Show. The 16-year-old youth won his award by placing first in the 15-year-and-over division of showmanship and then going on to beat the competition in the other age groups.

The Pa. Pork Cook-Out King award was presented to Charles McKinsey, Allentown. For his culinary efforts, he was presented with a plaque and check for $200. He will now go on to compete in national competition.

Bill Fisher, East Earl R2, won the Pa. Pork All-American award presented for outstanding accomplishments and efforts in the hog industry. Fisher is the swine manager at Stauffer Homestead, East Earl, where he operates a swine breeding operation of 125 sows and 25 gilts. For more information on Fisher, see the article on page 1.

Winning the Pork Cook out King Award of 1977 for Pa. is Charles McKinsey, Allentown. Presenting the award is Gene Wingert. McKinsey will repre ent Pa. at the national competition.

Christian S. Seaman, president of the Pa. Pork Producers Council, makes a point at the banquet and meeting held with the Lanc. Co. Swine Producers Association.

Christian S. Seaman, Pa. Pork Producers Council president addressed the group stating that the organization has had a great past two years and he has been well pleased with hog market prices. He urged more markets to have "implied consent" and stated that hog producers should watch that they do not market their hogs too heavy in order to insure better prices.

The Ezra Martin, Arbogast and Bastian, Inc., Leesport, Pa. Farmers Association, and Hatfield Packing Co. markets were honored for cooperating with the implied consent market concept. These markets take a dime from each hog's selling price delivered for marketing to be used by the agricultural classroom of Garden Spot High School.

A second major award presented at the banquet went to Naaman Stoltzfus of Kinzer R1. He is the recipient of the Dairy Achivement Award, which is presented each year to the Garden Spot Young Farmer dairyman who has shown exceptional achievement and management ability during the past year. The award does not neces.arily go to the dairyman who has the highest production average, explains the group's advisor, Donald Robinson.

Stoltzfus received the award largely on the basis of the improvement his herd has shown over the years. His 30 cows last year produced an average of 17,125 pounds of milk and 688 pounds of butterfat per head. Stoltzfus only began his own diary operation in the Spring of 1975.

Two certificate of appreciation awards were given to Homer Martin and George Zimmerman, the honor is given annually to those who the group feels has contributed to the success of the Garden Spot Young Farmer program.

Martin is employed by the Stanford Seed Company near Denver and has been a "generous supporter" of NHYFA and FFA activities, explained Robinson in making the award presentation. Contributions have included seeds for the agriculture department's experimental programs and corn growing contests, door prizes, and educational materials and efforts.

Zimmerman, a local verterinarian, was cited for his participation in educational programs at the high school. He will, in fact, be holding a meeting at the high school on Feb. 28 to discuss dairy breeding with New Holland Young Farmers. The meeting is one of three in a series on dairy cattle breeding sponsored by the NHYFA.

PDA pleads for better dog control

HARRISBURG – There are probably at least 30 million dogs living in the U.S., over two million in Pennsylvania alone. Dogs in Pennsylvania outnumber babies, bicycles, hunters and fishermen. Proper dog control is a must in order to fit these intelligent animals into our increasingly complex society, says the Commonwealth's office of dog law enforcement. Pennsylvania's Department of Agriculture is charged with the responsibility of dog laws.

Last year in Pennsylvania an estimated 24,000 dog bites were bad enough to require a doctor's care. Several people were badly mauled and at least one person was nearly killed. In 1977 an estimated 100,000 Pennsylvania dogs, who didn't have homes had to be put to sleep. Every year in this state tax money pays 40 to 50 thousand dollars for reimbursements to farmers who had livestock or poultry damaged (or destroyed) by dogs. And surprisingly, most of the dogs that did the damage are privately owned, not strays. No one knows how many accidents happened because somebody lost control of their car trying to avoid hitting a dog. According to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, uncontrolled dogs cause a lot of hard feelings (and maybe a few ulcers) by barking at night, digging holes, and doing their business in the wrong yard.

All these growing problems could be solved if people only understood a few simple concepts.

Dogs are expensive. Dog owners must expect to spend money on dog food, veterinarian bills, medicines, leashes, collars, toys and licenses for their dogs. All this will add up to at least 100 to 150 dollars per year.

Keeping a dog requires a large amount of time. A dog needs to be fed, watered, exercised and cleaned up after daily. Training a dog properly also takes a lot of patience and time. Prospective dog owners should ask themselves two basic questions: "Can I afford a dog?" and "Do I have enough time to take care of this new responsibility?"

Everyone, but especially dog owners, should acquaint themselves with the laws governing dog ownership. In Pennsylvania, dog laws are administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement, and by local and state police. Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton have their own dog laws. They are similar to the state law in that a dog must be licensed and under control.

A lot of people think that a license is a waste of money or that a dog has the 'right' to freedom of movement. Not so. A license serves to identify the owner of a dog and is especially valuable for returning lost or strayed dogs.

The growing problem of dog control can ony be solved if dog owners realize their responsibilities as pet owners.

Dairy farmers receive $9.82 for Jan. milk

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Dairy farmers supplying milk plants regulated under the New York - New Jersey marketing orders during January will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $9.82 per hundred pounds or 21.1 cents per quart. Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson, who announced January's price, also stated that the uniform farm price was $9.83 per hundredweight in December 1977 and $9.42 per hundredweight in January 1977. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The total amount of milk received from the 18,237 dairy farmers supplying the New York - New Jersey Marketing Area was 807,859,190 pounds during January 1978. This was more than 46.5 million pounds above last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $81,151,957.60. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) utilized 399,095,831 pounds or 49.4 per cent of the total amount of milk for Class I. The Class I milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low-test, and skim milks. For January 1978, handlers paid $11.04 per hundredweight, or 23.7 cents per quart, for the milk used in Class I products compared with $10.66 a year ago.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Last month, a lot of influential city folks read their first Pioneer ad.

Only it wasn't about seed corn. It was about you.

The way things are today, it's getting harder and harder to make a buck farming. You know that. But a lot of city folks don't — folks who write laws and pass laws, and most important, folks who vote.

That's why the ad shown here was run in the powerful Wall Street Journal last month. There are still a lot of people who don't understand the problems you, as farmers, are facing. But there are fewer of them this month than there were last month. And that helps.

Everyone benefits from farmers steadily rising productivity

Their increasing productivity has kept the cost of raw food products from rising as fast as the cost of most other things everyone buys and enjoys

Their productivity helps us export more farm products enabling us to buy things we need from other countries

Many in financial distress

Today however the superior skills of US farmers plus a combination of conditions beyond the control of anyone has resulted in farm prices that are putting many farmers in deep financial distress

And unless a way is found for farmers to receive a fair return for their time and money we will all suffer

Why? Because if farmers aren t fairly compensated they won t have the money they need to keep on increasing their productivity That means raw food prices will eventually have to rise In addition farm exports will decline— and that will make the things we import cost more

American farmers want to keep becoming more productive They ve invested in mechanization more fertilizer and more productive seeds which benefits everyone

As individuals farmers can do little to control total supply Prices they receive drop sharply when favorable weather or reduced foreign demand for farm products results in even a slight oversupply In effect they are victims of the productivity which has been of such great benefit to all of us

Everyone has a stake

For that reason everyone has a stake in a financially sound agriculture Because the remedies for low farm prices are not simple we encourage all groups or individuals who can contribute ideas to speak up Whatever it takes to put agriculture on a sound basis should be looked upon as an investment for the day when even greater farm productivity will be needed to feed a growing world population

This message presented to increase understanding of the problems facing America and its farmers at this critical time.

Weed control program detailed

LANCASTER – The trend in herbicide control is to combinations, Jack Beideman told more than 200 farmers this week at Lancaster County's annual Crops and Soils Day. The event was held at the Farm and Home Center, here, and featured more than a half dozen educational presentations as well as informative displays.

Beideman, a representative of the Ciba-Geigy Chemical Company, introduced the farmers to two relatively new herbicides his company has to offer. One of them, Tolban, is being introduced this year for the first time.

Used in trials at the F.M. Brown research farm in Berks County, Tolban has shown promising results for the control of weeds in new fields of alfalfa, Beideman said. The new product must be worked into the soil within four hours of application but will be effective for as long as two months thereafter.

Two other herbicides, Dual and Aatrex, were Beideman's examples of the combination program. He says more and more farmers are giving their week problems an effective one-two punch by turning to this method of weed control.

Dual herbicide, according to Beideman, is "very good" on grasses, particularly nutsedge. He and his company recommend that Aatrex be used in combination with Dual to control broad-leafed weeds.

Advantages of Dual herbicide, Beideman said, include its long field life, less leaching, and the fact that the farmer does not have to hurry to incorporate it into the soil. Researchers have also found that only small quantities of the chemical are needed to be effective. The product's low volatility is responsible for its long field life and the fact that it does not have to be worked into the soil shortly after application.

Dual has been in Lancaster County for about five years, Beideman revealed, but it has only been commercially available since last year. Ciba-Geigy considers the product to be an excellent herbicide and expects it to be readily accepted. The Environmental Protection Agency has granted label clearances, and it is hoped that soybeans will be included on the label in the near future. Farmers should consult their Ciba-Geigy representatives for exacting details and application rates for the product.

To work at its best, the combination of Dual and Aatrex should be disked into the ground to a depth of several inches.

The hens have had their party; now it's time for Adams County poultrymen to hold theirs. It'll take place on March 14 at 6:30 p.m. at the East Berlin Fire Hall.

GETTYSBURG – Adams County poultrymen will hold their annual Spring poultry banquet on March 14 at 6:30 p.m. at the East Berlin Fire Hall.

The reservation deadline for the evening affair is March 3, according to John Schwartz, Adams County Extension agent. Tickets may be secured by calling the Extension office at Gettysburg, phone 717-334-6271.

Turkey holdings up

ARLINGTON, Va. – The Poultry and Egg Institute of America (PEIA) released inventory figures recently on turkeys in storage on January 31. The figures were supplied to PEIA by 166 members of the International Association of Refrigerated Warehouses (IARW).

A breakdown of their turkey holdings at the close of business January 31 shows that further processed items (including raw meat and parts) account for over one-third - 38 per cent - of the total classified tonnage. This is an increase over the 1/31/77 figure of 33 per cent.

Toms account for 34 per cent of the total classified tonnage, an increase over last year's figure of 29.7 per cent. Canner-type whole turkeys account for 7 per cent of this year's classified total, as compared with 25.2 per cent a year ago.

Hens account for 15 per cent of the total classified tonnage this year, compared with 8.2 per cent last year. Broiler-fryer turkeys account for 6 per cent of the total, compared with 3.9 per cent last year.

The Institute issues this special classified turkey storage report three times a year. It is based on inventory figures supplied by IARW members at the close of business January 31, June 30, and September 30.

Don C. Beaver, Institute president, points out that the value of this report lies in the indication it gives of holdings in each of the classes. By applying these percentages to the USDA turkey storage report for January 31, it is possible to get a fairly close estimate of what the national holdings are in each of the different classes.

Farmer tells of Europe, double cropping

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following two stories are part of a series of articles written by contributors to Lancaster Farming with a goal of providing a written and pictorial record of farming a generation or two ago. These particular anecdotes were written by Marshall Jones, Westtown, Pa. Jones has been farming for 45 years.

WEST CHESTER – When I was a Penn State student 50 years ago, I went on a student tour of Europe during the Summer of 1928. It took five days to cross the ocean in a coal burning steamship. One day our group visited the boiler room and observed the "black gang" shoveling coal into the furnaces This was a continuous process, and the heat was so intense that they could only work for 20 minutes at a time.

In this country we think a 200-year-old barn is very old, but in England, some barns are 900 to 1000 years old and are still functional

In France, the group visited a large wheat farm which was a battlefield during World War I-10 years previous.

The wheat was cut with a reaper and binder, the same as in this country, but instead of being placed in small shocks, it was put in stacks so large that conveyors, similar to present day bale elevators were used to reach the top of the stacks. In Germany we saw a horse and cow pulling a mowing machine. In Holland they were hauling hay in boats.

In Switzerland the farms are located in the valleys with the cattle and the farm family living under the same roof The hay crop is grown in small fields high up on the surrounding mountains It is cut with a scythe, and when dry is raked with a wooden hand rake. Small piles are placed on a net or sling. The sling is fastened to a pulley on a very long ½ inch steel cable stretched from the barn to the hay fields high up on the side of the mountain. When the load is pushed off the field it is delivered direct to the hay mow at terrific speed. This is certainly the world's fastest hay delivery system, in my estimation.

When I was growing potatoes during the 1930's one of my truckload customers told me that on the eastern shore of Virginia, corn and potatoes grew together in the same field at the same time. I didn't see how this system of double cropping was possible so in late July or early August of 1939 another potato grower and I drove down there to see how it was done. When we arrived there, the potato harvest was in operation with a nice stand of corn between every potato row. The owner explained how this was.

According to him, the potatoes are planted in March and after the last cultivation in May the corn is planted between the potato rows By the time the corn is a foot high, the potato vines are dying, and the corn thrives on the unused fertilizer There was no sign of mechanical harvesting equipment on the farm

The potatoes were plowed out with a mule pulling a six inch moldboard plow. Then, a large group of Negro pickers, men, women, and children put the potatoes in barrels. These were hauled to the packing shed in high wheel mule carts with very little damage to the corn crop.

Jr. broiler contest announced

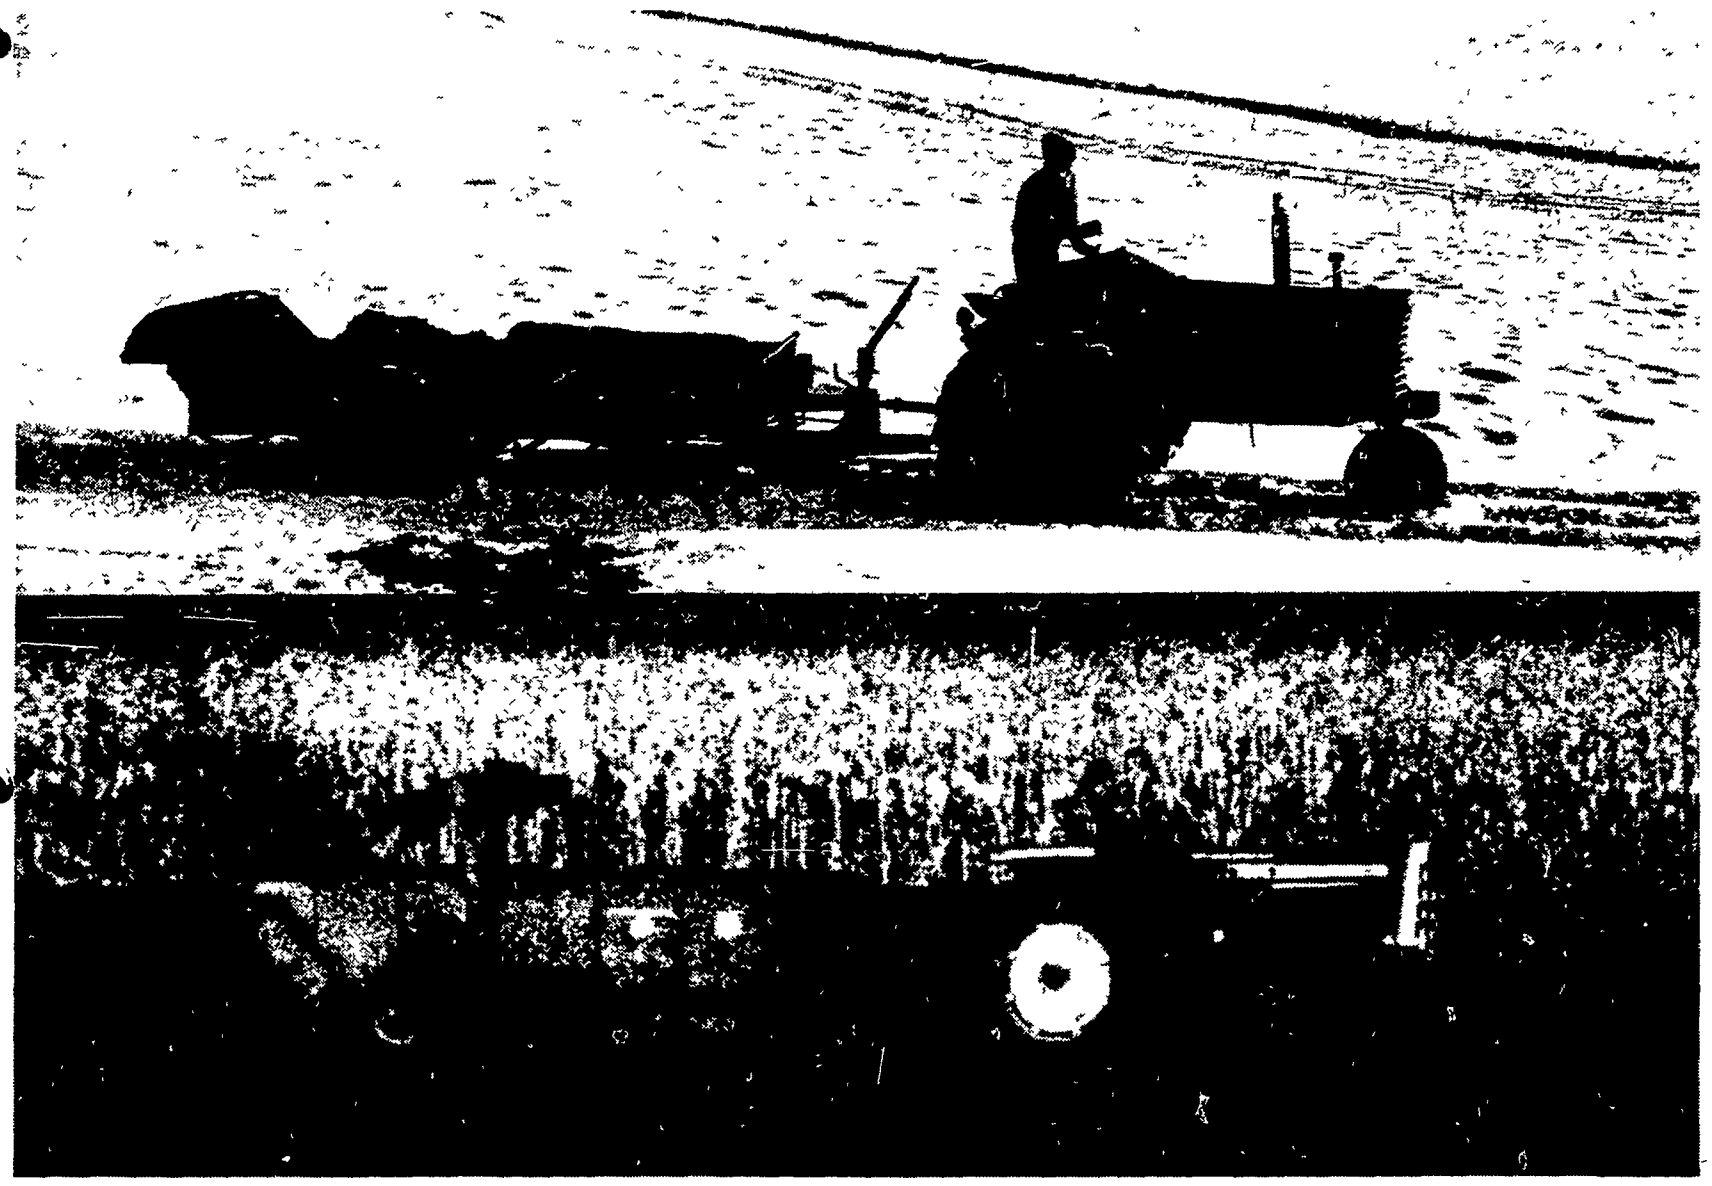
DOVER, Del. – The 30th Annual Delaware Junior Broiler Program will begin on March 20. Sponsored by the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association and the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, the program is open to participants from eight to 19 years of age. Contestants will gain practical experience in broiler production.

On opening day, each contestant receives 50 chicks of the same breed, hatched in the same incubator. Participants will feed and care for their birds to maturity.

Seven broilers from each flock will then be selected for competition. A commercial processor dresses the birds and they are then displayed and judged.

Weigh-in this year will take place on May 8. The actual judging will be held at Lake Forest High School in Felton on May 9.

Twenty-one awards will be given, ranging from a first place trophy and prize of $25 to eleven $5 prizes. Vocational agricultural advisors and 4-H agents have additional information about the Junior Broiler Contest for those wishing to compete.



Where do YOU spread when snow's deep or corn's tall?

The Agway Semi-Dry Manure Storage System can be your answer to that question. You can eliminate daily spreading and begin to manage manure for profit. Spread where you want, when it will do the most good.

The King Hydra-Ram is the heart of the system. Hydra-Ram's 5 hp pump produces up to 15 tons of thrust to move manure, with or without bedding, through a frost-free underground pipe to outside storage as far away as 250 feet.

The system has been given ASCS approval throughout the Northeast and it will fit most housing systems or bedding types.

Stop the inconvenient and expensive daily spreading routine. Start managing manure for profit with an Agway Semi-Dry Manure Storage System.

You can finance your Agway manure management system through Agri-Lease, Agway's own farm leasing program. And, on all orders signed before May 30, 1978 there are no monthly payments due until October 1.

FFA got this boy hooked on cows

Ed Breckbill gets a little help with his dairy cattle breeding records from this circular chart. Dairy cattle is what Breckbill is banking on for his future.

By DIETER KRIEG

OXFORD -- Ask Ed Brickbill what he likes the most about the Future Farmers of America program, and he won't hesitate at all to answer "dairy cattle judging."

A senior at Oxford High School, Breckbill has been interested in cows for as long as he can remember. It's a fact which has given him responsibility of his family's 130 head of Holsteins and won him recognition in junior Holstein association circles.

Breckbill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Breckbill, Oxford, is quick to give the FFA a lot of credit for having been instrumental in broadening his interest in farming. Although he has always been interested in agriculture, he says it wasn't until he joined the FFA program at Oxford High School that he became aware of the different aspects and details of modern agriculture. New found knowledge about dairy cattle type and production has been particularly impressive on the tall and slender young man.

The FFA has also helped him in getting along with and communicating with others, especially when in a group. He has participated in public speaking contests, made new friends at meetings and contests, including State FFA Days, held each Summer at Penn State University.

The FFA has helped in showing cattle, says Breckbill, who has won a number of ribbons in both 4-H and FFA contests. He's been to the Pennsylvania Junior All-American in Harrisburg on several occasions. Dairy cattle judging trips have taken him to numerous destinations, including three journeys to Penn State.

Breckbill's sharp interest and refined knowledge of Holsteins causes his instructor, Ken Thompson, to remark: "He's the first student I've had in quite a while who really knows his bulls and breeding."

Ed's responsibilities at home include helping with the morning and evening milking, and feeding all of the 130 head of Holsteins on the farm. He has full charge of the heifers and calves, and has had control of the breeding program for several years. Among the family's 130 head are 13 which Ed proudly calls his own. Seven of them are of milking age.

The Breckbill herd currently averages 15,200 pounds of milk and 598 pounds of butterfat. Two years ago, says Thompson, the figures were approximately 2000 pounds of milk and 75 pounds of fat lower than that. Young Breckbill has been striving to improve production and type and has every intention of continuing just that in the future. Dairy farming is what he likes best.

This past year Breckbill introduced an official classification program into the herd. The highest score was 88 points.

At home on a 225-acre dairy and crop farm, Breckbill has chosen farming as his career because of the variety of work and challenges it offers. Most of all, he enjoys working with the cows, however. Dairy cattle have given this young man additional recognition and respect because of his expertise with them. They've also helped him in becoming one of the most respectable students in school, says Thompson, a veteran of 24 years of teaching at Oxford High School.

The FFA, says Breckbill, is a good program for anyone who is interested in agriculture. He has found it to be a very educational and beneficial program. Not only has it broadened his views, it has helped him to mature and accept responsibilities, and work with others.

He finds one minor fault with the vo-ag curriculum, however, and that is that not all the students who join up are sincerely interested in agriculture. He believes FFA membership and vo-ag courses should be limited to those who want to work and cooperate and are genuinely interested in farming. "Those who don't work and aren't interested take time away from those who are," the young man explained.

"What you put into the FFA is what you get out of it," he concluded.

Penn State has dairy conference

Ears forward and eyes open, these Holsteins are ready to find out what new knowledge their owners and managers might come back with after attending the Dairy Herd Management Conference at Penn State on March 1 and 2. All the latest in breeding, feeding, milking and mastitis prevention will be offered by specialists from Penn State and other leading universities.

CNB promotes Bucher

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Robert P. Bucher, Conestoga, has been promoted by Commonwealth National Bank to vice president and manager of the Agricultural Loan Department in its corporate division. In a separate action, Bucher has been promoted to president of the bank's wholly owned subsidiary, Commonwealth National Agri-Loan Corp.

Bucher joined the Bank early in 1970 and has served as the agricultural loan department manager as well as manager and treasurer of the subsidiary, since its formation in mid-1970. He was previously affiliated with Lancaster Production Credit and Federal Land Bank Associations as assistant manager.

Both the department and Agri-Loan Corp. are headquartered at Commonwealth National Bank's Lancaster Region Main Office, 28 Penn Square, Lancaster.

Bucher is chairman of both the Pennsylvania Bankers Association's Agricultural Lending Committee, and the Agricultural Committee of the Lancaster Association of Commerce and Industry. A member of the executive committee of the American Bankers Association's Agricultural Bankers Division, Bucher is also a director of the Farm and Home Foundation of Lancaster County.

By JOANNE SPAHR

FREDERICKSBURG – If FFA plaques and trophies were equivilent to money, the NORLEBCO Future Farmers of America Chapter would have a veritable gold mine. Covering two walls of the Northern Lebanon High School vo-ag room are plaques of various and sundry sizes representing national, state, and local winnings which go back about 10 years.

In that time the chapter, under the direction of vocational agriculture instructor Ray Bickel, has earned 11 National Gold Emblem Chapter awards which fill one large plaque. Another plaque carries four National Chapter Safety Awards, and covering one section of wall are eight awards representing the best scrapbook in the state. Seven similar wooden ornaments bearing gavels signify that the chapter has won the Eastern Region Parliamentary Procedure contest for the same number of times. They have also been the state champs in this contest for four out of nine years, and have been in second place twice and third place once.

Adding to this partial list of honors are five national and five state Building Our American Communities (BOAC) awards, plus many, many, more, although to name each one would be a tedious task.

teaching vo-ag at NORLEBCO for 22 years, says that "it keeps you hopping" to do all the activities and fill out all the forms required to win the awards. The National Chapter award, alone, is comprised of 14 pages of questions requiring analysis and descriptions.

And, while they have taken safety honors every year they have entered competition, the chapter only became contestants in the National Safety Contest four years ago because it requires so much time to fill out the application.

He, nevertheless, goes through the process each and every year to give the boys a sense of satisfaction for what they've accomplished. And, what they've accomplished is usually a tremendous amount.

Just this week, they dug up 700 hyacinths and 500 tulip bulbs which they potted and buried under 12 inches of sawdust last November for rooting and storage purposes. These bulbs will now be taken care of in the chapter's greenhouse and sold for Easter flowers as a money-making project.

The chapter members were also busy this week preparing for their two-period-long assembly which they put on in the junior high school this Thursday.

"This is something we do during FFA week," explains Bickel. "We put it on for the junior high partially because they are the ones we want to interest in FFA."

For the assembly, three classes put together a demonstration apiece. The freshmen chose hunter safety as a topic; the sophomores, motorcycle safety; and the 11th graders, pond safety. Each of these demonstrations was then given to the Young Farmer group from the area and a winner chosen. This year that winner was the freshman class. According to Bickel, they were awarded two things – $15 from the Young Farmers and the opportunity to present their demonstration on regional television later in the year.

The second and third place demonstrations also earned money from the Young Farmers. Second place earned $10 and the third, $5.

Along with the assembly for FFA week, the FFA'ers also created a window exhibit outside of the auditorium. They make exhibits at this time of year during FFA week and during the week of their annual banquet.

Right now Bickel is also concentrating on teaching each officer and member of the chapter parliamentary procedure for the parliamentary procedure contest in March. All students in the 10th grade are organized into teams with a parliamentary procedure contest held during one of the school FFA meetings.

The competition for the parliamentary procedure contest is "really fierce", starting at the county level and continuing through the regional and state competitions.

Bickel's main activity for the group in March is the sponsorship of the anual parent/son banquet served by the FFA girls. According to Bickel, students make the ice cream and the barbecue chicken, while the mothers make the cherry pies for dessert. Although the chapter does not charge for this banquet, two days after it they barbecue as many as 1700 chicken halves to raise money to pay for the expenses.

This is only a partial list of Bickel's award-winning program, which actually begins in May. At that time, the program of work for the coming year is prepared at an officer's meeting.

When the program is made up, the Lebanon County program is used as a guide, and once the activities are planned, the budget is set, based on the amount of money needed to complete the program of work. That program always begins in July, the first month of the FFA calendar year.

One of the chapter's first projects is to harvest the six acres field planted in corn or rye, which the Northern Lebanon school board gives to the membership. The chapter averages about $400 per year from this project.

In July an officers meeting is held, at which time the group prepares and adopts a program of work for the new year. A second meeting is held to plan their annual camping trip, which is attended by everyone. Bickel usually takes the group to Lake Auburn, where one of the big highlights is water skiing behind his boat. Although the trip does run into money, it is financed by funds earned through money-making activities during the year. Bickel also takes his FFA alumni group water skiing.

For the NORLEBCO chapter, August dawns with acticipation of the Lebanon Area Fair and the Southeast Regional Dairy Show at the Lebanon Area Fairground.

Then, in September, the first project of the school year is the planting of 200 chrysanthemums, 700 hyacinths, and 500 tulip bulbs. Next the group seeds six acres of rye on the school land, and the chapter members sell seed to farmers in the community at harvest time to be used for cover crop in their corn fields.

October is highlighted by several activities, including attending the County Leadership Training Conference and taking part in the County FFA quiz contest. The chapter also prepares and shows a Halloween float in area parades. Last year they showed in seven, taking first place in all but one.

"That FFA float is a fun thing," notes Bickel with a shake of his head, "but, I'm just about running out of ideas by this time," he chuckles. A costly proposition (the chapter can easily sink $600 into creation of the parade exhibit), it is, nevertheless, worth his while in Bickel's eyes, since it is "more of a community relations thing than anything else."

Of course, November is heartily welcomed in by the chapter members, since that is the month Bickel takes several of them on a trip to the National Convention in Kansas City. Although the students are overjoyed at the prospect each year, Bickel is a little less than enthusiastic after years and years of the same thing.

"Everyone thinks it's so wonderful that I get to take those kids out there and to get out of school for the trip," Bickel says with tongue-in-cheek. "Well, that's a bunch of bologna – it's an 18-hour work day keeping everybody in line."

"And, you can quote me on that," he adds with a grin.

Bickel has a set travel plan which he has followed for the majority of his teaching career. By this time, he can, undoubtly, almost give a guided tour of each attraction.

In November, the NORLEBCO chapter also sells ads for their FFA calendar, takes part in the county corn contest, as well as the county initiation and crred contest.

Thn, in December, the principal money-making activity is the selling of a truckload of citrus fruit, and in January, the chapter supports and attends the Pennsylvania Farm Show and the mid-Winter state FFA convention. This year three NORLEBCO students received their Keystone Farmers degrees at that convention.

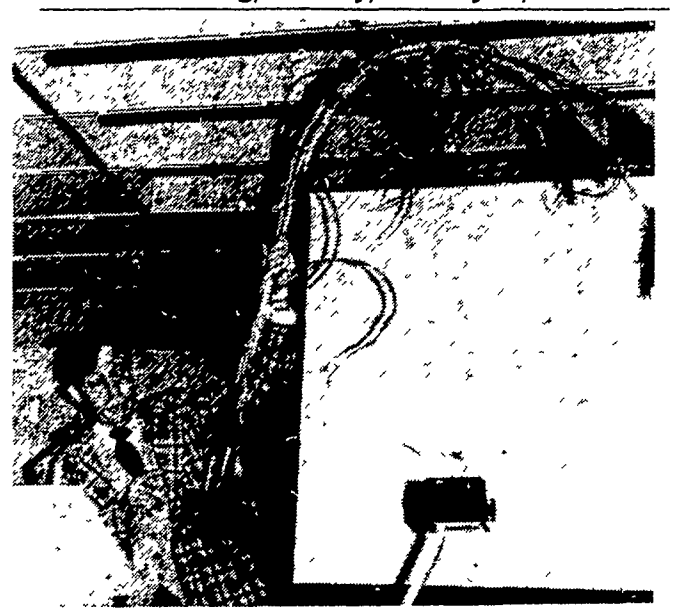
As Bickel stated, all these activities "keep me hopping," but it is well worth it for him because it gives him a sense of satisfaction to pick up the paper and see one of his graduated FFA students going on to take the reins in many community activities. This year he has a teacher's assistant – Dale Maulfair – to help, however.

"The greatest benefit for my students is that they learn to assume leadership roles. I'm trying to make them into good community citizens. Those students who are out there planting and taking care of trees and shrubs around the school aren't running over them with their cars, for instance," he points out.

"And, these kids have to learn that you don't always get paid for serving the community. That's an important lesson to learn," Bickel believes.

This vocational agriculture teacher also feels that in FFA the students learn how to run an organization, an asset that helps them in any group they join.

So, as long as he sees his students reaping benefits from the program, Bickel will keep up his award winning ways.



Arnold Lueck, County Agricultural Agent-Agronomy, shows farmers the plant shatter cane, which is a potential troublemaker in the Lancaster County area.

Lanc. Co. crop report, outlook given

LANCASTER – A Lancaster County crops report and outlook for the coming year was given by Arnold Lueck, County Agricultural Agent-Agronomy; as part of the Lancaster Co. Crops and Soils Day program, held February 21. Speaking on the feed surplus situation and depressed grain prices. Lueck summed up the situation by asking who would have ever believed that forage hay would bring the price it is, and that straw would reach a record high, selling as high as hay.

Lueck advised farmers to question whether their corn acreage is too large, and to consider the feasibilities of growing more hay crops such as alfalfa and red clover. He stated that the hay prices should continue to be good over the next few years. Some forage seed may be scarce, he related, but other seed supplies are adequate, with seed corn being in good supply. Alfalfa and red clover seed are in heavy demand at the moment and seed companies would have pressure put on them to get the seed delivered.

Fertilizer supplies are also adequate, according to Lueck. The price of fertilizer is up this year and the main problem, Lueck foresees, will be the delivery of fertilizer when it is wanted. Due to the weather and wet fields, it will be hard for the companies to get supplies to farmers as needed. Little fertilizer was moved last Fall.

Concerning pesticides, there should be no or little problem on most sides, Lueck said. Some corn pesticides might be slow in coming, and he believes that 2, 4-D and liquid atrazine may drop slightly in price.

Touching on weed control, Lueck stressed that specialized weed control is needed on Lancaster County Farms. He stated that herbicides cost approximately three per cent of field crop expenses, and added that the money used is well spent.

Focusing on what he called a "potential troublemaker" in Lancaster Co., Lueck Showed farmers a specimen of shatter cane, a vigorous growing weed which germinates after corn. The plant is an annual spread by seeds every year. Lueck urged farmers to be on the watch for this weed in their fields.

Harvestore Royal Court lunch

Miss Pa. entertains farm women at luncheon

By JOANNE SPAHR

STRASBURG -- When you've heard Miss Pennsylvania Lynne Grote pound out a rendition of Gershwin melodies, you know you've heard a Gershwin medley.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week over 450 farm women from Pennsylvania and New Jersey were treated to hearing this accomplished pianist perform when Penn Jersey Harvestore held their Royal Court ladies luncheon in Allentown and Strasburg.

Miss Grote, who entertained the crowd with both her musical abilities and a question and answer talk session, was the featured luncheon guest along with Sandy Miller, Pennsylvania dairy princess; Twila Brubaker, Lancaster County dairy princess as well as second runner-up for the state title; Susan Pepple, Chester County dairy princess; Kim Weaver, senior 4-H queen for Lancaster County; and Lisa King, junior 4-H queen for Lancaster County.

In her informal chat with the 290 women gathered at Historic Strasburg on Wednesday, Miss Grote noted that the most fascinating experience she has had as Miss Pennsylvania was taking part in the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., where she was a talent contest winner with a medley of Gershwin tunes

"The Miss Pennsylvania pageant is mainly a scholarship contest," she matter-of-factly pointed out. "The girls are beautiful, first, on the inside, and secondly on the outside."

As a little girl, she said, she had dreamed of being Miss Pennsylvania and Miss America, but as she grew older, she had to train her energies to work for her in this direction

"It's been a lifelong goal of mine, but I wouldn't encourage every girl to enter a contest because it takes a great deal of time and personal sacrifice to win," she said Miss Grote, herself, gave up much of her personal life while a senior at West Chester State College to prepare for the Miss Pennsylvania crown.

She does admit, however, that her reign has been "one of the greatest learning experiences of my life."

She's had some embarrassing moments in her career, however. Shortly after she was crowned, she was asked to throw the first baseball at the Pittsburgh Pirates/Chicago Cubs game.

"And I wasn't just supposed to throw it from the sidelines, either," she said with a raise of her eyebrows. "I had to go out on the mound and do it from there."

Unfortunately, she became nervous, and even though she had practiced with her father at home, when she threw the ball in he game, she held on too ong and it came down about six feet in front of her.

"The crowd just roared," he remarked, rolling her eyes, "they thought it was ilarious."

The fact also came out uring the talk session with he official Pennsylvania ostess that she loves milk roducts – especially cotage cheese and farmers' heese. As a practice for eeping her weight down, she prefers to drink skim milk, although she does admit to putting sour cream on her baked potatoes.

Would she marry a farm boy?

"If he were the right one," she states.

Other entertainment included presentations on milk given by Sandy Miller and Twila Brubaker. Interspersed between these skits, Mrs. Mary B. Myer, 1150 Village Road, Lancaster, and Mrs. Frances Bushong, Columbia, read their essays which they had submitted to the Harvestore essay contest last year.

Mrs. Myer, who was the New Jersey and Southeastern Pennsylvania area winner, wrote about the growth of her family's operation in which they now operate three Harvestore units.

Concluding the afternoon's entertainment on Wednesday was Merlin the Magician, who hails from Reading, Pa.

Lynne C. Grote, Miss Pennsylvania, was the featured guest at the Royal Court luncheons sponsored this week by Penn Jersey Harvestore.

pork producers organization

Dr David Ingrahm, chief of the bureau of animal industry of Pa., spoke to the group concerning swine brucellosis. In Pa., he related there has been very little infection found of the disease, and he hopes that soon the state will be validated as a brucellosis-free area, possibly by Summer. At that moment, he is looking for some primary breeding stock swine farms not tested to give the free brucellosis test to fulfill the requirements to declare the state free from the disease.

Representing the National Pork Producers Council, Larry Lee spoke of the 80,000 organized pork producers who form the largest commodity group in the U.S. Refering to problems facing pork producers, he noted that work is being done on the nitrate in bacon situation, and he is hopeful that the problem will be resolved. Speaking of the sulfur residue problem, he called the program the worst the administration has seen, with there being no tolerence level or room for human error. He believed the whole program should be reviewed, but warned farmers that they are going to have to watch for sulfur.

The following were elected directors at the banquet. From Lancaster County, Bill Fisher, Barry Haldeman, and John Henkel, and representing Chester County, Al Jasienski, Frank Stoltzfus, and John Lindenhauf.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by James Biesel, "Mr. Enthusiasm".

Pork Congress set for March

KANSAS CITY, Mo. – On March 8 to 10 pork producers attending the American Pork Congress in Kansas City, Mo., will hear some of the country's leading swine authorities in six educational seminars.

Along with the seminars William Fisher, East Earl, Lancaster County, will be honored as one of 33 Pork All Americans from around the United States.

Leading speakers include former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz; Dick Lyng of the American Meat Institute, and Dr. Lauren Christian of Iowa State University, as well as Ed Cox of Arkansas.

Some 15,000 people from throughout the country and around the world are expected to attend the three-day event which is the annual meeting of the National Pork Producers Council. NPPC is the nation's largest commodity organization with 80,000 members in 35 states.

Lehigh FFA holds meeting

SCHNECKSVILLE – The Lehigh County Future Farmers of America Chapter held their monthly meeting on February 15 at the Lehigh County Vo-Tech school.

Five members were recognized for receiving the Keystone Farmers degree. Those members include Grant Grim, Robin Cary, Scott Sell, Donna Hoch, and Joni Frankenfield.

The banquet committee reported that the annual FFA banquet will be held on April 8 at the school. A family-style dinner will be served and tickets will be available from FFA members.

The chapter is also selling onion sets and anyone interested is encouraged to contact the school or an FFA member as soon as possible.

Chris Miller, Barb Buss, Denise Lapp, Connie Shoemaker, Susan Woehile, Leann Wolfgang, Jim Schmall, and Marie Ackerman will attend the area public speaking contest on February 28.

The next meeting will be held on March 15.

YEAR ROUND MARKETING PAYS OFF

Besides speeding harvest by eliminating some dependence on other people our farm storage pays its way in higher prices. Table shows that if you had sold your crop in November every year, you would have received the lowest price of the year 13 out of 27 years. Highest prices were heavily concentrated in May through September and not once did lowest price of the year fall during this 5 month period!

Lungworms serious problem in dairy goats

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LEBANON — Lungworms are a serious economic problem for dairy goats, and can predispose goats to pneumonia, according to Dr. Larry J. Hutchinson, Penn State Extension veterinarian. Hutchinson was speaking at a meeting Wednesday of the Lebanon Valley Dairy Goat Association.

Hutchinson told the goat breeders that evidence of lungworms in goats is coughing, kids that do not thrive and just generally don't do well. Often wet pasture conditions in summertime contribute to promoting lungworm in goats.

The condition can be controlled, Hutchinson noted, by worming on a regular basis, fencing out low, swampy pasture areas and checking manure samples periodically.

Fecal exams of representative animals in a goat herd should be done twice yearly. Such exams will give a "good idea of how you're doing in the areas of sanitation, pasture management, and worming," he said.

Stomach and intestinal worms can all be controlled by the same drugs, Hutchinson said, and can also be controlled with a regular worming program. Any worming program must be individualized to the farm on which it is being used, but with young stock on limited pasture, "every two months is not too often to worm."

Hutchinson cautioned that worming programs for does must be planned to coincide with freshening and milk production, since some worm medication may be harmful to kids, and will harm the milk for four to five days after use. He said he prefers worming four or five weeks prior to freshening with something that won't harm the kid. This also helps the kid get off to a good start.

Coccidia can cause severe problems for goats, especially with kids being raised in close confinement. Evidence of coccidia is blood diarrhea and sometimes death occurs before diagnosis can be made. Diagnosis is made from a manure sample, but a kid with this problem is quite evidently not well, Hutchinson said.

The problem of swollen external lymph nodes should be taken seriously and considered a health problem for the whole herd, Hutchinson said in response to a question about abcesses.

Larry Hutchinson

"The problem is more serious than you can see," he said. Often internal lymph nodes are affected and cannot be seen. If these are present it is likely that the goat will suffer continual respiratory distress. "The affected animals should be considered affected for life. They could be a carrier." It is helpful if kids can be raised separately from the adult goats, which will Increase Fertilizer Efficiency. Spread ...

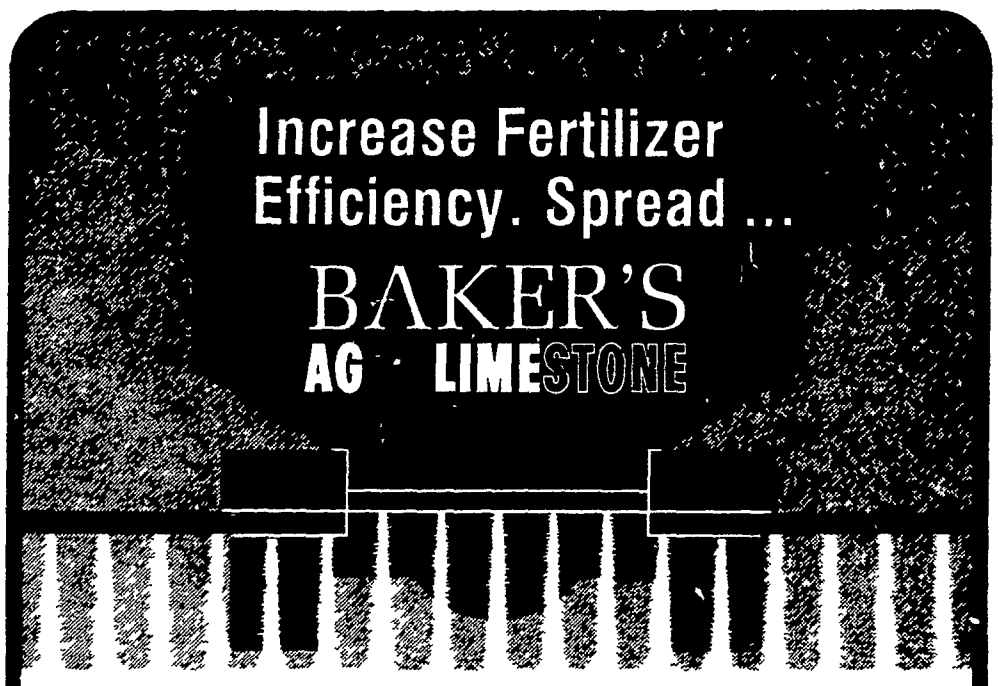
BAKER'S AG · LIMESTONE



Fertilizer is expensive — don't waste it!

Studies show that less than 50% of your fertilizer can do its job in very acid soil (5.0 pH). Fertilizer efficiency increases dramatically as pH rises — 67.31% at 5.5 pH, 80.33% at 6.0 pH, 100% at 7.0 pH.

Fertilizer efficiency goes up as soil acidity goes down. And reducing soil acidity is the job of Baker's Ag-Limestone.

Baker's agricultural limestone is available in two types, high-magnesium or high-calcium. Both sweeten acid soil, raise pH and unlock vital plant nutrients. For fast, efficient delivery, call your dealer or Baker.

EVENING SESSION - 7:30 P.M.
Talk and slide presentation to show prospective clients how Advanced Ag's consulting service can lead the way to increased profits.

— LUNCH AVAILABLE —

TALK AND SLIDE PRESENTATION BY
the man who is 25 years ahead of his time in practical and profitable agriculture.

ADVANCED AG is a consulting service which makes specific recommendations for fertilization based on a sophisticated "Albrecht Formula" soil test We advise clients of optimum tillage practices, working with existing tools or recommending alternative implements. We supply sophisticated crop catalysts and tracemineral fertilizers for specific cases. Increase your Net Profit through integrated management of tillage and fertility. Learn how and why the use or misuse of different tillage tools can affect the profit or loss of your farm. Each tool has its own proper timing. Properly managed soil is more productive of quality produce, more independent of weather extremes, earlier and easier to work, requires less fertilizer - more profitable. Get better control of your farming enterprise.

separate them from the carriers.

To combat this problem, a vaccine can be made from bacteria present on the farm. A veterinarian can take the initial culture and grow it and send it to a lab to develop the vaccine.

Pneumonia in goats is evidenced in a fever, general sick appearance, and discharge at the nose. To combat this disease, Hutchinson said, "The goat should be treated with enough of the drug long enough to be effective. This is a good place to get veterinary help."

"The biggest factor in pneumonia is that most barns are not adequately ventilated, particularly at goat level. This poor ventilation can promote chronic irritation in the lungs. Try to keep the air moving through barns." Hutchinson added that any animal produces a lot of moisture which must be removed from the barn either by forced or natural ventilation.

A few good vaccines are available to help prevent pneumonia, unfortunately none is designed specifically for goats. Stressors such as shipping, weaning, and freshening should be closely monitored and minimized to the degree possible to prevent pneumonia.

In castrating young bulls, Hutchinson said he prefers use of the ' emasculator, although cutting and rubber bands are also approved methods. Use of the rubber band has more disadvantages that the other methods and sets goats back more, he said.

In a question relating to the drying off of does, Hutchinson said that most does can be dried off abruptly without any problems if their production has dropped off. "There is some advantage to reducing or withholding grain prior to the drying off, he said. It is possible to use an antibiotic treatment at dry off time to clear up any problems with infections. A full dose of the cow product may be used.

Udder edema prior to freshening was a problem which Hutchinson said could be related to high protein diets. "Do not have first fresherers on high protein," he said, noting that breeders should go light on grain until the time of freshening and then come up quickly on grain after freshening.

NEW MILKER
bodmin nu-pulse the non-conventional milker

DAIRYMEN:
☑ Check List To A Simplified Milking System
Would You Like A Milker That:
☐ Uses a one hose hookup (No vacuum pulsation line needed)
☐ Eliminates pulsation service calls
☐ Has no electrical connections (Convertors, stall cocks, pulsators)
☐ Requires less vacuum (Lower hp. pumps)
☐ Reduces operating costs up to 70%
☐ Eliminates vacuum differential and reduces teat cup crawl (Equalized pressures)
☐ Does not flood out on high producers (No falloff)

See The Bodmin Nu-Pulse
The "Non-conventional Milker" with the non-conventional vacuum graph. Bodmin Nu-Pulse creates new milker standards.

DAIRYMEN:
- Are you ready for a no nonsense approach to milking cows?
- Do you feel you are getting the results you would like from your present milker?
- Would you like the improved efficiency of a modern milking unit that can reduce new installation costs by up to 30%?
- Wouldn't it be nice not to listen to squalking teat cups, and to avoid the injury to cows by machine falloff?

We Are Capable of Conducting A Limited Number of FREE DEMONSTRATIONS To Interested Dairymen.

Rural areas got $2.2 billion

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said recently that almost $2.2 billion in cash was made available in calendar year 1977 to construct electric and telephone facilities in rural areas.

The funds were advanced through the loan programs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Electrification Administration (REA).

"The money is a direct investment in the economy of rural America," Secretary Bergland said. "Not only do communities boost their local economies by constructing new facilities, but they ensure the availability of electric and telephone services which are essential to economic development now and in the future.

"The impact even goes beyond rural areas," Secretary Bergland added, "because the materials and equipment used in the construction projects, such as steam turbines and power transformers, are manufactured in highly industrialized areas throughout the country."

REA-financed electric and telephone systems serve more than 26 million farm and other rural people in 2,700 of the nation's 3,100 counties.

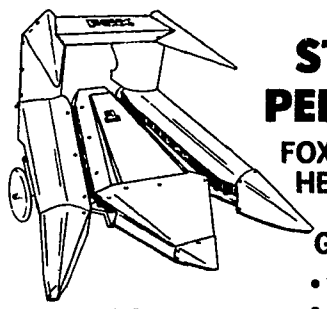
WHY BUY A FOX? HERE'S WHY ...

FOX IS THE PIONEER OF MODERN FORAGE HARVESTING.

- First forage harvester on the market (1932).
- First with cylinder cut and separate blower.
- First with three harvesting heads (pick-up, corn head, mower bar).
- First with quick-change harvesting heads.
- First with recutter screens.
- First with in-head electric knife grinder.

HERE'S ANOTHER "FIRST" YOU SHOULD CONSIDER —

- In 1974 Fox introduced the all new corn harvesting head with all rubber composition gathering belts.
- Low profile design for ease of operation. Designed to match gathering speed with ground speed.



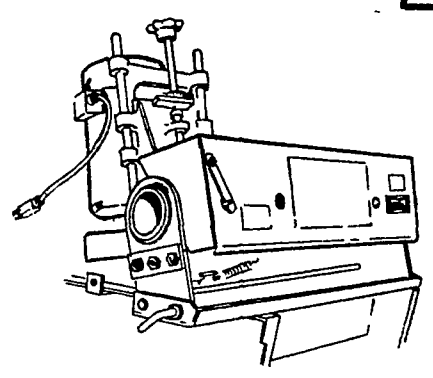
STRONG ON PERFORMANCE

FOX CORN HARVESTING HEADS WITH RUBBER COMPOSITION GATHERING BELTS

- Less initial cost
- Fewer moving parts
- Fewer gears
- Fewer bearings
- No Pitman drive
- No counterbalance
- No start and stop sickle
- No gathering chains
- No timing
- Lighter weight

- Less side draft
- Requires less horsepower
- Less noise
- Less vibration
- Belts wear longer
- Belts will take more speed
- Two-row corn harvesting heads
- Model 725 (Wide) for 36" to 42" rowspacing
- Model 726 (Narrow) for 30" to 34" rowspacing

IF HARVESTING HEAD PLUGS—REVERSE IT OUT!



FOX ELECTRIC IN-HEAD KNIFE GRINDER GIVES YOU THAT EXACT BEVEL ... Without Removing Knives!

Knives are the heart of any forage harvester. To get the most from your harvester, the secret's in keeping a sharp edge and the correct bevel on your knives The Fox in-head grinder lets you do this without removing the knives from the machine

USDA budget studied

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Portions of the USDA's proposed $17.7 billion 1979 budget that concern the marketing of cattle, hogs and sheep, are undergoing close appraisal by Livestock Marketing Association in preparation for testimony before Congressional Appropriations Subcommittees next month.

"We're particularly interested in the budgetary requests for the Agricultural Marketing Service, which now administers the Packers & Stockyards Act; the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service; and the office of General Counsel," explained C.T. 'Tad' Sanders, general manager of the trade organization.

"Those three agencies have projected increases for 1979 totalling more than $20 million. Generally, our interest is in being sure that the portion of those funds earmarked for programs that relate in anyway to livestock marketing are administered in the industry's best interests

"Additionally, we have serious concerns about the continued funding of programs such as the Rate, Services and Facilities Branch of Packers & Stockyards, when the value of the activity has been so broadly questioned," he continued.

"The overwhelming number of witnesses at the recently completed round of USDA hearings on rates policy, do not favor a continuation of the current role of P&S in the establishment of rates at livestock markets. We are assuming, therefore, that appropriate adjustments will be made in the allocation of P&S funds in this respect for 1979," he emphasized.

Sanders said that on first glance, "we are encouraged at the projected $8 million increas in APHIS funds directed at brucellosis eradication, and, assuming that the money is administered soundly, we would strongly endorse such an expansion of the program."

Bergland, Andrus highlight NFU national convention

DENVER, Colo., – Two cabinet members, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, will highlight the annual convention of the National Farmers Union to be held in Salt Lake City, Utah, on March 4 to 8.

In addition to Bergland and Andrus, Tony Dechant, national president of the Farmers Union, said that he has been informed by the White House that there is a "good" chance that Vice President Walter Mondale will address the convention.

Andrus will be speaking amidst rumors that the Carter Administration may back off its support of the 160-acre limitation on irrigated lands. The National Farmers Union has been the only farm organization to support the historic limitation on farm acreage that may receive federal water.

Bergland, who shares the concluding banquet March 8 with the Farmers Union's Dechant is expected to be reminded of repeated campaign pledges assuring farmers of cost of production price supports.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, will be the principal speaker at the convention's opening day, March 4. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., ranking Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, talks to the group Sunday afternoon, in the convention's second day. Also speaking that afternoon is the Farmers Union's national secretary Bob Lewis. That evening George Stone and Tony Dechant, vice president and president of the National Farmers Union, present their formal reports.

Headline speaker Monday is Kathleen F. O'Reilly, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America. Ms. O'Reilly succeeds Carol Tucker Foreman, who left the consumer federation post to become one of the most controversial assistant secretaries of agriculture in recent history.

Following Andrus's address Tuesday, there will be a panel discussion on "Energy and the Economy." Panelists are Robert O. Anderson, chairman of the board, Atlantic Richfield Co.; John O'Leary, deputy director, Department of Energy; and Dr. Lee White, Energy Policy Task Force of the Consumer Federation of America.

Other convention speakers include Donald H. Thomas, president of Agricultural Cooperative Development International; Richard Hull, president of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters; J.G. Tvedt, president Farmers Union Central Exchange; and Gordon Matheson, chairman of the board, Farmers Union Central Exchange.

York Co. Farmers Assn. sets plans

YORK – York County farmers will shake off the fetters of Winter March 10, as they hold their annual Spring meeting of the York County Farmers' Association at the Shrewbury Fire Hall, 7 p.m. After a beef dinner, John Rauhauser, noted historian and speaker, will address the farmers, setting the theme of the meeting with his "York County's Past is Its Future" presentation.

Highlight of the Spring meeting is recognition of York County farms that have been maintained in the same family for the past century. County Commissioners will be on hand to present framed certificate awards to the Century Farms that have proven to be eligible.

Criteria is that the farms have been in the same family name or in the same family for the 100 years prior to now, or that they have been passed through the same "direct descent" genological blood line.

At present 16 farms have qualified. Century Committeemen Emory Kilgore, Airville R2; and Joyce Bupp, Seven Valleys R2, will welcome any farm applications and provide additonal details. Ailean Detter, 3361 Old Carlisle, Dover, will take reservations for the dinner meeting.

York County Farmers' Association women will participate in the statewide women's conference of Pennsylvania Farmers' Association March 30, with the theme "Women Spring Into Action." The meeting will be held at the Toftrees Resort, State College from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Phyllis Gross, Manchester R2, will be coordinating the event for York County ladies, all of whom are welcome to attend this informative session.

April 18 and 25 are working days for the county women at a Legal Guidelines Meeting. Only five people may attend this regional session and anyone interested should contact Mrs. Gross immediately if interested.

Lehigh Co. approves $3494 4-H budget

ALLENTOWN -- The Lehigh County 4-H Development Fund Board of Trustees met at the Farm Credit meeting room on February 15 to discuss the current year's proposed 4-H budget. Charles Mackenzie and Mary Ann Riddick of Allentown were introduced as new board members.

Bob Leiby, Lehigh County 4-H agent, reviewed the 1977 Lehigh County 4-H Program. 4-H membership increased from 865 in 1976 to 1115 in 1977. The Affirmative Action Plan and Urban Nutrition 4-H Program were discussed.

The 1978 Budget proposed expenditures of $3,494. Over $2000 will be received from State Harness Racing Funds. The proposed budget has a deficit of $540.82.

The following members were re-elected as officers: Ted DuBois, chairman; Carl Schell, vice-chairman; Bill Betz, treasurer; and Mary Handwerk, secretary.

Corn growing tips offered

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER — During the upcoming planting season, farmers can upgrade their yields and minimize their losses by paying close attention to the condition of their equipment, soil temperatures, and erodability of the land. In years to come, specifically 1983, the farmer will have an additional tool at hand to help maximize production. These were some of the revelations at the recent Crops and Soils Day, held at the Farm and Home Center, here, and attended by well over 200 people. Penn State's Extension Service sponsored the event.

Dr. Joseph McGahen, Extension agronomist with the University, gave detailed reminders to farmers about corn management. Tips for top profits included proper adjustments and alignments of the shoes and depth gauges on corn planters. The scientist claimed that farmers often overlook such factors and this in turn accounts for many poor stands. Fertilizer injury to the seed accounts for the problem in many cases, said McGahen.

Seeding depth is another common error which can be easily corrected if the corn planter isn't totally worn out. Soil moisture is a third factor that can make a big difference between proud stands of corn or sparse populations. Penn State research shows how many young seedlings have died beneath the surface of the soil due to soil moisture being either too great or lacking, in relation to soil temperature. The moisture conditions are further complicated when a spraying program is considered. No rain means poor weed control, which means poor stands of corn, McGahen summed up.

The competitive effect of weeds in a corn field can be overemphasized, McGahen warned. He urges farmers to stay away from programs they've used year after year, explaining that Nature builds resistance to these programs and weed populations can therefore appear one year and not be affected significantly by the spray which in previous years was doing a good or even excellent job.

The Penn State researcher advises farmers to inspect their fields carefully each year so that subtle changes in the weed population can be detected early. "When you start seeing problem areas, then it's time for you to begin taking steps to eliminate them," McGahen advised.

Figuring a cost of $200 per acre to plant a field in corn, McGahen figures a farmer must have a minimum yield of 100 bushels of corn per acre to break even at a price of $2 per bushel. He stresses careful management throughout the corn growing season and affirms that early May is still the best time to plant corn.

Soil scientist Boyd Custer reported that a soil mapping program going on in Lancaster County at the present time will give farmers useful information in 1983, when the studies are expected to be completed.

The Garden Spot is the only locality in Pennsylvania to be surveyed in this pilot project. While previous soil mapping studies have taken as long as 20 years to complete, this one will take just eight years, said Custer. It will take a number of new aspects into account which previous soil mapping procedures could not allow. Lancaster County's present soil maps date back to 1959 and involved work which was done 30 and even 40 years ago, Custer added.

Reginald Speir, conservationist, offered the final segment of Penn State's program. Defining soil conservation as top production while still maintaining the soil, Speir calculated that a farmer is generally in trouble if he loses more than four tons of soil per acre per year. "If you lose more than that, you're losing it faster than you can replace it," he warned. The conservationist was quick to add, however, that this figure varies considerably. Some farmers can't afford to lose a ton of soil per acre per year. His bottom line is that farmers should familiarize themselves with minimum tillage methods while simultaneously banking on other soil conservation programs as needed.

Horticulture classes planned

LANCASTER — A series of pre-Spring adult evening classes in home horticulture will again be offered by the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State University. Home vegetable gardening, growing flowers and other ornamentals, and backyard fruit are the topics to be presented in March and early April at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Vegetable growing in home gardens will be covered during three consecutive weeks. The dates are March 7 or 8, 14 or 15, and 21 or 22. Those enrolling can attend on either of the consecutive dates since the instruction will be the same.

Flowers as the subject of the evening is slated for a single session on April 4 while backyard fruit class meets on March 28.

Instruction will include soils, fertility, varietal selection, planting and sowing techniques, cultural practices and pest control. Basic gardening know-how will be stressed to obtain better returns and enjoy more benefits from gardening.

Arnold G. Lueck, Extension Agent in Horticulture, will be in charge of the instruction. Classes meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. No advance registration or fees are needed to participate.

USDA money goes to TV

SAN DIEGO, Calif., – The U.S. Department of Agriculture stands ready to help rural telephone cooperatives finance projects such as cable television and educational tv systems to provide a new service to their members, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Alex Mercure said last week.

Speaking at the annual meeting here of the National Telephone Cooperative Association, Mercure said a proposal to allow telephone cooperatives to expand service by giving them the capacity to include broadband channels in their systems is vitally important to the growth and development of rural America.

Food quality concern expressed at meeting

MT. NEBO – The more than 40 organic farmers and gardeners who met February 17, at the Martic Township Building in Mt. Nebo all shared a concern about food quality, as both consumers and producers. Mrs. Goodie Schlief, Holtwood, opened the meeting with a short summary of the worldwide evidence of decline in the protein, mineral and vitamin content of foods. For example, in Kansas wheat protein went from 16% to 9% between 1940 and 1975. Another example of the decline is the decreasing fertility of heifers.

The film, Microbe to Man, was shown to demonstrate how Gene Poirot, a prairie farmer, successfully turned worked-out acreage into highly productive land by using ecologically sound practices. Poirot's use of increased wild life, fish pond irrigation, green manuring, and animal fertilizer created a highly profitable farm whose soil fertility is within the top 5 per cent in the country.

Continuing the program, Mrs. Schlief described ways to sprout seeds. The sprouts provide a nourishing fresh food during the Winter when the garden is not producing. Sprouted seeds are up to four times as nutritious as the unsprouted seed, and in combination can provide complete protein in from three to five days. Seeds used for sprouting include grains, beans, fenugreek, sesame, peas. All seeds used must be whole and untreated. Seeds prepared for planting are often treeted and would be poisonous if eaten.

A good source of edible seeds is local health food stores, or cataloques selling seeds for sprouting. One man at the meeting mentioned using mung beans grown in his own garden. Beginners in such programs were advised to start with beans they already like, such as navy beans or peas.

Mrs. Doris Hough, Peach Bottom, displayed a variety of fresh herbs grown in her greenhouse. She related that potted herbs supply fresh flavorful additions to winter cooking. A number of herb books were circulated in the audience.

The next meeting, to be announced at a later date, will deal with growing and using grains. Those interested are encouraged to attend. Anyone interested in addressing the group should contact Goodie Schlief at 717-284-2192.

Hausners and Polled Herefords team togethe

By KENDACE BORRY

DOVER – A start in 4-H competition of showing beef cattle was the beginning of it all for John and JoAnn Hausner, Dover R2. The York County couple, with their son John Patrick, are still actively involved in the cattle business, with their own specialty being the raising of Reg. Polled Herefords.

JoAnn and John both started showing cattle in 4-H around age 12 in Maryland where they both lived, although in different parts of the state. Unknown to either of them, a future team of cattle breeders and showers was being formed.

The couple met at a 4-H conference held at College Park, Md. They also both served on the livestock judging team and continued to see each other their last two years of 4-H. Now, although they've been married for 11 years, and have moved to Pennsylvania, they are still very much involved in the fitting, breeding, and showing cattle.

Sharing farming 200 acres with JoAnn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lingg, the Hausners farm on the half with the crops raised. Both the Linggs and the Hausners own their own equipment and their own cattle in an arrangement that suits all parties.

All the cattle that the Hausners have are purebred Herefords, although they explained that those cattle designated to go into the feedlot are not registered. However, all those decided to be kept as breeding cattle are registered with the Polled Hereford Association.

Besides showing, fitting, and breeding their own cattle, the Hausners also sell club calves for 4-H groups, deal in heifers for use in breeding herds, and also participate in shows and sales. Rounding out their services offered, are the fitting of other people's cattle and the offering of cattle hauling.

Mrs. Hausner, who related that while in 4-H she showed Angus, Hereford, and Shorthorn steers, stated that she likes polled Herefords because she finds them quiet and easy to work with. She found competition different at open shows compared to 4-H, and said it was "sort of like starting over in showing... you had to start on the bottom again and work your way up." She went on to say that showing heifers took a little getting used to after showing steers but now she likes it just as well.

"The judging of breeding cattle is so different than that of steers," she explained. 'The fitting is not the same and the judge looks for different characteristics."

John Hausner puts quite a lot of importance on the fitting and clipping of a beef animal. "You can change a whole animal's appearance," he stated. "By correctly dressing a calf you can put it to its best advantage to catch the judge's eye."

Other factors that he feels lead to having cattle end up in the winner's circle include having a good quality calf to start with, a good feed mix, (the Hausners mix their own ration), a proper worming and vitamin program, and lots of excercise.

The Hausners start to work their future show prospects while the calves are still with their mothers. They creep feed them, giving more feed to the bull calves than the heifers. The calves are halter-broken before they are weaned, making them easier to handle.

All the cattle are wormed once a year, with the calves wormed at weaning time and again six months later. The proper vitamins are administered through feed and shots. Concerning exercise, the Hausners explained that basically their cattle are out all the time, and are only brought in to be worked on. The cattle are fed twice a day.

Around July 1, the Hausners start "working hair" on their show cattle, which means they start to train the hair to lay and curl. Still turned outside at night, Hausner explained that as show season approaches, the work just intensifies although he added that the work seems a little easier once the cattle have been to a show and are what he called "road-broke."

The system the Hausners use does pay off, it seems. In the past year they had the reserve champion Polled Hereford Bull at the York Fair and the Pa. Summer Show held at York, and the Junior Champion bull at the Maryland State Fair. Also at the York Fair they had the calf champion and the reserve calf champion, and at the Pa. Farm Show in 1978 they had the grand champion Polled Hereford bull.

Their son, John Patrick, gets in the act of showing the cattle, too. In 1976, at the first show he participated in, he had the champion heifer. The youngster naturally believes in Polled Herefords and will probably join 4-H when he is old enough. As for winner.

At the entrance to the farm, the proud sign stands telling all that they have arrived at J.D.H. Polled Herefords.

Showing the bull, R.R.H. Oakland, John and JoAnn watch as their son John Patrick holds the winner.

This young calf, Jeffrey, will soon be in training for the show circuit. The mother, seen standing with it, is the heifer that won a championship for John Patrick Hausner, in his first show.

now, the seven-year-old helps with the cattle string at the open shows.

Hausner, who is vice president of the Pa. Polled Hereford Association, believes that there is a virgin market for polled Herefords in eastern Pa. The first Pa. Polled Hereford Show was held in York last year in conjunction with the York Fair and another one is planned for this coming summer. There will also be a sale set at the York Fairgrounds for sometime in October.

Thinking of his farm and the help he has had in getting started, Hausner gratefully acknowledged all the aid offered by parents and friends. He hopes in the future to be able to invest in more cattle and machinery for the farm, for he related that he finds life rewarding in doing so. "The biggest problem though in any farming," he related, "is trying to stay ahead and make some money."

Chester County dairymen honored

WEST GROVE - Chester-Delaware area dairymen were honored for having high producing herds this past year at the fourteenth annual District 2 meeting for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative members held February 15 at the Stone Barn.

Receiving Certificates of Merit for having top Dairy Herd Improvement Association averages were Roy Kolb, Spring City; George Lamborn, Nottingham; John S. Stoltzfus, Atglen; Lloyd Mast & Sons, Elverson; William Moore, Chatham; Paul Snader, Parkesburg; Herman Stoltzfus, Cochranville; and J. Raymond Harnish, Oxford.

All herds were at least 15 per cent above the state average for milk or butterfat production last year, while at least two-thirds of the cows in these herds are progency of Atlantic sires. Awards were presented by Edwin Sauder, Atlantic's field supervisor for this area.

Several members were also cited for their assistance in using young sires this past year, as the Cooperative continues its extensive program of testing the true genetic merit of some 30 bulls per year through random matings in many different herds.

Reports by District 6 Director Herman Stebbins of York, and management representative David Yoder, and management representative David Yoder, Lancaster, informed members that 1977 was a very successful business year for Atlantic. Service Technicians provided nearly 300,000 services and semen sales continued to be profitable. Atlantic sires maintained their rating among the nation's best for transmitting profitable traits, Yoder said.

A 25-minute movie was shown to help members understand the importance of sound type traits for both production and reproduction. The application of this principle through Atlantic's Mate-Rite program was also explained as an aid to breeding improved cattle.

Atlantic members who were patrons in 1965 recently received a cash refund totaling over $56,000. New equities have been issued to members active in 1977, amounting to 9% of gross revenue for the year.

Members present voted for District representatives for the coming year. Election results will be announced in the next issue of the Cooperative's monthly newsletter, since more than one meeting is held in most of Atlantic's 16 Districts.

Young Farmers to meet

EPHRATA – The Ephrata Area Adult Farmer Program will conduct a crop management meeting in the agriculture classroom of Ephrata Senior High School on Tuesday evening, February 28, at 7:45 p.m. Fertilization, pest control and recommended varieties of alfalfa, corn and soybeans will be included on the program.

John Yocum, agronomist in charge of the Penn State Research Farm at Landisville will present new developments in crop management and answer questions. All interested persons are invited to attend. Bring a neighbor. Rrefreshments will be served.

Lanc. Co. FFA meats judging held

LANCASTER – A three-man Ephrata High School team and a Pequea Valley High School senior came out on top of the Lancaster County Future Farmers of America meats judging contest held last Saturday at Kunzler & Co., Inc., Lancaster.

In that competition, divided into individual and team judging events, seven schools participated.

Making up the top ranking team was Harold Kauffman, Reinholds R1; Ron Good, Stevens R1; and Tim Rice, Ephrata, with 676 points. Following the Cloister FFA team came Penn Manor High School in second place with 628 points; New Holland in third; Manheim Central in fourth, and Lampeter in fifth.

Twenty-four students participated in the individual segment of the contest with Harry Kreiser, Pequea Valley High School, taking first place. Kreiser topped the list with 245 points out of 300. Kreiser, Gap R2, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kreiser.

Taking second place in the individual judging was Crystal Givler, from Manheim Central High School with 239 points; Ron Good, Ephrata, in third place; and Ramon Hunt, Penn Manor, in fourth. Taking fifth place was Tim Rice, Ephrata.

Competition included the identification of 25 cuts of lamb, pork, and beef, as well as the placing of wholesale cuts and the judging of 10 beef carcasses for quality and yield grade.

New group monitors crops

OMAHA, Neb. – A new association has been formed to reduce the rising costs of agricultural imputs, especially energy, chemicals and labor. Called the Aerial Biosensing Association, it's a non-profit group concerned with improving the understanding of infrared crop monitoring, to provide continuing information transfer with the practitioners and to provide help in developing effective legislation and positive public reaction. It will be headquartered in Omaha, Neb. serving all of the disciplines including monitoring firms, educators, land management companies, agricultural suppliers, financial institutions and students. Membership categories reflect this broad approach to biosensing and its present and potential application to agricultural production.

Cal Kuska is acting as executive director of ABA. For further information and membership information, contact him at the Aerial Biosensing Association, 1300 City National Bank Building, Omaha, Nebraska 68102, or call 402-344-4050.

ATTENTION: DAIRYMEN

February and March are herd months. We move 40% of our herds in these 60 days. Last year over 35 herds bought and sold privately and at sales in our own sales barn.

If you have a herd or know of a herd for sale, contact us first.

If you need a herd, let us know. We work for your satisfaction. We guarantee a clean TB and blood test and a herd that is ready to go to work.

No herd too small or any too large.

We have a good demand for herds this spring.

All salable cows in the herd will be offered except those owned by the Miller children. A number will be paired.

EXCELLENT PRODUCTION

12 head selling with DHI records from 20,000M to 25,591M.

Many others from 16,000M to 20,000M.

SELLING:

Daughters of some of the breed's top sires and many that are bred to outstanding AI bulls.

Four daughters of Elevation; all are milking with first calf and all are bred to Hillhaven Standout Job. One already has over 18,000M and is still going strong.

Two daughters of Whirlhill Kingpin, one with 21,385 and 705, the other one has 15,398 and 525 and making a better record now.

Eight by Heatherstone Lucky Typeblazer that are a real milky group with records from 15,000M to over 20,000M.

Five by Tidy Burke Transmitter including one over 22,000M and 778F.

Many by a number of outstanding bulls that have been used naturally in the herd, including 20 by Kerchenhill Lunar who is by Apollo and a maternal and ¾ brother to the famous Miss Scranton.

This is a fine group of young cows, an excellent place to select sound, profitable cows, both registered and grade, that are carrying valuable calves.

The herd is now bred AI to Elevation, Job, Astronaut, Betty Chief, and Jet Stream.
